"Engineer Deadwood" Safe.

It is stated from Paris that the sister of Rochefort's paper, the first number of which has just been given to the public, amounted to over 200,000 copies. The Pulitzer Pavilion.

A correspondent of the Chicago New York says: Pulitzer fairly completed the twentieth day, or one-half of his fast. Those who have seen him at that time say he looks well, merry, and, indeed, it is hard to see how any decent could have been practiced upon his appetite. The half-formed suspicion that he may be slowly gain in weight for two days after drinking water have been disappointed by the fact that he is not heavier than he was years ago to lose in weight. The Doctor remains still more of a riddle than before. While his mind is still concentrated by exact scientific evidence, yet probabilities are in his favor, and it is generally conceded that the Doctor's friends who have seen most of him believe firmly in his honesty. At present everything seems to be centered at the Clarendon hotel at the time for lot is well and happy. The Eclectics are jubilant over their supposed victory over the regular physicians, and are inclined to be very so much blind to the possible value of the public attention which the fast has attracted to medicine. Those of the regular school of medicine, who watch the Doctor, have become much interested in the case, and have begun to pay more attention to the science of hydrotherapy. They have forced, however, to admit that the issues of the body are normal, and, so far, have proved to be a month longer than has been supposed.

"They have a daily paper at Greenville, a small town on the Grand Rapids and Indiana railroad." —Ann Arbor Democrat. That shows how much that paper is posted. Greenville isn't a small town; it has two daily papers, and lies within ten miles of the famous Rapids, and lies astride of the Indiana railroad. The Democrat man had better read the newspapers and study the state map, or else go and see for himself.

Last Thursday afternoon the banking house of Fisher, Paxton & Co., Chicago, was left for a couple of hours in charge of only one clerk, during which time a man entered and said he wished to purchase some government bonds, and which he was talking with him he drew out a kind of a weapon, probably a sling shot, and knocked the poor fellow down and made off with some $5,000 in cash and bonds, which was laying on the counter at the time.

A few years ago, some infernal fool, who thought everything "foreign" must be better than the native article, imported the English sparrow, and now they are found to be a pest worse than moreen ton, fleas and sand flies altogether. On last Monday morning, while Dick Sacks was digging a trench along the west side of the cellar to the red front store, he heard a cracking sound and looking up beheld the wall trembling as if about to fall. He ran to the opposite side of the cellar just in time to escape being buried under twenty-eight feet of stone wall, which caved in, throwing huge bowlders on all sides and beyond him. Dick had a narrow escape, but was badly frightened. No one was to blame for the accident, the wall being weak from the effects of excessive rains during its construction.—Clinton News.

SAND LAKE.

This is a beautiful sheet of water, situated in the townships of Franklin and Cambridge, the line between them dividing the lake near its center, north and south. Its greatest diameter, which is from northeast to southwest, is nearly 11 miles. Sand lake is a very appropriate name, for it is environed by sand hills, and has no visible inlet or outlet. On the north, commencing near the Decker hotel, rises a narrow sand ridge some 75 feet in height, with the lake on the south, and a marsh on the north apparently on the same level; this extends some three-eighths of a mile, on the lake side especially this bluff is quite steep. Doubtless at some remote period, this marsh was a portion of the lake. Just east of the hotel is a small depression, through which the waters once flowed, but the action of the water has thrown up a barrier of sand which has cut off the flow of water into this ancient lagoon. On the northeast is another marsh, where the lake water has been shut out by a similar process. In these portions the banks are low. At the southeast are other portions once occupied by the lake. Mr. Decker states that the lake is four feet higher this summer than it was last, owing doubtless to the heavy rains of this season, which run in from the high banks. There are many tents and cottages around the lake; some very tasty ones on the south bank, ensconced in the dense timber. At present there are about 12 sailing crafts, and nearly 60 rowboats on this charming little lake.

On Saturday last there was a very pleasant party gathered there, a kind of reunion of relatives and friends. There were the Palmer's, LeBaron's, Benham's, Short's and Calhoun's, of Bridgewater; Shorts, of Cambridge; LeBaron's, of Brooklyn; and many friends from Woodstock and Jackson; also from Lyons Co., Richmond, Ind., and Clinton.

OTHER INCIDENTS.

Just as Dr. Palmer drove up to the door of the Decker house, his team being little cantious he cracked his whip, and the team took the double-tree in two, within four feet of where he wished to stop.

The dinner was beautiful, and there were more than twelve baskets left, provided there were not too large. After dinner the company scattered in searching for the high bluff. I discovered what appeared to be mounds of natural spouting in the waters near the shore. On a closer scrutiny they were discovered to be a group of the summer females, having doffed their shoe and foot gear were wading in the limpid waters of the lake.

Mormon Reinforcements.

Seven hundred Mormon immigrants arrived at New York on the 23d inst., on their way to Salt Lake City. They were mostly Swedes, Norwegians and Danes, with a slight sprinkling of English.

Odd Facts.

Says the Boston Post: The center of population of the United States, according to the census of 1870, was in Germanicus County, Ohio. It does seem as though the farther it strays thing was in Ohio.

The Hudson River Victims.

The remains of the victims of the Hudson River Tunnel disaster can not be recovered until a new coffer-dam is completed, which will require two or three weeks' time.

Death untoward.

When he recovered he found the money drawer rifled and the money gone.

Thus Whittaker Can.

It will be time for the defense to prove by other evidence that Whittaker was drunk, and that Whittaker was sane, before the jury can be induced to acquit him on the ground of insanity. Unless the findings of the Court, that Whittaker weighed himself, and that his friends desire a postponement in order that he may vindicate himself, one will very likely be ordered.

The Egyptian Obelisk.

The question of a site for the Egyptian Obelisk in Central Park has not yet been settled, but progress is being made toward it by the Park Commissioners. The steamer Dessoubs with the obelisk on board, has anchored in North River, and it is understood that the Park Department will not bear the expense of removing the obelisk from the steamer. Mr. Vanderbilt will have it done at his expense.

The Spanish Outrage.

There is no longer any doubt that the vessel which recently fired on two American schooners off Cuba, was owned and navigated by the Spanish navy. Information to that effect has been received from Minister Foster, whose dispatch on the subject was read at the Cabinet meeting a few days ago. The Spanish authorities have admit the firing was done by a Spanish naval vessel, and while disavowing the act, they intimate that they will attempt to justify it on the grounds that it is competent for Spanish vessels to fire upon a suspicious vessel, within two marine leagues of the Cuban shore. The matter is not yet settled.

A Colored Convention.

The first State Convention of colored men ever held in Illinois, met at the State House, in Springfield, previous to a call recently issued, with one hundred and twenty-six delegates present from different parts of the State. Henry Brown, and Rev. N. J. McCracken, of Springfield, Jesse McGuire of Jacksonville, and Rev. S. Hutchinson, of Mattoon, who depicted reports published that it was a Democratic Convention, urged the delegates to vote and support the Republican party, to which they would look for that recognition which they desired. Governor Cullom, Secretary of State Harlow, and others were present and addressed the Convention.

Terrible Domestic Tragedy.

Solomon Easterly, a well-to-do farmer living three and a half miles from Lyons, Wayne County, N. Y., midway between Rochester and Syracuse on the New York Central Railroad, returned home and found his wife, who was the mother of six children, with his sister, Mrs. Gear had made life a burden to Easterly during the last twelve years. He ordered her out of the house, but he refused to go, and he remained in the house with the dead woman and her children. He then left and going up to Mud River, he buried it into her head, killing her instantly. Then he attacked his wife, following her out into the yard, whither she fled. There he struck her down, and then, jumping into a wagon standing ready, drove away at a rapid rate. In a short time the alarm was aroused and search for Easterly was begun, but he was never again seen alive. His body was found in Canandaigua outlet, where he had drowned himself. His wife's wounds were fatal, and she died in a few hours.

A Telephone Combination.

Here is a matter of interest: A company of leading business men has been formed that has bought up all the patents relating to telephones, now in use, and known as the Bell, Gray and Edison patents. The company is composed of men from all parts of the United States, of the country, Cincinnati being largely represented and interested. The cash capital of the company is $5,000,000, with headquarters in New York, and in about sixty days they will open up the telephone, which will certainly be the cheapest and most efficient of all telephones in the market, save the one they hold. The inventor of the new telephone is a young man living near Harrisburg, Pa., named Daniel Drowbaugh. Owing to his poverty he was unable to push his patent to the front, but the new company have secured and are sole possessors of this invention, ante-dating those now in use. A boy number of capitalists are interested, in a positiveness that is almost convincing, that it will not be long till they will have entire charge of the telephone business, not only in this country, but in the world, and they will be able to establish a line where the messages can be transmitted for almost a song.

Seventieth Birthday.

Intelligence several days ago from Pennsylvania stated that a fourteen-year-old girl named Salome Harbert, living near Shanksville, in Somerset County, Pa., had been married to a man connected with Boyd & Peters' circus. In consequence S. C. Peters, one of the proprietors of the show, and Mr. Matlack, the attaches, were arrested. It appears after they found that her father was after her at Lagonier they took her across the mountain, and had the happy way to Somerset in a most deplorable condition. At several places persons saw her crying and begging for help, but they let the girl go on. Her father, who was a widower, and was going through fields. She at last fell into kind hands, and was sent to Somerset and sent home. The girl recognized each one of the men as the parties, or among them, who she saw at the show, and who attempted her ruin. In court she testified that she was at the show at Stoneycreek on Tuesday, the 13th inst., at two o'clock. When the show was over she started to go home. Some showmen met her by the wagon and asked her to take a ride. They had her start to get away from them. She was grabbed by one of the men and thrown into a wagon standing by, drove away at a rapid rate. In a short time she was missed and search for Easterly was begun, but he was never again seen alive. His body was found in Canandaigua outlet, where he had drowned himself. His wife's wounds were fatal, and she died in a few hours.

Another Disaster.

A terrible disaster is reported to have occurred on Donnell's River, on the morning of the 23d inst., about a mile above Grosse Isle, by which fifteen lives were lost by a collision between the propeller Garland and the steam yacht Mamie. The Mamie had on board Father Hyenburg of the Trinity Catholic Church, of Detroit, and his Altar Boys, sixteen in number. Father Hyenburg and four of the boys were saved. Twelve boys and two women and the engineer were lost. The Mamie was cut in two amidships.

Turkey Preparing for War.

News from Constantinople says that active preparations are making in case of a war with Greece. Troops, artillery and ammunition are being sent to Salonica, Volo and Prevesa. Orders have been telegraphed to the province that recruits shall be collected and forwarded to the seaport depots with all available speed. The Albanians have been encouraged to prepare for resistance, and are supplied with arms and ammunition. The Albanian League has resolved to employ 150,000 piastres of its revenue for the fortification of Antivari, 125,000 piastres for the fortification of Prevesa, and 80,000 piastres for the fortification of Arta.

Tanner, the Starvist, and His Wife.

The Fargo (D. T.) Argus has interviewed the famous wife of Dr. Tanner, the faster, who, since being divorced from the doctor, has again married and is now a resident of that place. After detailing the facts of Dr. Tanner's early life, the lady said his theory that people ate too much grew upon him until it became a mania, and made him so disagreeable to his family. He tried to impress his theories upon her, and she resented the experiment and left him. Her husband is a combination temperament, extremely sensitive, with a cultured, active mind, a good feeder, fond of fun, which, most of the remainder of mankind, goes to make up all that is pleasant in a good living. Dr. Tanner has not strong opposite, phlegmatic, slow in speech, decided in his views, obstinate and confirming in argument, with a strong will, settled in the conviction that his theory was the early, true secret of health and happiness, and determined to enforce it upon those with whom he had a direct control. "Sir," said she, warming in her indignant feeling, "place a healthy, intelligent, educated, of an extremely sensitive and excitable temperament, in enforced submission, compelled to make his stomach subservient to his nature, destructive to her happiness, and life becomes a burden." That is to say, Dr. Tanner tried to make his wife eat less, and she left him to get three square meals a day.

Another Horrible Accident.

The caisson leading to the entrance of the Hudson River Tunnel, constructed at Bergen Point, Jersey City, caved in, carrying with it an immense quantity of earth. The Hudson River Tunnel Company, through Engineers Spelman and Brush, make the following official report of the disaster: Twenty-eight men were in the tunnel at the time, and they escaped through the air lock, and twenty were killed. The accident occurred at 10 o'clock, and at that time the men were at work in the working shaft, which, during the changing of the caisson, was temporarily closed. The men as closely as it should have been, and compressed air was allowed to escape. The men ran to the air lock and upon being asked in supporting strong timber bracing, and the escape of air has always been prevented by stopping up the leaks with waste rags. The men left the place closed the door of the air lock into the tunnel, and the water rising rapidly, the men were all drowned except those killed. The building of this connecting chamber, though a difficult piece of work, progressed rapidly, and was thought to be safe and securely bolted. The connection of iron plates with the shaft was being made at the time of the accident. The caisson was inspected night and day with all the men that can be advantageously employed until the bodies are recovered, which will probably take about three days. The following statement is made by one man who escaped: After the accident I ran as one man in trying to pass through the door leading from the air lock into the tempory chamber, but the door was bolted against my way, and despite the efforts of those ahead he could not be brought out. As the door closed behind me I heard his fate. Peter Woodland, assistant superintendent, told the men to try and get out, and when the ninth man was passed in the door was bolted out to those who had escaped telling them to hurry and try and get assistance for the men left behind, and who were left behind. He confessed to hear, saying he would stay and make every effort to get the men out, and if it were not possible, then those escaping must try to get the rest and himself out alive. The superintendent is a very cool man, cool and a very large and excited crowd of persons soon congregated. Peter Woodland, Assistant Superintendent; Frank Alston, foreman; Jacob Hopper, foreman; Jacob F. Eisinger, Peter Fisher, Patrick Kimin, Charles Neilson, William P. Bogley, Andrew Jacobson, Bryan Sullivan, Charles Swanson, A. Jacobson, Frank Berk, Hoboken, Mat. McCarty, Patrick Broderick, Otto Benedict, John Lawson, Jacob Gillis, Mike Broderick. In addition to these, three men, whose names are not known, are missing, and the officials say they must have perished.

THE HEAT OF THE DESERT.

Of course, matches were lit by touching the end with the tongue. Then we worked their metal instruments without gloves—and everyone except your effeminate servant here did—got sawed, big blisters. Even the mahogany tripods—unfortunately not yet polished—were painfully hot; and an eyelid too near the brass work of the telescope was instantly baked into a pretty leaf.—Desert Life.

A Fitch Dodge's Yarn.

Nothing can compare with St. Jacobs Oil as a prompt, safe, and sure pain and rheumatic pains, says Mrs. Marie Sal. Fitch, Prince Rupert, Wilhelmi Concert Troupe.—Chicago Tribune.

ALLEN KEITH was a good-looking boy of 14, at Westfield, Mass. He dressed himself in his sister's clothes, ran away in them to Springfield, and got employment as a salesgirl in a bookstore. He made such a winsome girl, and flirted so naturally with the admiring young men, that he soon became a great attraction at the place. He was a favorite, too, with the girls of the house where he boarded, and none of them suspected that he had the slightest to wear petticoats. His mother at length discovered and exposed him.

It is said to be unwholesome, in all climates, to sleep on the first floor, and to eat an oyster. However, it is eminently proper and always seasonable to use Dr. Sanford's Liver-Invigorator. Price $1. Sold by druggists.

ABLEGATED MISCELLANY.

Anger, like rain, breaks upon what ever it falls.

Draw not thy bow before the arrow be fixed.

Never expose your disappointments to mortification.

If you would make a thief honest, trust him.

The simple flowers are sociable and benevolent.

Forgive can only take from us what she gave.

Worries sometimes wound more than swords.

A good book supplies the place of a companion.

He who stops to pick a flaw in other's knitting work, drops many stitches in his own.

A restlessness in men's minds to be something they are not, and to have something they have not, is the root of immorality.

A French statist has come to the conclusion, after a very laborious examination of the number of deaths from railway accidents in all parts of the world, that if a person were to live continually in a railway carriage and spend all his time in traveling, the chances in favor of his dying from railway accident would not occur until he was 960 years old.

Every failure is a step to success; every detection of what is false directs toward what is true; every trial exhausts some tempting form of error. Not only so, but scarcely any attempt is entirely a failure; scarcely any theory, the result of a steady thought, is altogether false; no tempting form is without some late nt charm derived from truth.—Whewell.

SEEKING THE PRESIDENCY.

We find that, from the beginning of the Government to the present time, those who have sought the office of the Presidency have not obtained it, and that the men who have obtained it did not seek it.

Van Buren was elected in 1836, when he was a passive instrument in the hands of others, but lost his election in 1844, when he put forth efforts to procure a nomination. Polk, Pierce, Harrison and Taylor were not seekers. Buchanan owed his nomination to the circumstance that he had been absent from the country during the four previous years. Not one of the men who have had the mania for the office ever got it.

Those, therefore, who think it indecent for a man to take an active part in procuring his own nomination or election may comfort themselves with the reflection that such men have never been elected. Seeking for an office amounts to a disqualification for it, and so the people generally regard it.

In the Russian village of Elizavoff, province of Moscow, during the services on Easter day, a quarrel arose between the Old Believers and assailed the worshipers. The latter, in their fright, made so terrible a noise that the well beat a hasty retreat, leaving four persons wounded.
