Youth Wants United Hands

A reception from past attitudes on the American college campus were evidenced recently in the annual congress of the National Student Federation at the University of New Mexico.

By a five-to-one ratio, delegates voted to withdraw a resolution of last year calling upon American students to refuse service in the armed forces of the United States outside the nation's borders. Similarly, a resolution against increasing the army was tabled by an overwhelming vote.

The American Student Union, meeting concurrently at Xavier college, also modified its pacifistic attitude, although not to the same degree as the American Student Federation. The A.S.U., voted to withdraw the A.S.F. resolution of absolute refusal to fight, and instead desired the organization being supported in a program which would make the United States an active force for peace.

Three modifications, we believe, do not represent any sudden increase of martial spirit on the part of the American student. Nor do they indicate that various propaganda sources have gained a firm hold on the nation's campuses, inasmuch as the war is still not fully supported of late. It is true, a number of students urged for national defense, based on a pretty accurate and well-planned cross-section of international conditions.

The truth of latter days not want to be talked into another war. However, in the event of a possible conflict, he doesn't want to take the fight to his home land. Stanley M. (Washington, D.C.)

Quotable Quotes

"There is only one way to prove a university education for the present generation: educate the campus, and the rest will follow." -- Harry A. Bierman, President of the University of California.

"The only difference between a college and a university is the number of students." -- William H. McGuffey, American author.

"The man who has lived has failed." -- Henry Adams, American historian.

In the Rough

With Harley Harrington

A careful observer

The crossfire which reaches the pages of one of the Big Three Detroit or Grand Rapids dailies means an added boost for both the college and the department with which it deals. Many or all of these news items would have been missed by the large publications had they not first appeared in the State News.

Our department makes a serious effort to work with the State news, regularly submitting materials for publicity release. At most other departments, reports, even from bureaus located very far away for news, are often bitterly refused; merely because the departmental heads have not the patience to spend the extra minute in writing an article.

Although the department heads realize the value of the publicity the State News offers, they evidently do not understand that this publicity may be achieved only through cooperation. B. P.
