BODIES PREPARE TO SPREAD CO-OP MOVEMENT THROUGHOUT MICHIGAN

College Sets Able Staff Working Out Problems Confronting Co-operative Marketing; Its Program Is Long and Would Enlist Every Farmer

Just as every big industry has built up its own system of research and training of men to dispose of its commodities, so will Michigan agriculturists do the same thing in the field of agricultural marketing and provide for the training of marketing men for Michigan farmers.

This announcement was made at M. A. C. Feb. 24 before a conference of officers and directors of all our great state-wide farmers' commodity marketing exchanges, representing hundreds of co-op and thousands of members. The College submitted for approval a big program of investigation and educational work for further development of the co-operative movement, in the building of which the institution has had such an important part. The program was unanimously approved by the farmers' organizations pledged their support to make it a success.

President Butterfield of the College called the meeting to enable the College Economics Dept. to submit to organized Michigan agriculture a program whereby the whole resources of the Agricultural College will be put into building up and strengthening our co-operative movement.

The College program includes thorough investigation of practical projects, with the idea of finding the best marketing and production economies, types of farm organization for special purposes, the training of young men to come up in the co-operative ranks, educational work for further development of the co-operative movement, and training farmers everywhere with the true principles of co-operation.

The education committee, under the leadership of the county agent, the boys and girls clubs, the institutes, and the farm bureau services to farmers, clubs, groups, Farm Bureaus and others.

There are the co-operative forces of the College Economists don't find the future of the co-operative movement, that knowledge will be disseminated to farmers throughout the state.

Robert Proctor, Ph. D.

The College program, especially for the benefit of the co-operative movement, will be carried out by the various branches of the College, as follows:
