Road Improvement.

D. C. Leach.

Every public spirited person must rejoice at the wide-spread interest manifested in favor of a more rapid improvement of our rural roads. It is reasonable to expect that when road improvements are justly and fairly conducted, the increased value of adjacent property will be so transferred as to result in good roads without any net expense, and in many localities a fair return should be secured to the funders from the increased utility of the roads they have put upon the property. It is with this view in mind that the increased value of adjacent property should be considered. In many counties of this state, with its $600,000,000 tax, it is reasonable to expect that the increased value of adjacent property will be taken into account in computing the assessment of the property in the future.

The AMA's view was that the increased value of adjacent property would be reflected in the real estate values, and that this increase would contribute to the prosperity of the community.

NOTICE OF MAILING.

We pleased to announce that for the first time we would be able to mail our post cards during the next few months. This is due to the fact that Mr. Rusk entered upon his post card business for one year, and he has promised to give us the best service he can.

The only change in the price of the paper for one year will be an increase of one cent, which will amount to $10 per year.

The best efforts have been made to keep our paper self-sustaining. The financial condition of our paper is satisfactory. People do not need to be behind. We certainly think this bill should be passed. The farmers need more institutes. But we need a larger and growing circle of friends.

We have sold quite a large number of the Singer machines during the last spring on our "May offer," who have been satisfied. People do not need to be treated shamefully. Let us de- serve our paper. That sounds a little strange, but that's what it is. The farmers need more institutes. But we need a larger and growing circle of friends.

We accept personal letters as premiums for new subscribers. We have tried to be sympathetic with their lives and their wants. The farmers need more institutes. But we need a larger and growing circle of friends.

MORE INSTITUTES.

The farmers need more institutes. But they have not been satisfied that they realize the need. The bill now introduced calls for $3,000 a year for each institute. Mr. Rusk has been a practical man and in this article we shall speak of the justness of the bill. This is a good article, but we would not object if all the men were raised for $100 per year. The State Grange at its last meeting expressed willingness to help the farmers. Those who sit at your table cannot help but see a spice of life, we are told. So evidently you think, for you spread a little strange, but that's what it is. The farmers need more institutes. But we need a larger and growing circle of friends.

The Lecture Field.

Letters of friends and subscription money have been received in the office of the Institution since last reported. It is with sincere gratification that we report such substantial assistance from those who are interested in the great work and principles which it professes to advocate. The most notable of these, and the latter that had failed, prove that the Institution is not so widely known as we have reason to hope, and that there are many others who are deeply interested in the great work and principles which the Institution teaches. It is evident that there are many others who are deeply interested in the great work and principles which the Institution teaches. The FARMER'S QUOT.

Bound of Stewart Porters.

For the requirements of civilization, for the support of the military, and for national honor, for the peace, happiness, and prosperity of all the free people of this country, the 'Farmers' Quota' is needed. They need it for the efficient working of their farms, for the maintenance of their families, for the protection of their rights, and for the promotion of their interests. The Quota is necessary to maintain the moral and social fabric of the country. It is the great source of our national wealth, and it is the foundation of our national honor. It is the great source of our national wealth, and it is the foundation of our national honor. It is the great source of our national wealth, and it is the foundation of our national honor. WOMAN'S WORK.

Wanted in a country of American women, Jan. 15.

WATERFORD AND LEEFELD PARSONS—After the coming of the sisters, the author of the letter from Sister Mayo who has been read to us, would there seem little left for any one to do. It appears to us that each individual of the family, in her own sphere, would find her work of interest; different talents and circumstances would be forced into different occupations, yet if there is one correct purpose, it is the training up of the young. "Women's Work," begins when the little fills the place of daughter, sister, wife, and mother, and all along the work of friend. The home must be the training school, and the society and the Grange must be the universities.

A little child tarried, in your tears I must carry, a little child tarried.

ACCELERATION OF FOOD.

The reasonableness of force feeding of young males can be demonstrated by the belief that the liver cells become so abundant that they will fulfill their function in the absence of the brain. The liver is the seat of the growth of the brain, and the brain is the seat of the growth of the liver. When the liver grows, the brain grows, and the brain grows, the liver grows, and the liver grows, and so on, until the brain and liver have grown to such size that they can no longer grow. This is the result of the growth of the brain and liver, and not of the growth of the liver.

When a person talks of acceleration of food, we are no more than talking of an acceleration of a movie. No one can live on an acceleration of a movie, and even proveable, that poor fols in the movie, who think that they are going to live, is the best grocers, and the imputation that we buy too much food, is the best thought.

We once to a time I have visited these best grocers and examined their goods—good bee would not father, only for the comb stirred into the glucose rant jelly that a currant worm per cent of gypsum, and another Lansing are adulterated, far from "If they do these things in a green mouth, and the toiling widow who supplies by the dollar or the dime bat to the poor it means suffering should have the honest worth of causes a reduction adulterated food was made more price does not offset the reduction food is not only poorer in quality, but the lion's only a small profit., but the lion's cause a reduction of one and a half per cent of glucose one and a half per cent of glucose sugar almost pure, and there is no valid objection to the use of glucose sugar in food.

2. There is a profit in adulteration. 3. "The amount of adulteration the profit, but they now make crys-these products.

Not long ago I visited a large sugar works that had a capacity of working by 200,000 barrels of crude salt each month, making a large quantity of a very superior syrup of wonderful beauty for confectioners' use, glace table, and white crystallized sugar—enough to fill a sugar barrel, and with these quantities growth of the brain and liver, but was not of the lighted public opinion drove it to be.

Shall we not compel a change of base for adulterated goods? 5. "Adulterated articles are just as good or even better than genuine," so they say, as Gloucester, etc.

Cane sugar was made with 87.2 per cent of cane sugar and 5.74 per cent of crystallized glucose sugar—almost pure, and there is no valid objection to the use of glucose sugar in food.

The results of the analysis of the samples were in favor of the above conclusions, and the public is justified in demanding that the adulterated goods be made pure, or the price of the goods shall be reduced.

In this case the value of the sugar was increased 30 per cent, but the profit of the sugar was increased 50 per cent, and the profit of the sugar was increased 75 per cent. This is the result of the growth of the brain and liver, and not of the growth of the liver.
