Holden's Idea Started New Corn Industry

By MARKLEY M. POWELL

Michigan's financial crisis has gone from bad to worse. When the Supreme Court, by a 3 to 3 vote, declared the increase of the use tax rate from 3c to 4c unconstitutional, it meant that the Legislature had to start all over again right where they had been January, instead of finding new revenue for the state.

It had been anticipated that increasing the use tax rate would produce about $38,000,000 in excess revenue per month. Since fiscal administrators had predicted that the current use tax rate would bring in $38,000,000 in excess revenue per month, the state officials had expected a $58,000,000 surplus from the use tax revenue for the current year. This surplus would be used in increasing total state appropriations, which had been cut by $15,000,000 because of the state's general fund deficit, which is in the neighborhood of $500,000,000.

The Supreme Court decision on November 19 ruled that the Michigan Legislature had exceeded its power in increasing the use tax rate. The Legislature has since been forced to start all over again with the problem of finding new revenue for the state.

What's Legislature Going to Do Now?

The Michigan Legislature has been forced to start all over again with the problem of finding new revenue for the state. With the Supreme Court decision on November 19 ruling that the Michigan Legislature had exceeded its power in increasing the use tax rate, the Legislature has been forced to start all over again with the problem of finding new revenue for the state.

Memberships for 1969 are coming in. Does not anyone have all gone out. The results are adding up to a respectable total. As of October 29, we have recorded in the State Office 13,649 Farm Bureau members for 1969. I'm sure there are more in the county offices. The goal for 1969 is 27,927 members.

Plans for the coming membership drive are taking shape. Many are working on Roll Call and are confident that the job should can be accomplished. January 4 is our state-wide kick-off day.

Roll Call teams in each county are busy preparing themselves. Training meetings for Roll Call Managers and others in the membership drive were completed during the last of September and early October.

Following training meetings were being held the last of October or the first of November. There important because informed workers are a convenient and enthusiastic worker.

MONEY TREE?

Cow Sitters Give Farmers Vacations

Many dairy farmers will tell you that they have the problem of finding help when they want a vacation. Some have even been known to hire sitters to help them work on their farms when they need the help. The idea is starting to catch on, as dairymen are now hiring professional dairy farmers to help them with their farms. The Dairy "sitter" will be in charge of the farm while the farmers are away on vacation.

Upper Peninsula Area Give Great Contrasts

The Upper Peninsula is a region with a diverse range of landscapes, from forests to mountains to lakes. It is a popular destination for tourists and residents alike who enjoy outdoor activities such as hiking, fishing, and hunting. The area is also known for its rich history, including the mining that was once a major industry here. The Upper Peninsula is a great place to visit for those looking for a unique travel experience.

Do We Have Surplus?

The three million acres of farmland in the Upper Peninsula are currently producing a surplus of wheat, corn, and other crops. This surplus is not likely to continue, as the demand for food is increasing worldwide. The U.S. government has been providing subsidies to farmers to encourage production, but these subsidies are not sustainable in the long term.

“An advantage that the area is the fact that over the years it has managed to attract people from all walks of life, including retirees, families, and young professionals.”

This woman, who rules her own little domain, is not just any woman. She is the president of the local Women's Christian Temperance Union, and she has been a member of the organization for 22 years. She is also the mother of three children, ages 10, 12, and 15.

The Local Women's Christian Temperance Union, or WCTU, is a religious organization that works to promote temperance, or abstinence from alcohol and other addictive substances. The organization was founded in 1874 by Carrie A. Nation, a Kansas woman who became known as the "Screwdriver Woman" for her use of a screwdriver to break into saloons.

WCTU chapters are found in many communities across the United States, and they work to promote moral and social reform through public education, political action, and community service. The local chapter in this woman's community meets on the first and third Tuesday of each month, and they have a membership of 50 women.

The woman is also active in other community organizations, including the local Red Cross and the local PTA. She is a member of the local church and is an active volunteers at the local food bank. She is a role model for her children and for other women in the community, showing that it is possible to be active in community affairs and still be a good parent.

The WCTU is not a large organization compared to other religious groups, but it has a long history of working to promote social justice and moral values. The organization has faced many challenges over the years, including censorship and discrimination, but it continues to be an important voice in the community.

District 11

Mrs. Ken Coreyi, Chairman

Chippewa County Women's Committee met September 9 at the Bank of America, 400 Division Street. The program included a fascinating slide-illustrated talk on the life of a woman who worked on the front lines of the Civil War. The program was read by Dr. Susan Brownell, a history professor at Michigan State University.

The meeting was held in cooperation with the Women's History Committee of the Michigan State University and the Michigan Farm Bureau. This was the second meeting of the District 11 Women's Committee, held in October.

For the past 5 years, the Ass'n has been growing strong enough for management. At first, the members were to be chosen only by the Ass'n, and the farmers were to be chosen in cooperation with the Ass'n. The farmers were to be chosen in cooperation with the Ass'n.

The Michigan Ass'n of Farmers Cooperatives is a non-profit organization that was founded in 1925. The Ass'n has 73 local farmers' cooperatives as members, including 73 local farmers' cooperatives as members. The Ass'n is headquartered in Lansing, Michigan.

The Ass'n is a member of the National Farmers Cooperative Federation, which is a national organization that represents farmers' cooperatives. The Ass'n is also a member of the Michigan Farm Bureau, which is a state-level organization that represents farmers in Michigan.

The Ass'n has a long history of working to promote the interests of farmers in Michigan. The Ass'n has helped farmers to organize cooperatives, to negotiate better prices for their products, and to gain access to credit.

The Ass'n has also worked to promote the interests of farmers in the Michigan government. The Ass'n has lobbied for legislation that would help farmers, and it has provided testimony at hearings on agricultural issues.

The Ass'n is an important voice in the Michigan agricultural community, and it is an important advocate for the rights of farmers in Michigan.

Community Farm Bureau Discussion Topic for November

Background Material for Program in November by Our 1620 Community Farm Bureau Discussion Groups

DONALD D. KINSEY
Coordinator of Education and Research

Farm Bureau delegates in convention last December passed the following resolution:

"The framers of our Constitution never intended that there should be vested in the Supreme Court of the United States the power to legislate, to control the powers of the states, or to declare unconstitutional acts of the states. Our Constitution was drafted and adopted by a people who desired to have an independent judiciary. The framers of the Constitution made it clear that the power of the Supreme Court was limited to judicial matters and that it had no power to control the legislative or executive branches of the government."

These attitudes destroy the system of checks and balances which is a fundamental concept of the Constitution.

"We therefore recommend: (1) That Congress pass amendments to the Constitution which will give Congress the power to override decisions of the Supreme Court which are contrary to our national needs; (2) That Congress utilize its powers to enact either corrective or conforming legislation in those fields where the Supreme Court has invaded the legislative sphere."

This article shall outline some of the background developments which prompted the delegates to pass such a resolution.

Public Revolt Grows

Numerous decisions of the Supreme Court during the past three years have aroused the public to the extent that the Constitution is today under attack as never before.

"We therefore recommend: (1) That Congress pass amendments to the Constitution which will give Congress the power to override decisions of the Supreme Court which are contrary to our national needs; (2) That Congress utilize its powers to enact either corrective or conforming legislation in those fields where the Supreme Court has invaded the legislative sphere."

Laws vs. Decisions

Decisions of the Supreme Court do not become law. These decisions only apply to the specific cases for which they have been decided. They cannot be enforced against anyone until Congress passes a law which says what the decision means.

The Constitution Assigns Powers

The Constitution was drafted primarily to prevent the growth of a strong central government at the expense of the states. It was designed to create a federal system of government in which power was divided between a national government and the states. The framers knew that if power were not divided between the national and state governments, the national government would come to control the states.

The Supreme Court decided in 1932 that it had the power to decide whether a particular law is constitutional. This gave the Supreme Court the power to declare laws passed by Congress unconstitutional. This power has been used by the Supreme Court to declare laws passed by Congress unconstitutional.

The Constitution itself grants the power of judicial review to the Supreme Court. This power has been used by the Supreme Court to declare laws passed by Congress unconstitutional.

The Constitution grants the power of judicial review to the Supreme Court. This power has been used by the Supreme Court to declare laws passed by Congress unconstitutional.

The Constitution grants the power of judicial review to the Supreme Court. This power has been used by the Supreme Court to declare laws passed by Congress unconstitutional.

Fed. @ au agent

It is important to understand that the power of judicial review is a power that the Supreme Court has been given by the Constitution. It is not a power that the Supreme Court has created for itself.

The Constitution grants the power of judicial review to the Supreme Court. This power has been used by the Supreme Court to declare laws passed by Congress unconstitutional.
