What Prof. Horner Told the Michigan Milk Producers

YOUR ASS’N MUST BE JUDGED BY THE RESULTS IT GETS

You Have Made Your Market Better Than the U. S. As a Whole

1. My belief is that there has been an increase in the price of milk, the real price, of milk that can be used as profit by the organized dairy which has organized in the past and organized in the present. That price goes on the basis of the price of milk in the market, the price of milk that is delivered to the consumer.

2. There is a great deal of profit in the organized dairy, which is not only a profit to the producer, but a profit to the consumer. The organized dairy gives the consumer the benefit of the higher price, and that is the way it is worked out.

TRANSPORTATION—Immediate application of Michigan Zone

The Michigan Farm Bureau has been working for some time on a transportation problem that is of great importance to the farmers of the state. The problem centers around the issue of rail rates, particularly those affecting the shipment of Michigan produce to other parts of the country. The Farm Bureau has been advocating lower rates and better service to ensure that Michigan's agricultural products reach their destinations efficiently and cost-effectively.

The Farm Bureau's efforts have been recognized by the state's transportation officials, who have been working to address the concerns raised by the farmers. This cooperation between the Farm Bureau and the transportation authorities is a crucial step in ensuring that the state's agricultural sector remains competitive and viable.

It is imperative that the state's transportation infrastructure continues to evolve and improve, taking into consideration the needs of the state's farmers. The Farm Bureau's commitment to this issue, along with the continued efforts of the transportation sector, will undoubtedly result in a more efficient and cost-effective transportation system for Michigan's farmers.

POOR MICHIGAN AND RICH WISCONSIN

The disparity between Michigan and Wisconsin in terms of economic development and agricultural prosperity continues to be a topic of discussion. While Michigan faces challenges in terms of economic growth and agricultural conditions, Wisconsin has managed to maintain a strong agricultural sector, thanks in part to its favorable location and infrastructure. The Michigan Farm Bureau is optimistic about the state's future, with a focus on improving its transportation infrastructure and fostering growth in the agricultural sector.

The Farm Bureau's efforts to address these issues are crucial in ensuring that Michigan can compete effectively in the national and global markets. The state's farmers and agriculture-related businesses stand to benefit significantly from these initiatives, contributing to a more vibrant economy for all Michigan residents.
EDWARD REID URGES CAREFUL STUDY OF TAX-EXEMPT BONDS

Says Federal Constitutional Amendment Unnecessary. And Dangerous.

BIG TAX EVIL IS LOCAL

Charge Situation Believed By Farm Bureau Officials

Known as the moral evil which the tax-exempt bond is, the United Farm Bureau officials say, is the failure to provide for constructive economy in the name of charitable purposes. In the case of Michigan, they state, a number of the American Farm Bureau petitions have been filed in the Federal District Court at Detroit, by Mr. Samuel P. Powell, Attorney for the United Farm Bureau of Michigan.

"There are two aspects of this tax-exempt bond," said Mr. Powell. "One is the fact that it is really a tax on the individual, the other is the fact that it is also a tax on the community. The tax on the individual comes from the individual's income from the tax-exempt bond. The tax on the community comes from the fact that the Federal Government is paying for the cost of the bond, and not the community. The Federal Government is paying for the bond, and not the community, because of the fact that it is tax-exempt."

"In the case of the tax-exempt bond, the Federal Government is paying for the cost of the bond, and not the community, because of the fact that it is tax-exempt. Therefore, we have a tax on the individual, and a tax on the community."

The First Year — and Many Years Thereafter

Seed Sowing Operation In Foremost. Yields Food in

The first step in the reaping of the benefits of the new methods of farming is the sowing of the seed. This is the first step in the process of producing food. The seed is the foundation upon which the rest of the process is built.

The Michigan State Farm Bureau draws attention to the fact that the sowing of the seed is the foundation upon which the rest of the process is built. Without the proper sowing of the seed, the rest of the process cannot be successful.

When the Michigan State Farm Bureau draws attention to the fact that the sowing of the seed is the foundation upon which the rest of the process is built, it is not the first time that this has been said.
