Campaigns Move to Closing Days of Congress

ATTENTION CENRS

Where Both Candidates for President and Those in Management Will Deal With Issues

DAN E. REED

American Legislative Economic Development

The U.S. Senate will convene August 8th following the recess for the national political conventions. At no time in the recent history of our nation has the political issue been focused as sharply as it is this year on the United States Senate.

Both candidates for President and one candidate for Vice-President in the House chamber! Both campaign themes are: Senators. Observers say the remaining days of the 88th Congress will be an important part of the political campaign.

Second place in the Washington spotlight goes to the House of Representatives, which will reconvene on August 15. While only one-third of the Senators’ terms expire this year, every House member is either seeking re-election or has announced his retirement.

The desire of candidates to make a record on which to campaign will be watched by voters, who will go to the polls in November. Bill talks in expectation of a Presidential veto may be looked on as sand. Many candidates feel that a successful campaign ticket is one which can get the bill through the House if it is good or work the bill through the Senate if it is bad.

In unfinished business, facing Congress when it reconvenes in September, is legislation for the next fiscal year. Some bills have been passed and are in committees or awaiting action in the Senate. Other unfinished business, including bills that have been passed by both the Senate and the House, is probably bills that will be introduced to carry out some of the plant improvement proposals and other recommendations of the House. There is a brief summary of some issues that may receive consideration:

Makes $1,000 Colonial Rug

V. J. McNeil, Mrs. Lee Van Bokel, Miss. Marie Bradfield, and Mrs. Eugene Burgunder have been busy in their efforts to finish the rug which sold for $1,000 at the Strawberry King Sale.

The rug measures 36 inches by 72 inches and is composed of 5 different shades of brown. It is a large rug of this size. The rug is reversible and the back of the rug is as attractive as the front.

The rug is a typical colonial rug and is designed in a square pattern with a rope design. It is woven in various shades of brown and is a beautiful rug that will be a fine addition to any home.

Vol. 38, No. 8 38th Campaign of 1919 and 1920 and the early years of the Farm Bureau movement. It brought local leaders and state officers to recognize that the member must be encouraged to be actively interested in the welfare of the members and build a strong organization.

The responsibility must originate with the member rather than with his state organization in order to build a strong and truly representative Farm Bureau.

Accordingly, in 1925 and 1926 for the first time the membership of the Farm Bureau was conducted entirely by volunteer teams of local men and women. We dispensed with paid solicitors from the state office.

County and community leaders, assisted by officials and staff of the Michigan Farm Bureau, have devoted years of effort to achieve the member’s activity and responsibility we know today.

Through the Community Farm Bureau and County Committees, members now deal monthly with their neighbors on the farm, and community including legislation, public affairs, membership, commodity programs, and other questions of member concern.

The monthly programs of 1500 Community Groups are the result of 700 resolutions from which the policies of the County and State Farm Bureau are formulated.

County Farm Bureaus are among the networks of men training and preparing government agencies within the county.

Through these programs member initiative determines the leadership of state and national organizations which converts the influence that makes them effective.

It enables directors and officers to speak with authority in opposing such measures as a state constitution convention, and the recent Peace wheat bill in Congress, as reported in the Michigan Farm Bureau.

These are still busy days in Farm Bureau, as well as on the farm. However, I am sure that the farm has the greatest activity these summer months.

As we closed our books for July, the membership picture looked something like this—a total of 70,754 farm families have made the decision for membership in the largest farm organization in Michigan. This is 96.8% of goal. A real good job in view of the many obstacles this past year... I think we can come through this and make a real good job of it.

In the July issue of our magazine, Farm Bureau News, you will see that 1,000 members in a division help keep these mailings going, and the amount per acre through a mail shot is 25 cents.

President's Column

DELAWARE Farm Bureau has just concluded its legislative program in the State House and is now busy preparing for the 1962 legislative session. The Barn Foundation is also engaged in expanding its activities in the state.

The Farm Bureau's growth in influence and service to the farm community has been extraordinary.

CONCESSIONS Camps Move To Closing Days of Congress

The Farm Bureau's plan, which would provide 85% of prices paid for wheat and more controls and subsidies.

The bill was defeated 23 to 170.

The Farm Bureau will continue to urge the enactment of the Farm Bureau plan, which would gradually lower price supports and move toward less control of farm operations.

With the wheel bill as with all other policies, the Farm Bureau is working to protect the voluntary action of farm people.

Standfast adherence to this principle has made our organization one of the strongest agencies in the nation for the preservation of human freedom. It has attained this status through the exercise of the individual responsibilities of its members.

The Farm Bureau's influence and service has paralleled the increased in informed membership, and the reorganization of the new.

The Michigan Farm Bureau's progress in the future will be measured by the increase in informed membership and again by the responsibilities they assume.

The Farm Bureau ideal was well expressed by Mrs. Arthur B. Wheeler, chairman of the Farm Bureau for the District 7, in her address on "Women Look to Christianity" at the Clergy-Farm Bureau Conference.

She said, "At no time in history have people kept their freedom, including their religious freedom, when the majority of people came to rest in a central government system."

As St. Paul wrote the Corinthians, "Where the spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty."

Today we can overcome gravity, make stars in the spaces of the universe, energy out of a grain of sand, cure tuberculosis.

We can prevent polo, breed cows from dead bull, see beyond the clouds, use hormones to make a male or female out of a fertilized egg.

We can cause insects to destroy their own race. Drop a bomb on a target on the other side of the world, speak into a box and be heard by millions, control the evolution of a superior seed, improve soils by using them, cover the earth with food and feed on...

... Each day brings forth new magic. Miracles have become commonplace. Tomorrow we cover the earth with more people, more masses of a creature that can prevent polio, breed cows from dead bull, see beyond the clouds, use hormones to make a male or female out of a fertilized egg.

Four years of Michigan University studies are not enough to solve the problem of the "American voter." Among the many factors contributing to the underachievement of this element in our democracy, it is stated, is the lack of political education in schools. The problem is not new. A study of the 1844 presidential campaign in "The American Voter" by American University indicates that the lack of political education is a"...problem that has been around for a long time."

In the 1920s, it was a problem that was not taken seriously. The "American voter" was perceived as a "apolitical" individual who was not involved in the political process. The study of the "American voter" suggests that the lack of political education is not a new phenomenon. DONALD D. KINSEY
Coordinator of Editorial Research

Community Farm Bureau were developed 24 years ago. They provide a direct OPPORTUNITY for members to take an active role in building Farm Bureau. But opportunity must be grasped personally to yield any benefit. The seed of opportunity must fall on fertile ground. The member must desire to make a commitment and to provide a PERSONAL RESPONSIBILITY for success.

Some ventures were roved fatal to the young organization. The member must desire to make a commitment and to provide a PERSONAL RESPONSIBILITY for success.

Voluntary

Organization work was carried out by the County Farm Bureaus. They offered to help members increase their awareness of and to provide more avenues for membership to the group to live and work up programs.

Benefits? Benefits to members? They are many. An effective relationship of the two men discussing this proposition. They agreed that the missing link to success is the participation of others. The program was too remote - too far away. The program had to be personal and make a connection with the problems and opportunities of the area. The members who had taken part in the program were now more willing to participate in the program. Some of the benefits of the program were:

1. Increased knowledge
2. Improved leadership
3. Increased personal growth
4. Improved relationships
5. Improved organizational skills
6. Increased community involvement
7. Increased public relations
8. Increased membership

Increasing the Power to Do

For three Lansing area school elections... South school district voters approved a 13 mill tax proposal for construction of a new school. The proposal was approved by a vote of 1,120-600, an estimated net gain of 1,300 new students. Let's not leave this story with a lingering point at North Lansing. It is only an example. Since we'll discuss many sections of fundamental American citizenship, it will not be found in many of the textbooks. Responsible citizens will, at least, show enough interest in local and state issues and needs to vote.

The result was the best-attended school bond issue in North Lansing that year. A sum of $5,000,000 was raised. The next bond issue proposal would increase the record for every other bond issue market. The vote was only three years old. Voters were warned about the bond issue being a necessary part of any bond issue market. The result was the best-attended school bond issue in North Lansing that year. A sum of $5,000,000 was raised.
