Sign Your Letters

"Why doesn't State News print my letter?"

That seems to be a common question among contributors to the 'You Say This' column of State News. It is a question which has a common answer and a simple solution.

A rule on State News, as there exists with almost every newspaper, is that each and every letter with hopes of being printed MUST bear the signature of the writer. The signa-Russian embassy during the attack ture need not be printed, if the writer so desires, but it must be present for use in the files of the newspaper.

At least a dozen letters are thrown out every week, simply because they are unsigned. As a matter of protection and for the sake of files, letters must bear the signature of the writer. Signatures like "Evergreen Manor", Disgusted", or "Sophomore" will not suffice. They may be used in the news-por, but in the files, signatures must be present.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4-Those optimistic statements about a short session of Congress are a lot of wishful thinking. The boys will still be on hand when June 1 rolls around.

One reason is that there is no need for them to hurry to get through. The presidential convention won't take place this Made year until late July or early August. The other reason is that Although the fieldhouse itself is ready for service, the rest of the structure still has a considerable amount of work left to be done.

Sharing the spotlight with the new fieldhouse will be a Michigan State basketball team which has just returned from a western trip with a record of four victories and two defeats out of six game Over the season thus far, the Spartans have won six and lost three.

That is a lot better than most people expected from Ben Van Alutyne's men after the loss of George Falkowski and Frank Shidler and the seeming lack of capable reserves. Although the question of reserve power is still a weight one, a lot has been done toward surmounting this deficiency by the inspired play of the

In the west, the Spartans ran into teams who were long on reserves. They thought little of using three complete teams in one game. State, on the other hand, was forced to rely on hardly more than seven at the most, and at times, whenpersonal fouls were heavy, this situation grew ticklish. Once, a student manager, Everett MacDougall, was rushed into a suit when it appeared as if the Spartans would need his services.

Reserves Still a Problem

Thus, it is apparent that reserves are still Van Alstyne's number one beadache. And with Max Hindman on the shelf at the present time with nijuries received in the California game, and with Bob Morris Imping, the situation is even more acute.

Games with Tennessee, Syracuse, Marquette, Michigan, Long Island, Temple, Baltimore, Wisconsin and Wayne remain to be played. It is pretty hard to look at this list of teams and pick out any soft spots. State, should win half these games, will be doing well.

The play of the varsity, led by diminutive Chet Aubuchon, without a doubt one of the best guards in the country this year, has accounted for the fine record the Sparians have chalked up so far. Marty Hutt, Hindman, Max Dalyrmple and Bob Phillips have also looked good, but have lacked Aubuchon's consistency

The future success of the Michigan State cage team depends a at burning kerosene about during a backetball game great deal on these individuals. Ceruain of the reserves, namely Morris, Gerard, and Peterson have shown well. If they come along more get rid of that red lantern now than be could to help out Aubuchon, Hutt, Hindman and Philips, State won't fare so badly against future opponents. And, without going even an inchout on a limb of any sort, we think Michigan State will continue to be a pretty tough but for other teams to crack.

These Veterans Set Pace This Year

Sparian baskethall fans will be given their first opportunity in three weeks to see State in action tomorrow night, when Coach Ben Van Alstyne sends his cagers against Tennessee in the first event to be staged in the new Michigan State fieldhouse. Led by these six stalwart veterans, State racked up four triumphs in six starts on their recent tour to the Pacific coast to hold the season average at the

It isn't exactly that the Michigan State basketball players as a lo are superstitions, it's just that they're careful. After all there doe n't seem to be any reason why you should take a chance on breaking up a good thing, once it gets stated.
