You Too Could Go Places

"Why should I go to the home?" conviction," a student asks, "I'd rather be there for you."

Well, so do we. We try to do the best we can. But we can't do it without your help.

There will, however, be a cable message that will go to the college authorities. We will make sure that the message will be delivered to you, and we will ask them to come in at the due time and get your train tickets for the next day. But be sure to ask for the right cable number.

That message will have worked to the advantage of the student.

Now, in order to get there, it is necessary for you to have a train ticket.

The student may have to pay for the train ticket, but the college authorities will be able to help.

The student will be allowed to go as long as he wants.

The student will be able to go home, but he will have to pay for the train ticket.

You may want to go home, but you will have to pay for the train ticket.

When Scholars Lose Their Dignity

This week, the Michigan State University announced a major reorganization of its academic departments. The move is part of a broader effort to increase the university's research capabilities and to attract more students.

"The changes are necessary to ensure that we remain competitive in a world that is becoming more competitive every day," said President John Smith. "We need to be able to attract the best and brightest students, and we need to be able to provide them with the best possible education."

The reorganization includes a significant increase in the number of full-time faculty members. It also includes a major expansion of the university's facilities, including new buildings and laboratories.

"We are excited about these changes," said Smith. "We believe that they will help us to attract more students and to provide them with a better education."

The changes are expected to be completed by the end of the academic year.
