Tell's About Gratit in the Early Days

By E. W. Redman

We found out in the 1920's that farmers in Michigan were highly dependent upon the forests in the state for building materials. Many farmers and their families worked in logging camps, cutting timber ready for the mills. As St. Louis became larger, it was necessary to buy more lumber, and this led to the development of the logging industry in Michigan.

Their boats carried pine roots and other hardwoods from the deep forests, and their work was often dangerous. Wild ducks, geese, turkeys and other wildlife were abundant in the area, providing food for the workers who were often away from the farms for long periods.

The logging industry was also a source of income for many farmers, and it played a significant role in the development of the state's economy. The forests in Michigan were a valuable resource, and they continue to be an important part of the state's landscape and economy today.

Mrs. Wagner To Be Up in June

Mrs. Edith G. Wagner of Detroit, a native of Michigan, is the recipient of a letter from Michigan State University. The letter was written by the university's principal, Dr. John W. O'Day.

"The Face Is Familiar"

Producers of fresh fruits and vegetables, like the producers of practically everything else are being called for on for increased supplies.

This same thing happened during the last war, and growers and distributors delivered the goods. As a result, the produce industry earned and has held a position of greater importance in the national food picture.

Once again the produce industry is faced with the responsibility of improving its position.

This situation calls for practical application of the very same principles progressive groups have been emphasizing for years. These fundamental principles are not revolutionary, or even new. But they are essential to the successful completion of the job at hand:

1. The production of varieties most useful in meeting the nation's food needs.
2. Increased efficiency in every phase of production, grading and packing
3. Constant efforts by growers and distributors to eliminate damage, waste and spoilage.
4. Constant efforts by growers and distributors to get produce to the consumer at the peak of its quality and freshness.
5. Constant efforts to improve the distribution process by shortening the route, reducing handling and speeding movement.
6. More effective advertising and promotion of produce to create more uses and greater demand.

In other words, the situation calls for constant, cooperative efforts involving every segment of the industry, and covering every step between the production of produce and the consumer. It is the responsibility of the produce industry to meet this new responsibility and promote its future well-being.

Done at request of F.B. Insurance Agents

At the request of Farm Bureau Mutual Insurance Co., the agents time the accepting charter policy reservations for the proposed Farm Bureau Life Insurance Company has been extended to June 30, 1951.

The goal for the new company is to make $20,000,000 in charter policy reservations from Farm Bureau members. At this time MPF members have asked for nearly $10,000,000 in charter policy reservations.

Each of the 140 Farm Bureau Mutual Insurance Co. agents has pledged himself to secure an additional $100,000 in charter policy reservations during May. That would total $1,400,000.

More than 300 people on County Farm Bureau Life insurance committees are at work to promote the solicitation they have been doing so well. The task of calling upon each of 46,000 Farm Bureau families is well under way.

Nile Vermillion of the Farm Bureau Mutual Insurance Company said it is desired to get $20,000,000 in charter policy reservations in order to secure the life insurance company the most promising start.

Big Decline in Rural Population

An article in the April issue of the Farm Journal and Farmers' Wife indicates that between 1920 and 1940 rural farm population has declined 7.2%. As a result the number of life insurance policyholders in the United States has decreased as a result of the total population in the United States.

The city population, however, has increased 1.7%, during the same period. The Department of Agriculture figures for the rural farm population have been revised upwards by the U.S. Bureau of the Census. The number of rural farm policyholders before 1920 was about 183,000. This number continued to grow until 1940 when it reached about 183,000. The 1930 census indicated that the rural farm population was 160,000, comprised by a reducing farm population which are to provide the necessary food production, may become a serious problem.

With the advent of April, a new voice in bringing the dairy farmers throughout their own American dairy community will be heard. The new voice is in addition to the voice of the National Milk Producers Federation which has been heard on radio and television for many years. It is a voice of real farm representation and real farm service, a voice that speaks the language of farm men.

The voice is the voice of the National Dairymen’s Association and will be heard on radio stations around the country.
