WITH THE JELL-O GIRL IN CHINA

"'Riksha, lil miss?" asked the little China boy, bobbing politely up and down.

“Oh yes, let's take a ride in a jinriksha, Polly," said the Jell-O Girl to friend Polly. The boy ran off and in a few minutes a strong, smiling-faced Chinaman came up to the steps, dragging a jinriksha, which is a sort of cart drawn by a man.

The two little American travelers climbed into the jinriksha, and the man started off, much faster than you or I could go and drag a cart.

“This will be the best of all, I think,” answered the little girl. “We’re going to the Forbidden City, where the Emperor used to live in the days when they called China the Celestial Empire.”

The 'riksha man took them past a long wall with the top covered with yellow tiles, through a big gate, up a long walk with blue china dragons on either side, and let them down at the bottom of many steps in front of a low palace.

All the roofs were long and sloping and curled up at the edges. The yellow tiles gleamed in the pale sunshine, and the china dragons looked very fierce. Inside the palace, the little Jell-O Girl wandered with Polly and their guide, through room after room ornamented with beautiful panels, with carved furniture, big yellow vases, and saw the throne-room with the splendid scarlet throne guarded by stone dragons and hung around with yellow silk.

Presently, they grew tired of looking at carvings and lacquer, and went out into the gardens which are famous all over the world for their beauty. They walked down to a shallow lake bordered with willow trees, and went up on the marble boat at the edge of the lake. Once upon a time, the Emperor of China wanted a boat, and as he could not go out of the Forbidden City, he ordered one built in his own garden. It is all of marble, carved and decorated most beautifully, and the Emperor used to pretend that he was sailing in it. It is not much fun being Emperor when you can’t go outside your garden, is it?

They crossed over high bridges, and fed the swans in the lagoons. There were ducks swimming in the little lakes, and china basins to hold gold-fish. It was curious and wonderful. But as the Jell-O Girl was watching the gold-fish, the sun disappeared and quite suddenly it began to rain, a warm, soft rain

Jell-O Recipes

JELL-O BIRTHDAY CAKE

1 package of lemon Jell-O, 1 pint of boiling water, 1 package of orange Jell-O, 1 pint of boiling water. Whip one-half of lemon Jell-O with dover egg beater to consistency of whipped cream, place in round mould, let harden, add orange Jell-O, let harden then whip remaining one-half of lemon Jell-O, add to congealed orange. Remove from mould and place small candles on top.

GRAPEFRUIT SALAD

Remove the pulp from two grapefruit, separate membrane from pulp over a strainer and leave pulp in large pieces. Sprinkle with two tablespoonfuls of sugar and let drain thoroughly. Dissolve a package of Lemon Jello-O in one-half pint of boiling water. When cool add the grapefruit juice to which enough water has been added to make a half pint. Turn into a shallow pan, let harden and cut in cubes, using a knife dipped in hot water. Serve cubes and pulp mixed in grapefruit shells, or on lettuce leaves, with French or mayonnaise dressing.
CHOCOLATE WALNUT JELL-O
Dissolve a package of Chocolate Jell-O in half a pint of boiling water and add half a pint of milk. When it begins to harden, add one-half cup of English walnut meats and a half-dozen figs cut up fine. Set away to harden. Serve plain or with whipped cream.

ROMAN SPONGE
Dissolve a package of Cherry Jell-O in a pint of boiling water. When cold whip to consistency of whipped cream, then add a cup whipped cream, one-half dozen macaroons crushed, and a handful of chopped nuts. Set in a cold place to harden. Garnish with cherries and serve with whipped cream.

CHERRY JELL-O
Dissolve a package of Cherry Jell-O in a pint of boiling water. Pour into a bowl or mould and put in a cold place to harden. When set, turn out on a plate and serve plain or with whipped cream. Any of the other six flavors of Jell-O can be used instead of the Cherry Jell-O.
Any of them may be whipped as easily as cream, and all are very attractive in that form.
such as they often have in China. They ran to climb into the 'riksha, and the kind-hearted man brought out a beautiful paper umbrella to keep off the rain. Then he started back to the hotel, running all the way. But before they got back the rain stopped as suddenly as it had begun, and the sun shone again.
