Safety devices equip chain saw

Pioneer's new P41S professional chain saw is equipped with a number of features to protect the user: a chain brake, a rear hand guard, a throttle control lockout (to prevent accidental operation while the engine idles), and a catcher post (in event of chain breakage). The powerhead weighs just 15½ pounds, but has a 65-cubic-centimeter engine that cuts at speeds up to 8500 revolutions per minute. It features adjustable automatic oiling and solid-state ignition. A six-point vibration isolation system helps prevent operator fatigue. From OMC-Lincoln.

A little set goes a long way

For beginning golfers needing just a few clubs to get started, or for the old pro who wants to grab his Sunday bag and a handful of clubs for a few quick holes, the new Half & Half set of six clubs will do the job and lighten the load. The loft of each club is set exactly between standard industry lofts. The Half & Half standard set comprises two woods (1½ and 3½) and six irons: the "long iron" (which has a loft between a 2 and a 3), a 4/5, a 6/7, an 8/9, a light pitching wedge, and a double-duty sand iron. ◀ Good-and-quick fries

Only high-quality Russet Burbank potatoes are used for Magic-Fries from John Sexton & C. They cook in half the time of most frozen french fries (a minute or two at 350°F.) and produce a high yield (about 20 precent more than average) thanks to uniform sizing, little breakage or shrinkage.

Golf car battery

The Sears name can now be found on a line of golf car batteries designed for power, long life, and safety. Greater power comes from wide grids, greater energy density, glass-matted PVC separators, and welded, through-the-partition connectors that minimize internal resistance. The grid design, separator protectors, and polypropylene containers contribute to longer life. Individual spill-resistant vents minimize evaporative loss and explosion hazard. From Sears, Roebuck and Co.

Countertop broiler

One of the outstanding features of the US Range Co.'s heavy-duty Char-Glo gas broiler is its patented flame control: a special lever that angles the top broiling grates to any position. This draws off up to 75 percent of the grease, preventing it from dripping onto the heating elements where it could cause a fire hazard. Choose propane or natural gas operation, ceramic coals or Ray-Glo stainless steel alloy elements that heat from cold to cooking temperature in 3 minutes.

Golf shaft factors

How to Buy Performance in Golf Shafts is a 6-page booklet offered by Babcock & Wilcox, Advanced Composites Dept. It explains four performance factors to look for in golf club shafts: torque resistance, uniform weight in each flex, closely controlled flex pattern, and durability. B&W makes DynaTorque and AccuTorque graphite shafts.

Pyrolytic incinerator

How to use trash as a source of free fuel energy while virtually eliminating trash disposal costs is the subject of brochure No. 54-110 from Kelley Co. It illustrates how pyrolytic incineration works, burning unsorted combustible waste, wet or dry, on site in complete safety. Flue gas heat from the incinerator can be converted into hot air, hot water, or steam for heating.
