Variety Is Keynote

History will record that the recent 43rd annual meeting of the Michigan Farm Bureau, November 7-8-9 was a colorful, constructive and smoothly conducted business and information meeting.

Work of the convention ranged from presentation of four awards for Distinguished Service to Michigan Agriculture, an appearance by Governor-elect George Romney, outstanding talks by prominent speakers and a resolution session that was classic for its serious considertrophies, with Iron county awarded a traveling-trophy for securing the highest percentage of goal by January 15. Other counties in the top-winner's circle were Charlevoix and Antrim counties in second and third position.

Counties receiving trophies for the highest percentage of membership maintenance for the year were Menominee, Washtenaw and Wexford, in that order. Menominee set an unprecedented record with 100% re-enrollment of its previous year's membership.

Banquet Talk Well Received

In a hard-hitting speech before the large crowd attending the evening banquet program of the 43rd annual meeting of the Michigan Farm Bureau, Nov. 7, Roger Fleming, Secretary-Treasurer of the American Farm Bureau defended the market-price system against "supply-managers."

He said that despite recent set-backs, the objectives of these Washington "controllers" remain constant

"Don't be fooled," Fleming said. "Recent defeats handed to Secretary of Agriculture Freeman and the controllers who surround him have not deterred them from their basic objective of managing the farms of America from Washington. They may call their approach new, but it will be the same old 'supply management' by government.'

He itemized for the farmers and their families the ways in which the Congress and farmers had "taken the bloom off the government control rose."

In 1962, the most significant setback to the planners and price fixers, he said, came when Congress defeated compulsory feed grain controls and cow quotas.

Then, he added, wheat growers dramatically reduced the percentage by which they approved wheat allotments in referendum, an indication, he said, that the wheat producers

Relief for property taxpayers was a major recommendation at the 43rd annual meeting of the Michigan Farm Bureau, November 7-8-9 at Michigan State University.

Farm Bureau delegates in their resolution on tax reforms urged repeal of the personal property tax, lowering of the general property tax, and other changes.

They set very strict conditions upon any call for a state income tax. Foremost, they said it must bring relief to the property tax picture.

They looked favorably on a broad-based, flat rate state income tax as the most equitable method of replacing tax revenues lost. The resolution carried by a 3 to 2 majority.

The State Resolutions Committee laid it on the line when it described what is happening to property taxpayers, and what should be done about it.

No one can state it better than the resolution itself, which the delegates debated more than an hour, and adopted as presented:

- Tax Reform -

"Tax Reform. Michigan has had many tax studies, all of which agree on one thing, Property is carrying too great a share of the costs of government.

"Farm Bureau's study shows that property is now paying more than 47% of all taxes in the State, even though the increased 4% sales tax yields 23% of the total taxes.

"Property taxes for schools are nearly five times those for 1948. Township taxes are up approximately six times.

Walter W. Wightman, president of the Michigan Farm Bureau, challenged Delegates and guests to examine farm problems in the light of world conditions. He pointed to problems faced by American farmers if they are to hold their place in a troubled world.

"We must find means to help others to better use their own resources to raise themselves to our own level, or they will surely pull us down to theirs." he said. His entire address was broadcast at time of delivery and a portion was televised.

Romney's "off - the - cuff" remarks were enthusiastically received with prolonged applause. "I share the basic philosophical convictions that Farm Bureau has expressed," he said. "I am convinced we will be further ahead by solving our own problems than by having them shifted to Washington."

He said he disagreed with those who feel the interests of rural people are fundamentally different from those who live in metropolitan urban areas.

Wightman (center), Farm Bureau President, made the presentations before an overflow crowd attending the annual banquet held in the Big Ten Room of Kellogg Center, Michigan State University, Wednesday night, November 7.

Governor-Elect Romney Visits

GOVERNOR-ELECT .-- George Romney told the annual meeting delegates, who had taken time out from a busy schedule of policy recommendations, that Michigan's great product diversity makes it a favorite agricultural state. But, he said, its vigor depends on a high state economic level because a large percentage of its agricultural output is sold within the state itself. He said he disagreed with those who feel that the interests of rural people are fundamentally different from those who live in the metropolitan urban areas. "There is a need for a fresh new approach as American citizens," Romney said. There was general favorable reaction to his impromptu 15-minute speech.

A.F.B.F. Secretary Fleming Speaks

ROGER FLEMING,-Secretary of the American Farm Bureau Federation, and head of the Washington office, is pictured making the featured address before the more than 900 persons who attended the annual Banquet program. Fleming reported on national farm legislation of concern to Michigan farmers. In an earlier televised press interview, Fleming stated that in the Nov. 6 elections, "Those Congressmen who supported Farm Bureau's position in opposition to increased government intervention in agriculture, did very well at the polls." He indicated that where voters had a clear-cut choice between candidates favoring more, or less government farm controls, they favored more freedom for agriculture.

State Income Tax? A Big IF

Mention the word "tax" and most people flash a red light. And if the term is "tax reform," it helps but little. People have a feeling that "reform" programs usually cost more money these days.

Some news reports have it that the Michigan Farm Bureau delegates recently came out in favor of a state income tax. Without qualifying that statement very strictly, it cannot stand as true.

Farmers and other property owners are floundering in a quicksand bog of taxation on property. After long and vigorous debate, the Michigan Farm Bureau delegates finally approved a flat rate state income tax - on condition.

They pointed out that property is now paying 47% of all taxes in the state in spite of the sales tax yield of 23%. The rate of rise in property taxes is enough to set off the alarm bell. School taxes are up nearly five times the level of 1948 and township taxes up nearly six times.

Farmers are hardest hit. Property taxes take from two to three times more of their income than is the case for other groups. Some farmers are having to "divvy up" as much as 17% of their income to pay the property tax bills.

For over ten years, farm property taxes have been rising at the average rate of 9 per cent per year. Net farm incomes have been shrinking due to rising costs of operation.

The property tax picture has been a very real part of the cost-price squeeze faced by farmers. Taxes have to be added to the farmer's 'costs of operation.

Population expansion and suburbanization create unprecedented demands for new schools, streets, sewers, water service, police and fire protection the services of a new city.

New properties in such areas often go untaxed for two years. The farmer is asked to carry this load meanwhile. There are overbalanced assessments of farm lands as compared to urban property. All this spells tax disaster to many a farmer.

Economists declare that property taxes have only one way to go under our present Michigan tax system-UP. County and local governments have no other basis of revenue. But such revenue at its present rate of inflation can totally burst the farmer's income balloon.

Hence a number of BIG IF's set forth by the Michigan Farm Bureau delegates. Some people fear an outright tax hunger by government people with little regard for the impact on taxpayers - a taking of more without surrendering anything they already have.

Robert C. Woodworth of Minneapolis, a member of the Agricul-National Chamber's ture Committee, said:

"Though it is seldom mentioned, an acceptance of continued migration from farm to city has been implicit in most of our agricultural legislation to date. It is inherent in the theory of price supports.

"Certainly, supports benefit most those who produce the most, and least those who produce the least.

Great Annual Meetings

President's Column

Another year has come and gone, and with it, the 43rd Annual Meeting of the Michigan Farm Bureau.

This annual meeting was unique in some respects and somewhat different from most any other meet-

Walter Wightman ing in the past. It seems to those of us who were in a position to observe what was going on, the meeting registered much more enthusiasm than any we had seen in a long time.

This was demonstrated by the fact that we undoubtedly had the largest attendance we ever have had in the history of the organization. The annual banquet held on Wednesday, November 7th, was attended by over 900 people.

There were many interesting features in the 3day convention, but perhaps the most important of all was the discussion and the voting upon resolutions. Members of the Michigan Farm Bureau Resolutions Committee are chosen from each of the regions in the state.

They spend usually a total of 6 days, at different times, analyzing the resolution process and the many resolutions that come in from the 71 organized counties in the state. This year about 100 more resolutions came in from counties, making a total of nearly 1,000 county resolutions.

From this large volume of material, the Resolutions Committee worked long hours dissecting, digesting and developing resolutions as they thought would conform to the expressions of the counties.

Eventually, the State Resolutions Committee succeeded in developing 128 resolutions on state and national legislation and on Michigan Farm Bureau policy. These were presented to the delegate body which discussed them and passed or rejected them as they saw fit.

Some were amended, some were rejected. Some resolutions were laid on the table for further consideration some other time.

Those resolutions accepted by the Delegates, now move to the American Farm Bureau Resolutions Committee, in Atlanta, Georgia. There, I will join with 49 other state Farm Bureau Presidents making up the Committee. We will begin discussion December 3 and work to develop a nation-wide book of proposed resolutions for consideration of Delegates to the national convention.

The American Farm Bureau Convention begins with Vesper Services Sunday, December 9, and continues through Thursday, December 13.

Here again, resolutions will be passed, accepted,

-The Chicago Daily Drovers Journal Farm Bureau Public Information Program

In resolutions adopted at the recent 43rd annual meeting of the Michigan Farm Bureau, voting delegates recognized the need for a continued program of farm public relations. They noted that much is being done by other groups to distort the image of agriculture and of the farmer, in the public mind. They stated that "We are gratified" with the progress shown by the Michigan Farm Bureau and encouraged such work to continue and expand.

M.F.B. Convention delegates agreed and adopted a proposed resolution focusing attention on the public debt of more than $300 billion. The debt limit was raised three times in the past two years.

Nearly $15 million of this "Taxpayers' Money" is sought by Michigan municipalities to help them build sewage treatment works. A little more than $2½ million was allocated to Michigan this year. At that rate, it will be five years beRoad, Highway Resolutions Attract Delegate Attention

The concern farmers feel toward road and highway problems was evident in the close attention voting delegates to the recent 43rd annual meeting of the Michigan Farm Bureau, gave to fifteen resolutions dealing with such diverse topics as highway safety, proper signs and road markers, and "throwaway bottles."

"Mackinac Bridge. There is a growing sentiment that present tolls at the Mackinac Bridge are excessive and that a way should be found to make the services of the bridge available at decreased cost."

Local governments and schools might get some means of changing the picture if a permissive law were passed to allow local taxes on income. But any such tax proposal should be voted on by the people rather than imposed by officials, said the delegates.

They set very strict conditions upon any nod toward a state income tax. It must bring relief to the property tax picture. Taxes on personal property and business activities must be repealed, if the income tax is adopted.

The delegate action gives the Michigan Farm Bureau a definite stand in case a proposal for an income tax is thrown on the floor of the Legislature in the future. And this is a very likely development. Labor has strongly favored a graduated income tax and has urged action for such a tax.

When you come right down to it, Farm Bureau delegates do not favor any form of state income tax, as such. Rather, there is a cautious acceptance of such a tax only if it can be used to ease the increasingly desperate situation facing property. D. K.

Horton Hunter Trespass Act

"In the Horton Hunter Trespass Act, Michigan farmers have a legal tool to control hunting on farms and farm woodlots," said the 1962 M.F.B. Convention.

Delegates pointed out that a complaint against trespassing hunters can be made any time up to a year from the date of trespass. Back tag or car license may provide identification.

To create respect for the Horton law, farmers must be willing to carry through with the prosecution of violators Posting of land is not a legal requirement for the control of hunting on farms.

Among those who will probably have more respect for the need to "ask the farmer first" are two hunters in Eaton County who each paid $9.30 and court costs in Charlotte Municipal Court. The men pleaded guilty to trespassing while hunting on October 20 and were arraigned on November 8.

With that observation, delegates at the annual meeting looked favorably on a provision in the proposed new State Constitution.

In it, the Legislature may authorize the state to borrow money to refund the Mackinac Bridge Authority bonds. Operations of the bridge would then be assumed by the State Highway Department.

Elsewhere they observed:

Highway signs. Let's have all new numbered signs erected on State highways marked for North, South, East or West.

We urge blacktop roads be marked with white lines on the outside and down the center, and a center yellow line on hills and curves where roads merit this action.

Throw-away bottles are a public nuisance! A costly hazard to tires, farm livestock and a danger to children and adults. We ask the Legislature to require all glass-bottled beverages sold in Michigan to be delivered in returnable bottles with a deposit value of five cents a bottle or more.

Driver Education. We urge Michigan State University to reinstate its course for training instructors for driver education courses in high schools. Persons who have taken this course are better drivers and have fewer accidents.

Rights of Way. We oppose any change in laws which would make it more difficult and expensive for the property owner to protect his rights.

Safety. We recommend that farmers eliminate the practice of using rural roads for headlands, and planting corn on the right of way at intersections.

Drunk Drivers. Present laws covering drunk drivers are inadequate and unworkable. We support the Uniform Traffic Code regarding drunk drivers.

Littering. We urge strict enforcement of littering laws covering highways, parks, public and private property, and more signs to state the penalties. We approve signs showing location of litter barrels.

various combinations of these elements.

"Meanwhile, the free and effective marketing agencies have been progressively impaired; agricultural production and marketing at home and abroad have been progressively distorted and disrupted; everincreasing costs of federal farm programs have burdened the economy; and the taxpayer. and even farmers themselves, have become disillusioned by what seems to them to have degenerated into a political tug of war.

"Now they find themselves, as do consumers, threatened or menaced with a scheme of complete regimentation by the coercive state in the name of solving the farm problem.

Examining The Road Ahead

"It is pretty clear that farmers have come themselves, as businessmen and as citizens, to dilemma, to a showdown from which there are only two ways to go.

"One is the hard realistic way of facing up to markets, learning to live with them, to adjust their costs and their operations accordingly.

"The other is to go the fancy road that they are being lured into by the notion that somehow government should take this whole thing over and run

"For some time we've been puzzled by the farm program. Not merely confused by the doubtful economic logic of the whole program, but by the vague misleading verbiage and used in explaining it . . . A short course in concise report writing might be required for all civil service employees so that all rules might be easily read and understood.

amended or rejected as is done in the state. This along with many outstanding speakers and other programs connected with the American Farm Bureau Convention makes it one of the most impressive affairs that any person with an interest in agriculture could attend.

The American Farm Bureau Federation has had a profound influence on national legislation, and particularly that part that affects agriculture.

There isn't any question but what the American Farm Bureau Federation is recognized today as the strongest national farm organization that exists in this country and even in the world.

This places a heavy responsibility upon us, because if we are important, it is imperative that we do not make mistakes. In this, the Michigan Farm Bureau plays an important part through repesentation on the American Farm Bureau Board of Directors.

These Directors deliberate and discuss national farm problems and attempt to digest and understand the meaning of the resolutions that the delegates to the national convention pass.

Having worked with these State Farm Bureau Presidents, (49 of them besides myself, and the 26 members of the American Farm Bureau Federation Board) we realize that these people are the most outstanding leaders in American agriculture, and that no better leaders, or more well-informed people could be found anywhere.

No other organization that I know of is spending the time, money and effort to study all of our agricultural problems, so that we understand them to the point where we can be certain that the decisions we make will be right.

It seems miraculous when we stop to think of it, -just what it is that keeps a vast national farm organization of this sort together when nobody is forced to belong to it; - nobody is required to belong to it. There is no mandatory check-off in order to get the dues to support the organization. It is entirely a free will organization!

By the time you are reading this, we will have already been on our way to Atlanta, Georgia, and the American Farm Bureau Federation national convention. W. W.

Freeman Readies

Take Over

Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman told reporters in Washington that his Department is ready to take control of all food and agricultural supplies if war should come. Freeman said a master plan was worked out more than a year ago.

Surpluses or 'Storehouses of Strength?'

Asset? or Liability? The "huge, burdensome surpluses" of wheat, corn and feed grains changed overnight into an "enormous strategic asset" (Lansing State Journal) when the Cuban crisis first flared.

Commodity Credit Corporation-the Government's grain trading mechanism - temporarily suspended sales of Government corn and feed grains and there were discussions on the advisability of abandoning wheat acreage reductions for 1963.

There has never been any question about the need to have an adequate grain carryover to provide an assured supply. There is a serious question as to whether this should be held by Government, where it can be a political tool, or whether it ought to be in private ownership, subject to the market demands.

An error in a recent Kiplinger Agricultural Letter created the false impression that an important part of the potato crop had been seized by the Food and Drug Administration as carrying illegal chemical resi-

Another Scare Story?

The figure used in the Letter was 200,000 tons, or more than 6,600,000 bushel. Two weeks later Kiplinger apologized, say-ing that the amount was only 200,000 pounds, or about 3,300 bushels—a very small fraction of a percentage of the crop.

Unfortunately, corrections of this kind never catch up with all the readers of the original story. While there has been no consumer outcry yet, potato growers might understandably be concerned about the possibility of another "cranberry fiasco.

Surplus of Gov't

Poland, once a leading exporter of grain, now is buying heavily from Canada and the U.S. Polish Communist leader Gomulka says-"Every fourth loaf of bread used in Poland is made from imported grain." He said $175 million was spent to buy grain abroad last year and that the figure may be as high this year.

The chronic farm production problems in Poland and other Communist satellites are usually charged to the program of collective farms following the Soviet pattern.

Mrs. Arthur Muir, State Chairman of the Farm Bureau Women's Committee, gave a review of 1962 activities, highlighting their accelerated Citizenship program and the Camp Kett project.

Stressing the importance of membership to the Farm Bureau organization, Mrs. Muir presented the group with a "Challenge for '63." She urged the Women to make their main project for the coming year,-"helping Farm Bureau reach membership goal in 1963."

Dr. Janet Wessel, Professor in the Physical Educational and Recreation Department at. Michigan State University, completely captivated her audience with a presentation, "Lady, Be

So We Asked The Women

Personal Sacrifice for Principles

Why does a busy farm wife, with an already full schedule, feel she should take time to attend the Farm Bureau state annual meeting? What arrangements must she make at home to attend the three-day convention?

Is her attendance prompted by the urge for a "break" in the routine of an average housewife?-Or does she have a deep-seated conviction that her presence at this important meeting is part of her responsibility as an active Farm Bureau woman?

The four women we asked these questions may well be speaking for their fellow-members, as they voice convictions regarding their responsibilities as active participants of an organization in which they believe and for which they give their time, talent and energy.

Mrs. Alex Kennedy of Alpena, at the state annual meeting for the 17th time, considersit important to attend because, "I like Irs. Alex Kennedy to be a part of making the decisions and feel better equipped to help in our own county as a result of my attendance."

Mrs. Kennedy finds the speeches at the meeting informational and interesting and "last, but not least, it gives me the opportunity to meet old friends and make new ones." In her home county, she is involved in all Farm Bureau programs but is especially devoted to Women, Community Group, Citizenship and Membership activities. Her position as Alpena County Farm Bureau secretary, as well as her duties as a farm wife, means that she must do much planning to have three days work done ahead of schedule prior to coming to Lansing for the MFB annual meeting.

An unusually busy woman at the c onvention this year was Mrs. Thomas Wieland from Charlevoix. Besides her activities as a Mrs. T. Wieland district chairman for the Women's Committee, she was a member of the State Resolutions Committee, a job which involved much time and work before and during the 3-day meeting.

As the mother of two small daughters, (Tammy, 5 and Wendy, 2½) being away from home for three days can become complicated, especially when the measles decide to converge upon the Wieland household. The fact that her husband's mother is a nextdoor neighbor is a blessing, says Mrs. Wieland.

Not aware that such an organization as Farm Bureau existed before she married Thomas Wieland six years ago, Ardeth is now one of the mainsprings of the Charlevoix County Farm Bureau.

Asked why she considered it important to attend the annual meeting, Mrs. Wieland said, "Just to be a part of this friendly, sincere and dedicated group of people brings enthusiasm and you return to your county inspired and ready to work even harder to make your local programs successful.'

Michigan State University, site of the state . annual meeting, Mrs. Watling has no particular problems in making arrangements to be away from home for three days except to see that her husband has his noon meal prepared ahead of time.

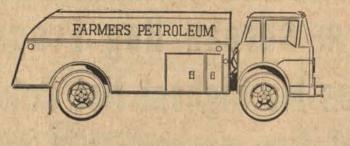

Mrs. Watling has acted as a voting delegate at the state annual meeting several times during her 25 years as a Farm Bureau member. "I'm especially interested in the progress reports given at the meeting," states Mrs. Watling, "and, of course, the good speakers and general sociability.'

Missing from the annual meeting scene for the first time in many years, Mrs. Charles Gotthard of Traverse City was still there

Mrs. C. Gotthard in spirit. Writing from St. Louis, Missouri, where she was enroute to Sacramento and a meeting of the Auxiliary of National Association of Conservation Districts, of which she is president Mrs. Gotthard had this to say:

"I believe that membership in an organization calls for an acceptance of responsibility in making that organization a success,-whether it be the lowliest of jobs on a local basis or as an officer or delegate on state or nation level. The organization can be a fruitful undertaking only if its members work together to make it such.

It would seem that the "testimonies" of these four average Farm Bureau Women indicate that although they thoroughly enjoy the contacts with old friends and acquaintances, their attendance at the state annual meeting is motivated by a strong feeling of responsibility to their organization and the conviction that they will better serve their local groups because of the inspiration and knowledge they have received.

Commodity Day Programs Draw Heavy Attendance

Interesting, Varied Program Offered By PAUL RIVAS

Eenie, meenie, minie, moe, may well have been the feeling of Farm Bureau members attending the Commodity Day programs highlighting the first day of the Michigan Farm Bureau's 43rd annual meeting.

Simultaneous programs in Dairy, Field Crops, Fruits and Vegetables, and Livestock, presented the attending farmers an almost bewildering selection of informal meetings on current subjects vital to agriculture.

One of the stimulating, if not controversial, topics was "New Horizons and Their Implications to the Dairy Farmer," presented by C. A. Lassiter, Dept. of Dairy, MSU.

in whole milk consumption.

A Problem of Underconsumption

"Over production is not the real problem facing the American Dairy industry," said Lassiter. "I refer to the problem of consumption."

Total consumption of dairy products has been decreasing steadily over the last five years, said Lassiter. While the decrease has occurred with most dairy products, it has been most evident in the high fat products such as butter and year.

Lassiter listed a few general facts that he thought the dairy industry must face and accept.

(1) Milk and milk products are no longer "sacred" components of the American diet.

(2) Legislation will not save us. Some assistance from the law is needed, but more of the "enabling" type.

(3) The diet of the average American family is changing toward fewer calories, and this means less fat intake.

(4) Milk and milk products must be considered as competitive food buys.

(5) Are we supplying the consumer with the type of product she wants? (6) What are the buying habits of people in respect to dairy products, particularly fluid milk?

"There is a need for lots of 'solid' research," said Lassiter.

"The future of the dairy industry is not gloomy, at least if we face up to our problems. The next few years are going to be critical years for the industry

"This is no time for us to bog down in family disputes. There will be differences of opinion if progress is to be free of pesticide residue. A more recent problem concerning the expanded use of pesticides is the result of an expanding world market for our products. Ships stopping at our ports to load our produce, also unload foreign produce-and foreign pests.

"All of this means more and more usage of pesticides," Guyer said, "and the ensuing problems."

Of the complaints now being circulated, Guyer said he felt that they fell into three basic groups.

(1) Pesticides destroy the balance of nature. This is true to a degree, but what, he continued, has been the effect of our road-building and suburb construction? When natural habitat is destroyed, so is the balance of nature.

(2) Pesticides destroy wildlife. Certain programs, such as the spraying for "dutch elm disease" will cause problems with wildlife. But in saving one form of wildlife, others suffer. Guyer suggested that more research is needed in this area.

(3) Pesticides poison our food. America never need fear "a slow death caused by chemical profiteers," he said. Many safeguards protect the food we eat. Guyer traced a hypothetical pesticide from the time of its discovery through its actual use in the field.

"To begin," he said, "the chemical people screen the new

Twenty-Six Girls In Contest

The new "Miss Michigan Farm Bureau" is pretty 17-year-old Sherilyn Green of Gratiot county. Her selection was announced at the annual meeting evening banquet program, November 7 in Kellogg Center, MSU.

A senior at the Ithaca High School, Sherilyn is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Green. Runners-up in the tight contest were Linda Donahue of Arenac county and Susan McCalla of Ingham.

Weekly Income F.B. Services For Disabled And Exchange Re-Unify Farm Workers

Announcement of a new coverage known as Supplemental Employers' Liability has been made by N. L. Vermillion, Administrative Vice-President for Farm Bureau Insurance.

This new coverage fills an important gap in the protection program carried by most farmers. It provides farmers an opportunity to secure coverage which will provide up to $42 weekly income to a farm employee while disabled from a farm accident. The coverage can be easily added to a farmer's present Farmowners or Farm Liability policy. There's no new policy to buy.

Added Protection

Supplemental Employers' Liability provides protection where regular liability stops. It covers accidents in which there is no liability and no negligence. Weekly income is provided for the totally disabled farm employees, regardless of the cause of the accident.

This is not a substitute for Workmen's Compensation. Rather, it gives the farmer-employer an opportunity to meet and solve a problem on his own through independent action.

All Farm Bureau Insurance agents have details on this important new protection offered by Farm Bureau Mutual. Members are urged to contact a local agent for additional information.

The 'Silent Spring'

Another Commodity Day program "hot potato" was handled neatly by Dr. Gordon F. Guyer, Chairman, Entomology Dept., MSU, as he took a close look at "The Silent Spring-Fact or Fiction?"

"The use of pesticides in Michigan faces many problems," said Guyer, "and these problems need attention."

In the state, he pointed out, there are many adjacent farm areas, many producing different products, and therefore using different types of pesticides. A large wildlife population, native to the state, also comes in contact with these pesticides.

Michigan is highly selective, he said, about "clean" produce -there can be no moths, worms, animal parts, etc. in pesticide for possible uses." It is next evaluated for safety by a tough battery of tests designed to show up any detrimental effects.

Another series of laboratory tests is made, and detailed work in toxicology involving rabbits and mice is conducted from eight to ten months. No public exposure has been made yet.

Small quantities are now distributed to experimental stations for controlled usage. Paralleling this is residue studies using higher than normal limits.

The chemical company now applies for a label from the USDA. The Federal Food & Drug Administration and the state are also contacted, and more testing is made.

After three or four years and millions of dollars, the federal government will approve the product, and set the higherthan-normal tolerance limits.

In order to create a stabilized pesticide program, farmers must do four things, Guyer said.

(1) They must recognize the problem areas, and avoid enlarging them if possible.

(2) Because of rapid changes and new developments, farmers must keep informed.

(3) The greatest protection lies in the farmer's stake in fundamental research.

(4) And last, the consumer must be relieved and shown the crossfire between the use of pesticides and the contamination of animal parts.

A lively question and answer period followed Guyer's talk.

"Farm Bureau Hog Program Gives Me Highest Net Returns"

- George Mathews, Union City

George Mathews, Rt. 1, Union City, has a 405 acre farm in Branch County. He farrowed 80 sows last year and sold 1,065 market hogs with one of the lowest feed conversion rates in the State.

Here are the facts as verified by the Michigan State University Farm Accounting System.

- · His feed conversion rate was a low 3.36 lbs. of feed per pound of pork produced.
- To get one pig to market, it took only 46 lbs. of Farm Bureau Supplement and that included sow, boar and creep feeds.
- Mr. Mathews feed cost was only $9.22 per 100 lbs. of pork marketed, with boar and sow feed included.

No wonder George Mathews is one of the State leaders in income over feed cost, and he does it with Farm Bureau feeds. You can too!

Top Awards Made

A grey, overcast day failed to dampen the spirits of the large group of determined Michigan Farm Bureau Young People when they held their annual meeting at Delta College, near Bay City, Saturday, November

Registration early Saturday morning, was handled by Lester Bollwahn, Coordinator of Farm Bureau Young People's Activities. Voting delegations from eight of the eleven districts registered along with many non-voting members in one of the largest turn-outs recorded in recent years.

A Look Ahead

Roll call was followed by the report of the Rules Committee, the adoption of the agenda, and the Secretary's report.

"Where do we go from here?" summed up Chairman James Sparks' address, as he asked serious questions of the group. Touching on such points as the need for a Citizenship Seminar, past programs, and the future of the Young People in an active Farm Bureau, Sparks called for a constant awareness of both urban and rural problems.

The "Talk Meet" finals were a pleasant change of pace, when finalists gave their talks before the attending members and delegates.

Competing for the honor of representing the MFB Young People at the AFBF Talk Meet finals to be held in Atlanta, Georgia, were James Horny, Saginaw; Jack Lehman, Ogemaw; Gertrude Nowak, Otsego; and Lyle Dickenson, Ionia.

The first place winner was James Horny, speaking on the topic of "Adapting Farm Bureau to new opportunities and responsibilities at the National level." Second place went to Jack Lehman.

PRETTY GIRLS LEAD THE PROCESSION

EACH YEAR an unusual "Installation" ceremony is conducted by the Saginaw County Farm Bureau Community Group Committee, for all local Group officers. The occasion places local leaders in the spotlight to be "charged" with their duties for the coming year.

Appropriate to the predominately German area in which the program was held, the evening began with music by a "Little German Band" c osed with lunch served to the 130 persons attending, by the Nelson Community Group.

HONORING THEIR FIRST CHAIRMAN,-Mrs. Herbert Fisher, (center) are members of the original Saginaw County Farm Bureau Community Group Committee. A corsage and note of appreciation was presented by Mrs. Alfred Schmiege, while Mrs. B. H. Baker adds appropriate comments. The occasion was the recent installation ceremonies for all Community Group officers of Saginaw county.

A.F.B.F. Annual Meeting to Georgia

Saturday, December 8, at 3:45 p.m. - a large group of Michigan farmers will board the C & El train at Dearborn Station in Chicago, for an all-night trip to Atlanta, Georgia, and the annual meeting of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Sunday evening, December 9, they will attend Vesper Services and witness the annual Farm Bureau Young People's display of talent. The rest of the week will be taken by a wide variety of conferences and activities.

Michigan farmers will mingle with representatives from all other state Farm Bureau organizations including Hawaii and Puerto Rico. They will hear annual reports from Charles Shuman, A.F.B.F. President, and Roger Fleming, Secretary-Treasurer. Other speakers include W. Willard Wirtz, Secretary of Labor, and William Blackie, president of the Caterpillar Company.

Although trip reservations should have already been made, it is possible that additional persons be added to the tour. You are invited to contact the Michigan Farm Bureau at once.

Atlanta Trips Won By Five Counties

To Attend A.F.B.F. Annual Meeting, Dec. 9-13

Five county Farm Bureaus have been awarded trips to the AFBF annual meeting in Atlanta, Georgia, in mid-December as a result of the activities of their Community Group Committees.

Top winner of an all-expense paid trip to Atlanta was Alpena County for having "the best balanced program of action carried out by any Community Group Committee." Runners-up and winners of partially paid trips are Montmorency, Ionia, Ottawa and Saginaw.

Precious Golden Years

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE C. SCHULTZ

Two Prominent Farm Bureau Couples Celebrate Golden Anniversaries

On Sunday, December 16th, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar F. Buschlen of Snover will celebrate their Golden Wedding anniversary. Three children, eleven grandchildren, friends, neighbors and business associates will gather in the auditorium of the Sandusky School on the afternoon of the 16th to greet them.

MR. AND MRS. OSCAR BUSCHLEN

When the first Michigan Farm Bureau member-ship solicitor. (a Mr. Scott) came into Sanilac County, he was met by Oscar Buschlen. The two of them toured the county, meeting the farm leaders of the area. Thus the first membership drive of the Michigan Farm Bureau was started. The Buschlens have been active farmers over the years. Oscar was always an ardent supporter of the Extension Service programs of M.S.U. He was the driving force behind the movement which secured for Sanilac County its first County Agricultural Agent.

Mr. Buschlen was the first president of the Snover Cooperative. He served as County Clerk for Sanilac County during the past twenty years, a post he recently relinquished. All through these years, Oscar maintained an active interest in the family farm and still does.

So that they will be able to catch up on the vacations they have missed, Mr. and Mrs. Buschlen plan to spend the winter months in S. Calif.

Fifty years ago in October, Hazel Florence Fountain became the bride of George C. Schultz at her St. Paul home, in a ceremony performed by the Rev. George Lutz.

Their Golden Anniversary has been shared with friends recently at an open house celebration at at the Farm Bureau building in Paw Paw.

The Schultzes, who have been Michigan residents since 1929, have been continuous members of Farm Bureau since 1943. George served as District Representative for Michigan Farm Bureau in five southwestern counties for 11 years, a position from which he retired in 1948.

Instrumental in setting up some of the first community Farm Bureau groups in the state, he and Mrs. Schultz recently took part in a 25th anniversary celebration of their local group. Reconstructing the events of 25 years ago, George Schultz stepped back into the pages of time to become the regional man who helped to organize the "Michigan First" community group.

As is generally true of successful partnerships, George and Florence have spent the past fifty years sharing in community and club activities and hobbies. They still enjoy fishing together in Canada and Brownsville, Texas, where they spend

Busy Months Foreseen By Family Program Division

"Freedom," Education, Young Farmer Conference Scheduled

"There are busy months ahead for Farm Bureau members," reports J. Delbert Wells, Manager of the Family Program Division,-which includes Community Group, Women's and Young People's activities, as well as a number of special projects.

A Freedom Conference has been scheduled for February 7-8, at Central Michigan College, Mt. Pleasant. The conference will be beamed at "training for political action"-with special speakers and workshop sessions on working within political party machines.

"We believe that with the current tensions of world events,-the threat of Communism and the challenge to American freedoms is becoming clearer to most people," states Wells. "It is also becoming better understood that the people we elect to office will make the ultimate decisions for us as to what we do about these threats," ics as: "Goals of Our Public Schools," "School Board Member Responsibilities," "New State Laws Governing Our School Systems" and "How the Russian Educational System Compares to Ours." Wells points out that the purpose of these conferences is to present a challenge to citizens concerning their part in the public education field.

Farm Bureau Women, under the leadership of Marjorie Karker, will again sponsor a Washington Legislative Tour, tentatively set for the last week in February. Plans call for a plane trip to Washington, D.C. with three days spent in briefing sessions with legislators and American Farm Bureau representatives.

On January 2-3-4, a confer-ence will be held for Young Farmer Community Group chairmen and their wives. A three-day program designed to inform young farm leaders of all phases of Farm Bureau and Farm Bureau Services programs will be held in Lansing and will feature visits to Farm Bureau facilities.

Teen-Age Program

A teen-age leadership conference is scheduled at Camp Kett on January 19-20 for county Farm Bureau Young People's programs. The meeting will concentrate on several phases of leadership development with many of the subjects also adaptable to leadership roles outside of Farm Bureau.

Constitution

The Chippewa County Farm Bureau and Mr. Robert Wilson, Farm Bureau Mutual Agent, sponsored the appearance of three Con-Con delegates at the Kinross 4-H Center recently.

Aimed at helping the public understand the changes made in the proposed new Constitution, the delegates and their subjects of discussion were: Clarence B. Dell of St. Ignace, "Local Government;" Harold J. Stevens, 12th District of Wayne County, "Executive and Legislative;" Harold Radka of Rogers City, "Finance and Taxation."

A "Meet Your Candidate" meeting was an additional feature of the evening, with candidates of both parties given five minutes to speak to the audience.

It is the hope of the Chippewa county Farm Bureau that future meetings of this kind can be arranged. The reaction of the audience was gratifying, with everyone agreeing that the meeting had been of value.

F. B. Services Staff Attend Soil Seminar

Cooperate with MSU Soil-Sciences Department

Twenty-three members of Farm Bureau Services' field and dealer personnel force have completed three 2-day sessions of a Soil Service Seminar. The sessions were held at Michigan State's Kellogg Center under the conference direction of Mr. Robert C. Immel.

Sponsored by the Plant Food Department of Farm Bureau Services, the Seminar was conducted by the Soil Science Department of Michigan State University.

Included in the Seminar were tours of the University's soil Farm, Muck Farm, Testing Laboratories and I.B.M. data processing laboratory. Classroom work featured the lectures by

M.S.U. personnel on various phases of soils, soil-testing, fertilizers, plant foods, farm chemicals, etc. Personnel include Dr. Robert E. Lucas, Dr. L. Robertson and other members of the Soil Science Department together with Dr. A. L. Kentworthy of the Horticulture Department. This Seminar was sponsored by the Plant Food Department of Services to provide its field and dealer personnel with upto-date background in soils and kindred subject. With this background the men are in a position to intelligently offer their patrons a soil fertility program that provides the latest in service and crop management counsel.

R. B. Bohnsack, manager of the Retail Division of Farm Bureau Services, has announced the appointment of James Schultz as manager of the organization's Lansing branch. Mr. Bohnsack, at the same time, announced that Ron Walter will continue with the company as the Assistant Manager of the Lansing branch.

Jim Schultz brings to Farm Bureau Services n. an extensive background of retail store manage m e n t. He is a graduate of Saginaw

High School and of several JAMES SCHULTZ accounting courses at the University of Michigan.

Mr. Bohnsack states that since August 16, when Ron Walters took over the Lansing branch, he has done an exceptionally fine job and has shown commendable ability while he was carrying this responsibility until a permanent manager could be secured.

Dates are Feb. 24-27 Plans are underway for the 1963 Washington Air Tour, scheduled by Michigan 'Farm Bureau Women for Sunday, February 24 through Wednesday, February 27. According to Mrs. Marjorie Karker, Coordinator of Farm Bureau Women's Activities, the tour will leave from the Detroit Metropolitan airport, with the Continental Hotel located within the general Capitol area as tour headquarters. Preliminary details do not include costs, which along with parts of the agenda are still incomplete. The trip has been designed by the Farm Bureau Women's Committee to meet four basic objectives:

To give Farm Bureau members an opportunity to become better acquainted with American Farm Bureau staff members. One day has been set aside for visits to the AFBF offices.

To meet Michigan Congressmen and Senators personally, and to talk with them about Farm Bureau policies. To observe the process of government, particularly the Legislative Branch. To view the nation's capitol city and observe historic landmarks. Over the years dozens of Farm Bureau members have participated. They have been able to inform members in their home communities about problems and methods necessary for effective legislative work.

For further information about this trip, please contact Mrs. Marjorie Karker: Michigan Farm Bureau, Box 960, Lansing, Michigan.

Fall Meeting Excellent

The Maybee Congregational Church was the location chosen by the Monroe County women when they were hostesses to the District III Fall Meeting of Farm Bureau Women. One hundred forty-five women attended the day-long program.

A morning feature was a presentation by Dr. Lloyd Steiner of Saline, who gave a color slide program of his recent tour of Russia and other countries behind the iron curtain. Dr. Steiner was one of forty farmers who made the "People to People" tour of Communist-dominated countries.

The afternoon speaker, Reverend Robert Richards, a Dundee minister, spoke on "My American Heritage." A native of Wales, Dr. Richards migrated to America in 1925. In Wales he was working in the mines for $5.00 a week and Detroit became his goal upon hearing that the late Henry Ford was paying the then unheard of wage of $5.00 a day. He told the District III women that "Taxation is a Godgiven privilege" and that he would "rather be taxed to the, ears than live anywhere else in the world."

Larry Ewing, Coordinator of Marketing Division, moderated the session during which all six counties of the district gave project reports made interesting by audience participation in the game "Pass Word."

Officers elected for the next two years are: Chairman: Mrs. Wm. Scramlin of Oakland County; Vice-Chairman: Mrs. Clayton Anderson, Livingston County; Secretary: Mrs. Allen Parker, Oakland County and Treasurer: Mrs. Merrill Smith, Monroe County.

Promote Safe Corn Harvest

Future Farmers Promote Safety

"Safety is fun, only accidents are serious," according to members of the Vermontville, Mich. Chapter of the Future Farmers of America.

"Awareness of safety on the farm is of vital importance and this year our chapter is carrying out a vigorous program to help area farmers to be safetyconscious," reports Loren Lehman, publicity committee chairman. Lehman, along with fellow members Troy Foster and Charles Tubbs, has been suiting action to words by assisting in a series of corn-harvest safety demonstrations.

Problems which cause unsafe actions during corn harvest are discussed and solutions demonstrated. Tight clothing, fatigue prevention; and racing to beat bad weather are just a few of the angles.

Paw Paw Community Group Claims "First" Title

ORIGINAL MEMBERS of the "Michigan First" Community Group, which recently celebrated its 25th Anniversary, are pictured above: Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Pugsley, Mr. and Mrs. George Schultz, Mr. and Mrs. Max Hood and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Schnoor. Present at the celebration but not pictured was Mrs. Goldia Tapper, also one of the original members of Michigan's first official community Farm Bureau Group.

Twenty-five years ago, Michigan's first official Community Farm Bureau group, the "Michigan First" Group of Paw Paw in Van Buren County, was established.

Earlier, a number of groups had been organized over the state, on a less formal basis, but the Paw Paw group became the first of those officially chartered by the Michigan Farm Bureau, and bears the designation of "number one."

A year earlier, in 1936, delegates to the 19th annual meet-• ing of the Michigan Farm Bureau set the stage for Group expansion by stating, "The genuine conversion of the member to the cause can come only through giving him an opporfunity to worry and work for the legislation, cooperative business, or other results along with his county, state and na. tional officials and employees at the time the fires of battle are raging. We must get more of our members actually participating in the fight rather than merely accepting the results . . . The solution of the problem of membership morale lies to a large extent in an active local unit of the Farm Bu-reau . . . "

According to this policy resolution, an expanded Community Group program was launched.

Regional Representative George Schultz was present to assist in setting up procedures to make the new Paw Paw group an active and important part of the Michigan Farm Bureau. Max Hood, now a director on the Michigan Farm Bureau Board, was elected first President.

This October, twenty - five years later, the "Michigan First" Community Group reconstructed this event, carefully following procedures recorded in the minutes of their first meeting.

Conducting the meeting, as in 1937, was Max Hood and present were these original members: Mr. and Mrs. George Schultz, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Pugsley, Mrs. Goldia Tapper, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Schnoor, and Mr. and Mrs. Max Hood.

Bringing the 25 people who had gathered to celebrate this 25th anniversary back from fond memories of the past to the current problems of the '60's, Max Hood closed the meeting with the discussion topic, "1962 Election Will Decide Vital Issues."

"Our tilt-up concrete dairy building cost only $1.17 per square foot!" says IVO GOETTEMOELLER, St. Henry, Ohio

"Concrete, in my opinion, is the best material for farm construction. By using the tilt-up system, I built my loose housing dairy barn in durable concrete for only $1.17 per square foot. And that included the labor! No other material could give me a building like this at such low cost."

With modern tilt-up concrete, walls start out like floors-formed and cast right on the floor. A simple rig and a farm tractor tilt them into place. Solid concrete walls give real protection to animals and machinery. You have no worries about fire, rodents, or weather-no problems with rust or rot. No painting or other costly upkeep is needed. Write for free booklet on tilt-up construction. (U.S. and Canada only.)

Will A Will Keep Your Farm In One Piece?

Discussion Topic DONALD D. KINSEY

Coordinator, Education and Research

The amount of interest shown by farmers in this subject would indicate two things:

1. That most farmers are concerned that their farm should be kept in the family in the future, and . . .

2. That the farm should remain as an intact operating unit.

Tax and inheritance laws have become more and more complicated. They build a spreading web around the matter of property inheritance. Without a proper will or legal agreement by property owners, an estate can face a multitude of claims against it. Included among the claimants is the government. It demands its inheritance and estate taxes. It holds these bags open with a cry of "Tricks or Treats!" And the size of the treat demanded may very well wreck the future of a farm estate.

In matters of this kind, the best advice anyone can give you is to seek expert help by a person who knows the "ins" and "outs" of the problems. Then plan your farm future for survival.

Sometimes the division of a for all the heirs. They don't

Not a "Do It Yourself" Job

You may think to yourself, "Well, I can work this out on my own. Save expense! There are good bulletins and pamphlets to help me."

This can be a fatal halftruth. Yes, there are excellent bulletins on farm inheritance from Michigan State University and other colleges. Your Extension Agent can help you obtain them. They serve as excellent guides for you in general ways. But, they all say -"Get expert help and counselle

Your own farm estate is a special case. It needs individual study, planning and treatment. There is a particular set of relationships among your heirs. There may be a variety of existing claims against your estate. You may have a business working agreement with some member of the familyand this is special to you.

And there are those complicated tax and inheritance laws! Can you interpret them accurately? Do you know the best way to arrange your estate so as to pay the minimum rather than the maximum amount of tax? As Molly used to say, "It ain't simple, Mc-

Bleeding the Farm of Value

Or consider this. In case a farm owner dies, there are numerous things that can shrink the value of the farm estate

1. Any debts against the estate automatically become due and payable.

2. Final medical and/or funeral expenses must be met before the estate can be claimed by the heirs.

3. Expenses for administration and lawyer's fees involved in settling the estate must be paid. A poor will, or none, can add vastly to such expenses. It is a time-bomb in any estate.

4. All Federal and State taxes must be paid from the estate before it is free and clear. If unpaid, these taxes remain at a lein against the estate and threaten title to its ownership.

The Federal Estate tax form (706) declares, "The tax is due 15 months after the date of the decedent's death, and must be paid within such period unless an extension of time for payment thereof has been granted by the District Director, or unless the executor has properly elected . . . to pay in installments."

And the amount of inheritance tax you may have to pay can shock you. You cannot calculate the value of the property by what you paid for it a few years ago. The inheritance tax must be paid on the present "fair market value." Inflation and demand for land boost this value. The government makes the appraisal and sets the value on which you pay the tax.

Cash to Carry This Load?

When a farm changes hands by inheritance, the family planning to operate it will need cash. There is always expense. What shall the farmer do to get it?

value of life insurance. You believe in it when you see it solve the problems of a farm family and ease them over serious trouble spots. Insurance, too, is a part of a good "Plan Ahead" program. It can cover the claims of all heirs, take care of expenses and pay the inheritance taxes when a farm changes hands by descent. An adequate life insurance program can give the farm family cash to "get in the clear" and continue the farm as an operating unit. But to make it work, it has to be set up by you-the present generation. It is a keystone to modern "planned inheritance."

Consider what it can do for a farm partnership, for example. There are many fatherson farm partnerships going today.

Planning Works Miracles

When a partner dies, the partnership ceases. An audit of the business assets and debts of the partnership must be made. The surviving partner may lack funds to buy out his deceased partner's interests. Yet, the heirs can claim shares in the business and its assets.

But such a problem can be erased before it happens.

The partners can draft and sign a "buy-sell agreement" in advance. Then each partner can take life insurance to cover the other's share of the business, naming him beneficiary. If either partner dies, the life insurance does its magic and the business goes on.

January's topic raises the question whether we in America should center more power in our Executive office.

In February, the groups examine features of the proposed new Constitution.

Each six months, ballots are sent to all the Community Farm Bureau groups, 1,500 of them. The ballot lists suggestions, and invites groups to list areas of concern.

The state Topic Committee is presented with a summary of these group preferences. The results provide a working guide for the new topic series.

Legal "Tanglefoot"

Any attempt to try to list here the things which threaten farm estates can only end in picking a few things "out of the blue" - chances are that such a list would omit many a vital one bearing on your own estate

Hundreds of things do happen to estates when their owners die. Many get tangled up in probate court for eight to ten years. In such cases there was poor planning. And sometimes the tax collector saws the limb off behind you-and down she goes!

Take a case where a will is lacking-or just as bad-one where a will is not properly drafted, lacks witnesses and bears no notary's seal and signature. Such a will is as full of loopholes as a sieve and as promising of trouble as opening Pandora's box.

A proper will should not only be drafted by a person trained in law, but must also be kept up to date as to changes in partnerships, heirs, mortgages, other investments, etc.

Mix-ups on The "Heir-line"

What kind of trouble can come to the farm family when a proper will is lacking? Who can claim a share? Maybe lots of folks. Spouse-childreneven grandchildren where their parent in the line of descent has died. The situation becomes set for dicing up the farm into an unsavory legal stew

Where many have a finger in the farm estate pie and no way is provided for satisfying their claims, who is going to run the farm? Suppose you had planned that a certain son or daughter should carry on, and they thought so, too. But they may be snowed under by the obligation to pay off the claims of all the other heirs. For, where a proper will is lacking, the law defines how the shares are divided.

Pay off the others? The average farmer may be hard hit by such a drain on his re-
