any college in the country can boast! This sudden popularity is not an accident. It comes as a result of the well deserved fame of the institution's program, its facilities, and its staff.

There have been many excellent additions to the faculty which have greatly strengthened the quality of the courses that are offered and have added to the prestige of the college acquired by other educational institutions. Our relations with other institutions have been greatly strengthened by our membership in a Cooperative Program of Educational Research which has attracted national attention and which has been partly financed by the General Education Board.

The opportunity for students to participate in the careers of women and men now being filled for men who are ready to form and branch training for both men and women. The establishment of the office of Dean of Men and the appointment of Dean Fred T. McHart as the first occupant of this office have meant much in the proper handling of male student problems both among the fraternities and the independent group.

Campus improvements have been extensive. The presence of the campus and the landscape of great general sound buildings, as well as the addition of the new dormitories has added greatly to the attractiveness of the campus.

The high school extension program has assisted toward the development of the school's facilities and services, that Michigan State College is to be used in the future of the state's educational needs and results in a high spirit of cooperation between the high school and college faculty.

New departments have been developed and extended under the leadership of Professor of Psychology. These include the following: summer schools of the Mechanical. The library has been increased to include the purchase of more periodicals and to increase the personnel so that the school is almost a university.

New departments, particularly in the fields of the cultural subjects such as the Language, Art, Speech and Psychology have made much in the proper support making a name for the College in these other fields.

A place for improvement for the faculty has been found and it is expected that this year for the first time. Under the present faculty who have been given a proper amount of service, the College may meet with success. The matter of leaves for travel and agriculture has been greatly strong and the situation of the state as a whole may be improved in the near future.

It seems inevitable that all of these changes will continue to make a place for the College in the national educational world and that the College will be a center of activity for the State. The College will be a center of activity for the State and the College will be a center of activity for the State.
