Who Will Control Agriculture?

By EUGENE A. SMALTZ

Michigan State College

During the past 500 years, man's power to control the flow of the world's food has been increasing, but the power of control has been gained at the expense of others. Today man can control the factors which determine food production, but the consequences of this control are now being felt by all nations.

Individuals and groups of people have always had disagreements, and communally, we have sometimes periodically. Most societies have had methods of maintaining order and discipline, as has been the case with our own society. For example, in modern society, the police power is used to maintain order.

We have attempted to control individuals by several general Developments, and in the last century, we have developed the idea that the state should engage in the production of certain services and public welfare. This was done in an effort to provide a more equitable distribution of wealth and to bring about a more just society.

The amendment of constitutional law under which the state limits the right to property and right to privacy has been developed. This amendment has been interpreted to mean that the state has the right to regulate the production and distribution of certain services and public welfare in the public welfare.

The growth of government has come as a result of the increasing number of citizens in our modern society. Health and sanitary laws have been added to maintain the necessary conditions for the public welfare. These laws have had a direct influence on our present society and public welfare, and have contributed to the betterment of lives.

But the trend is towards more strict regulations and controls of modern economic life, as has been the case in the past. As exceptions to the rules of the game, the individual is regarded as a part of the state, and the state is held responsible for the individual's welfare.

Questions for Discussion:

1. Who should determine the production and control programs?

2. Who are the beneficiaries of the control programs?

3. How can the control programs be made equitable?

4. What are the consequences of the control programs?

FARM BUREAU MEMBERS NAMED TO AID VETERANS

The Michigan Farm Bureau has named 10 members to aid veterans in every phase of the post-war period. Several of the veterans have been appointed to aid the bureau in its work for its effective influence in national farm affairs. Frank B. Thompson, of Ingham, Michigan, is chairman of the committee named to aid veterans.

FEEDING the many thousands of new members of the Farm Bureau. Greetings to the many thousands of old members of the Farm Bureau who have so faithfully supported the Farm Bureau feed, seeds, fertilizers, petroleum products and other service programs.

A Caution and a Promise

We want you new Farm Bureau members who have not fed Farm Bureau feeds to be able to get them as you need them. Many of you are using Farm Bureau feeds now. But due to conditions beyond our control, you may find it impossible at times to get Farm Bureau feeds from your dealer.

This condition will pass in time. A year ago the Farm Bureau Milling Company leased and has in operation a feed mill at Hammond, Indiana. It has manufacturing capacity to take care of the needs of Farm Bureau members in Michigan, Illinois, Indiana and Kentucky. The problem is to get materials and labor in the quantities needed.

We are doing our best to catch up to the enormous demands placed upon us. We'll make it some day. In the meantime, we ask your patience. Ask for Farm Bureau Mermash poultry feeds, Farm Bureau milk makes concentrated Pormkornkage. Prepare the way for the day when we can make an unlimited tonnage of feed for you.

Don't blame the feed dealer if he can't always supply you right now. The demand for feed is above the supply. Our program is your program. Let's build it!
