The world is but a larger net caught in the same sea. What goes into the sea goes out, but if it is not caught by some, then there are some who are left out.

The present generation of farmers are fed up with the idea of making money. They do not want their children to be farmers. The world is not hungry now, and there isn’t any need for them to be farmers.

Promotion Idea Tends To Turn Bureau Meetings Over to Others

County Farmers Bureau and County Farm Bureau Services, Inc., have arranged for several of the state and federal agencies to make brief appearances at the meetings of the Bureau of county farmers. The idea has been well accepted by the public. The meetings of the Bureau are well attended by farmers and the public desire to have their meetings made more interesting.

EXPERIMENT STATION HORTICULTURISTS recommend fall fertilization for fruit trees. It conditions the trees. It gets the nitrogen down deep for the roots to feed on when spring growth starts. It gets the job out at the way of other spring work.

Because GRANULAR "AERO" CYANAMID is very resistant to leaching, you can apply it in the fall and have enough nitrogen to grow your crops well through the winter months.

Fertilizer can be applied either in a solid granular form or in a water-soluble form. The water-soluble form is most commonly used because it is easier to apply and the nitrogen is more quickly absorbed by the plant. It is also more easily monitored for over-fertilization.

One way to apply granular fertilizer is to broadcast it over the entire field and then use a fertilizer spreader to distribute it evenly. This method is effective for large fields but may not be practical for small gardens.

Another method is to dig a shallow furrow and then place the granules in the furrow. This method is more labor-intensive but allows for more precise control over the placement of the fertilizer.

Fertilizer can also be applied as a liquid solution. This method is more expensive but provides the advantage of more precise control over the amount and placement of the nitrogen.

The choice of method depends on factors such as the size of the field, the type of soil, and the specific needs of the crop. It is important to follow the manufacturer's instructions and to consider the environmental impact of the fertilizer application.

Tarnoff's Letter

August 7, 1939

The representatives of the Farm Bureau believe that in a democratic state, the prices for all agricultural products should be regulated in some way, not necessarily that the government should own or control anything, but that the world should decide what farmers and laborers can have. It is not at all clear how this can be done. This is a very serious problem.

The following test shows that dust-treating appliances of the type here mentioned are in fine shape, and there will be a splendid display of live stock, farm machinery, and agricultural exhibits. These announcements are made regarding the 1939 Fair:
