FARMERS MAKE GOOD INSURANCE RECORDS IN FIRST 6 MONTHS

Business done in Michigan, during the first six months of the year, shows that the Bureau of Compensation of the State Farm Bureau had a more profitable year than usual. According to reports from the various counties, the total business handled by the bureau during the first six months amounted to $90,000,000, which is an increase of $15,000,000 over the corresponding period of last year. This increase is due to the fact that farmers are more interested in insurance than ever before, and are more willing to pay for it.

The bureau has made a study of the insurance market in Michigan, and has found that farmers are more willing to pay for insurance than they were five years ago. The bureau has also found that farmers are more willing to pay for insurance than they were five years ago.

Organization Means That Members Have Real Program And Power To Put It Across; Reports Keep Legislatures in Tow, Minute Men Were On Job

By STANLEY M. POWELL

Although the recent session of the Legislature may have failed to quell the agricultural awakening in Michigan, it is interesting and encouraging to note that at least a score of the bills presented by the Michigan State Farm Bureau were enacted into law and considerable progress was made by a dozen other measures which were planks in the bureau's legislative program. In the face of the rearguard action adopted by the last Legislature and the consequent increased representation from city districts, this may well be regarded as a truly markable showing.

Highlights among the agricultural achievements of the session were the following: the Horton-Brake Farm Tax exemption, the slab and half troy pound bonds, the Turner act to give special aid to needy school districts, the passing of the gauding laws for apples, potatoes and grapes, a Truth-in- Farming bill and favorable action on several agricultural appropriations.

Noted among the topics that have surfaced recently on the lower Iraq basin are frequent reports from the state of the numerous cases being handled by the Farm Bureau in its efforts to save the land.

Established in 1915, the Michigan Farm Bureau Federation is an organization of farmers and agricultural organizations committed to representing the interests of farmers and rural communities.

Agricultural issues are addressed through the advocacy of its members, who work together to address policy-making and legislative efforts at all levels of government.

The organization also promotes the importance of agriculture and rural communities through educational programs and public outreach initiatives.

Many Benefits Are Brought In To The Farm Home Through The Extension Courses For Women

By MRS. EDITH M. WALTER

Mrs. Walter is the County Agent for Huron County.

The women of Huron County are definitely waking up to the fact that modern agriculture is the foundation of our national economy.

The Farm Bureau plans to bring to the farm women of the county every phase of agricultural work, both in the fields and the barns.

The program includes classes in chicken raising, poultry care, and the economical use of labor.

The Farm Bureau is also working closely with the local Extension Services, which are providing women with valuable information about the latest developments in farm management.

Bureau's Requests

The Farm Bureau urges that every farmer become familiar with the legislation affecting his farm business and meet with his local representative to discuss these issues.

The Farm Bureau is working towards the passage of a bill that would provide for the establishment of a State Agricultural College in the county.

This is to help provide a more educated and informed farm population.

Country Buying of Live Stock by Packers

By S. A. McElroy

This week’s Michigan Live Stock News contains data on the activities of the four state-wide organizations which conduct the Live Stock Buying Program under the aegis of the State Farm Bureau. The data were compiled last week and the statistics for the next four weeks are included here.

LIVESTOCK IN WOODS OF MICHIGAN, PART III: GROWING TIMBER

The task of selling live stock at a fair price goes on all the year round. A man’s job is to get paid what he sells for his stock, not to make a profit out of it. The same applies to the selling of land. A man’s job is to get the highest price for his land, not to make a profit out of it. The same applies to the selling of land.

SEED CORN TEST SEEN NECESSARY

Seed Germination Quality Much Below Average

This season, some seed corn tested before planting showed low germination rates. The tests were made in cooperation with the Michigan State College and the Michigan State University. The results indicate an urgent need for better quality seed corn.

FARM BUREAU HAS BASE BALL LEAGUE

The first annual meeting of the Farm Bureau baseball league was held in Detroit last week. The league consists of four teams, each representing a different county in the state.

WITH THE COUNTY AGENTS

Commisions are now being handled by the Farm Bureau, together with the work of the County Farmers’ Institutes, which are scheduled for the next month. The work will mark the closing of the year for the Farm Bureau, and the institute will begin in January.

BROKERAGE TEST

A new system of brokerage is now being tried out in the state. It is expected that the system will help to reduce the cost of marketing live stock.
