OUR ANNIVERSARY

Tomorrow Michigan State will be exactly four years old.

It was in 1913 that the college was formally dedicated, making it the newest institution in the United States to offer instruction in scientific and practical agriculture.

The school was built at a time when the country was in the middle of a serious depression, and many feared that it would never be able to succeed. However, the college quickly became a leader in the field of agriculture, and its students were highly respected.

In 1917, the college was recognized for its work in agriculture, and it was awarded a special award for its contributions to the field.

Today, Michigan State is one of the top universities in the country for teaching and research, and its students are among the best in the world.

Pinecrest and Botanical Gardens
Result of Dr. Beal's Foresight

Beauty Spots Represent Years of Work by Former Instructor

Dr. James Beal, a former instructor at Michigan State, has been working on the Pinecrest Botanical Gardens for many years. He is known as the "Father of the Gardens," and his dedication and hard work have paid off in the beautiful gardens that we see today.

The gardens were started in 1917, and they have been growing ever since. They are located on the campus of Michigan State, and they are open to the public.

In the gardens, there are many different plants and flowers, as well as a large greenhouse. The gardens are a popular destination for both students and visitors.
