

British War Ministry Shakeup Tops Week's News

New War Appointee Center of Protest; Rumania Defiant

From Foreign Shores
 Firing of Leslie Hore-Belisha, British secretary of state for war, late last week took top position in the foreign news of the week. This move by Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain came as a complete surprise to the nation and seriously threatened to upset national war-time unity.

Storm of protest and controversy arising from the shakeup, which Oliver Stanley, president of the board of trade, took Hore-Belisha's post, is due to the former war minister's great popularity with the people because of his sweeping reforms in "modernizing" the army.

OTHER MANY REASONS
 Almost obscured by the clouds of controversy were several different explanations for the ouster. One was that the prime minister had the political potentialities of a popular Hore-Belisha. Also that Hore-Belisha was switching to a post-war peace, therefore Hore-Belisha, a low and advocate of a military front, had to make way for the so-called more progressive Stanley.

Another connection with this shakeup, Chamberlain is reported to have stated late in a war to a group in the spring and used the shakeup before the storm. The analysis of the shakeup is that Hore-Belisha's reforms do not extend very far in government circles due to his disregard of traditional military in high army posts.

RUSSIAN NEW BLOOD
 Though he infused much "new blood" into the army, he is said to be unpopular for riding herd on younger appointees. Shakeups affected the ministry of war, notorious for its riding of many war stories, Hore-Belisha has a new head, Sir John Dill, head of the British army service.

Increased Russian activity as well as attacks against Poland and Finland as well as diplomatic maneuvering elsewhere, has been had in mind a week ago when the Soviet, King Carol II, Romania, defiantly dared Russia to invade Germany or Hungary to bring its borders into holly alliance with Russia.

WESTERN FRONT QUIET
 With the Western front quiet for the week, activity in the Mediterranean conflict has been reported in the air. Extensive aerial decisive air battles between British and German bases Thursday, reports state.

Several former decisive battles during the winter is expected to be down the war, Russian is reported.

AWS Presents
 New and old members of the AWS Judiciary board met for dinner January 9 to introduce the new members to their duties before they take charge of the board.

Glen Walker, Lee Young, Letitia Young, Kathleen Lockwood, Jeanne Vogel, Betty Gibbs, Marjorie Baldwin, Dorothy Hunter, Dorothy Whitney, and Roma Jean Fritz are the new representatives of the dormitories, cooperative houses, off-campus women, and the Panhellenic association. Barbara Sears, vice president of AWS, is chairman of the group. Grace Nahstoll, sophomore representative to AWS council, was elected secretary of the judiciary board at the council meeting January 9.

AWS will move into its office in the administration building next week, according to Jean B. Wilson, chairman of the project. The relaxation room on the fourth floor of the Union is being redecorated and furniture has been ordered. Grace Nahstoll has announced. It will be open to town girls later in the term.

Church This Week

"How the Bible Helps Me in Days Like These" will be the topic of Rev. N. A. McCune's two sermons Sunday morning in Peoples church at 7 p. m. Dr. McCune will review the book, "The Rediscovery of Man," by Henry C. Link, as the first of a series of book reviews to be given every Sunday evening in the women's parlors.

Dr. C. F. Holland, director of health service at Michigan State college, is guest speaker scheduled for vesper services in the church auditorium at 5 p. m.

Dr. Holland will speak on "Health" for the second presentation in the series on "What Do You Want Most of All?"

The only clue Dr. Holland would reveal as to the content of his speech was that he would not talk on what one would expect. He will also lead the bedside discussion in the student parlors directly following the student supper.

Leone Schavey Butters, one of M. S. C.'s last year graduates, will sing two solos during vesper services, "Oh Divine Redeemer" by Gounod and "Come Ye Blessed" by Scott.

Faculty Bowlers To Open Season This Afternoon

Nothing here for the Labor Relations board; it's only the 57 members of the Faculty Bowling club going into action.

Play in the league begins at 1 p. m. today and will continue at the same time for 10 weeks. Members have been divided into six teams on the basis of their last year's averages. The teams are: Turkeys, Strikers, Splits, Chariots, Errors, and Doubles.

A. G. Kettunen, State club director is organizer of the league, which was formed for the purpose of better acquaintance of faculty members and for recreation.

Treasurer Announces Pay Period Date

Labor payrolls of the college will now be made on the 6th and 21st of each month, rather than on the 5th and 20th, C. O. Wilkins announced yesterday.

This is due to the fact that college employees' earnings must be reported to the United States government. Comptroller Wilkins stated. Employees must be listed on the time sheets by complete name and filed at the treasurer's office at the earliest possible time.

"Your cooperation in these changes will help us avoid confusion in reporting of total earnings," said Wilkins.

Old Timer Makes Campus Visit

By JERRY DEWAR
 Alphonse Smith had his first glimpse of the campus in many a moon the other day when his granddaughter took him on a tour of the campus. It was just 67 years previously that he had viewed with wonder four buildings of the campus that no longer exist.

Alphonse today lives in a little yellow bungalow up on North Harrison. Surrounded with little trees, benches, bird houses, and odds and ends of all kinds, the abode gives one the impression of a frontier home. Alphonse keeps a garden. Once a lumberjack cook, he regrets that today he has lost much of the knack that once made him king of the mess hall.

Back in the early days of the college South came from Clinton county with his wife to work for the swampland college. There were no trucks in those days so Alphonse became a teamster. Loads were had and the pioneer relates how it took four horses to pull a load of feed from Lansing to East Lansing.

A grin spread over the be-whiskered face of the old timer as he told of the appearance of the town then. In fact, relates Alphonse, there was no town, just a bunch of spread-out farms. All that was the college was the two main halls, Atlas and Old College, and a few farm buildings. Sam's Red had bought a year before he had arrived on the campus.

For a few years Alphonse left the college, went into the north woods to work in a lumberjack camp. There he and his wife cooked for a crew of lumberjacks. Then the college called him back. They needed him as a ground keeper. His wife stayed in the north woods for the crew.

Following are members of the different committees: Decorations, Esther Ingersoll, Patty Cameron, Eileen Seymour, Shirley Caswell, Marion McDonald, and Julian Willis; Refreshments, Dorothy Hain, Delores Quirk, Lou Ann Walker, Neva Lammaker, Marilyn Debert, Patty Gogger.

Favors and programs, Susan Moore, Joan Jenken, Marie Sanford, Barbara Dennison, Marjorie Pearce, and Marilyn Sharp; Patrons, Barbara Hall, Jean Kesel, Marjorie Hicks, and Betsy Hartuch; Orchestra, Kay Robinson, Virginia Hewitt, Helen Munson, Ruth Swift, and Dorothy Mitchell.

Advisers on the party are Mrs. Helen Campbell, Mrs. J. E. Jepson and Miss Dorothy Stapleton, the club adviser. Patrons are Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Blue, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Seymour, Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Hadjilov, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Spindler, Mrs. Virginia Greer, Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Wilkins, Mr. and Mrs. D. M. O'Hara, and Mr. and Mrs. F. Morse Cook.

Club officers include Nancy Blue, president; Eleanor Bowman, vice president; Lucile Funk, secretary, and Doris Frank, treasurer.

Wide-Awake Merchant

"Dinner for 50,000, please!" Sounds like a big order, but during the week beginning January 29, there will be 50,000 newcomers to feed here.

Fifty thousand people will be buying ties, sipping sodas, watching movies, and taking part in the many other "asides" of Farmers' Week.

Strangers, they will not be familiar with local shopping facilities. They won't know where to go.

The first place to which they will refer is the local newspaper.

The Michigan State News Will Be Their Guide

A special Farmers' Week issue, appearing the first morning these visitors are on the campus, and available from campus stands, will provide these farmers with news and programs of events of Farmers' Week.

The wise merchant will use the State News to tell these guests about his services. He will reach these people the first day, and continue to reach them throughout Farmers' Week. He will reap the profits of 50,000 customers.

Hilltop Five Boasts Enviably Record In East Lansing Invasion

Frosh Quintet Opens With Victory

The perfect home record of Michigan State basketball is still intact today.

Thanks to the men of '43 and their convincing 37 to 21 victory over the freshman Blue Devils of Lawrence Tech. Thursday evening, the new Fred C. Jenison field house has yet to see defeat.

Flashing a brand of basketball which could not exactly be classified as being impressive, the Spartan yearlings out fought a stubborn Detroit quintet which had lost but one game in its eight previous starts.

Leading a second half attack which netted 21 points, were a pair of out-of-state lads, Vince Lombardo, from Cleveland, and Earl May, Schenectady, N. Y. product, who combined to score eight and seven points, respectively during the evening's festivities.

Also figuring prominently in the yearling offensive achievements were Bill Jones and Carl Petroski, who scored five and four points respectively.

For the visitors, Max Liebermann, Lawrence Tech center, shared top scoring honors with Lombardo, hitting the meshes for eight points on four field goals.

Spotty passing, faulty shooting, and inconsistent backboard work kept the yearling's evening score low.

Hilltop Threats to Spartan String

Ralph "Sox's" Amsden, 6 feet, 4 inch pivot man, and William "Big Bill" Komenich, 6 feet, 3 inch guard, are two of the leading scorers of the Marquette university court squad which invades Jenison fieldhouse Monday night.

The soil going into the makeup of the running track in the new Jenison field house was developed by Michigan State's own soils department.

Carry 17-12 Margin In Series

A feud which had its inception back in 1921 will be renewed Monday night when Marquette's Hilltoppers come to Jenison fieldhouse for a game with Michigan State's Spartans.

Marquette holds a clear edge in the games played to date, having won 17 out of 29 contests with State. Last year the two teams divided the home and home series.

The Hilltopper record for this season so far shows victories over Wisconsin, Iowa and Wayne, mentioning those most notable. They have lost to Wisconsin and Duquesne, the latter team being one of the strongest in the east this year.

FINE RECORD

Marquette is coached by Bill Chandler, a graduate of the University of Wisconsin. Chandler has enjoyed singular success at the Hilltop school, boasting a record of 103 games won against 58 lost at the start of this season. He has been coach at Marquette since 1930.

Chandler will probably start a lineup composed of Deneen and McDonald, forwards, Komenich and Reavley, guards, and Amsden, center. Out of this array all are veterans with the exception of Jim Reavley, a sophomore making good in his first year.

Ralph "Sox's" Amsden should be a familiar figure to State basketball fans since he is playing his third year on the Marquette varsity. Standing 6 feet 4 inches and weighing 190 pounds, Amsden is the ideal center for any team.

Bill Komenich is playing his second year on the varsity and is another big boy, scaling 6 feet 3 inches and weighing 210 pounds. Komenich is a great team player and has been the steady influence for the Marquette team this year.

TIMELY BASKET

Bill MacDonald is another second year veteran, and is also another skyscraper at 6 feet 3 inches. He weighs 196 and just to add insult to injury, MacDonald is the boy who beat State here last year with his timely basket in that overtime thriller.

Bounding out the starting front is Bobby Deneen, a third year veteran from Harvard. Deneen makes it unanimous, as far as height goes, tipping in at 6 feet 1 inch. He weighs 180 pounds, and is a dead eye from far out or close in.

Indoor Workouts Underway For Moundsmen

It takes more than heavy snow and zero temperatures to scare baseball away from Michigan State college. A spring atmosphere prevailed in Demonstration hall Wednesday afternoon as the first group of candidates answered Coach John Kobs call for pitchers and catchers.

Fifteen pitchers and six catchers appeared for the first practice. Four letter men, Robert Hall, Paul Derrickson, George Monroe, pitchers, and Harvey Cook, catcher, furnish Coach Kobs with a fairly experienced mound staff and a competent receiver. Battery material from last year's freshman squad is expected to strengthen the staff.

Workouts thus far have been built around getting the candidates in shape for more extensive practice later on. Use of calisthenics and light warm-up pitching has been the major part of the work, with some attention devoted to batting and pitching form.

When the pitchers and catchers have received a sufficient amount of training to get them into proper physical condition, Coach Kobs will call the infield candidates.

Ex-Spartan Hero Returns In Role of Opponent

It is always interesting to observe what happens when a hero of the past returns a decade later in the form of an opponent to the campus from which he was graduated.

Such was the case last Thursday evening when Coach Don Ridler, sterling tackle on Michigan State's 1928-29-30 football teams, brought his Lawrence Tech freshman basketball team to East Lansing to meet the Spartan yearling quintet.

Don was a star lineman back in the days when Abe Elowitz, Bob Monnett, Harold Smead, Dale Schau, Roger Grove and Jack Hanbeck were making gridiron history along the banks of the Red Cedar.

Smiling Don learned his football under two of the nation's greatest gridiron mentors, playing one year under Harry Kipske and two under the famous Jim Crowley.

Since leaving State, Ridler has coached in the Detroit Catholic high school league and for the Although he dabbled around with baseball for a few seasons, Ridler reached his greatness as a charging lineman and a fine defensive tackle, winning three letters during his collegiate career. Last two seasons has been a member of the Blue Devils coaching staff.

Although his Tech quintet lost a 37 to 24 decision to a stronger Michigan State yearling five, much can be said in praise of Ridler's work with the Lawrence Tech yearlings.

Until meeting defeat at the hands of the Spartan courtmen, Coach Ridler's charges had racked up seven straight wins, after losing an opening encounter to the strong Highland Park J. C. quintet, a defeat which was later avenged.

Coach Ridler and his Blue Devils will have an opportunity to eliminate the sting of last Thursday's defeat when they again meet the Spartan yearlings on their own Detroit court next Friday evening.

Mason 1 Wins In Dorm Opener

Leading off the dormitory basketball games Thursday, Abbot 13 bowed to Mason 1 to the tune of 27-22. Longstreth of Mason 1 led his team by sinking four field goals and two free throws. Jenter accounted for 10 of the losers' tallies.

Mason 3 by far outplayed the Wells C five and when the final whistle blew was leading 26-16. Bertagnol with four field goals and a free throw to his credit led the Mason aggregation. D Campbell was close behind with 6 counters. Bill Monroe and Don Nowels combined to score 10 of Wells C's points.

Abbot 12 emerged victorious over Mason 6 by a 15-10 score in the final game of the evening. Starkloff, playing brilliant basketball, sank 3 field goals and one from the free throw line for Abbot 12. Stacey also marked up 7 points for the losers.

BASKETBALL

(Continued from page 1) and if the streak of injuries keeps up, Van Alstyne will be putting Manager MacDougall, red lantern and all, in the lineup.

Nevertheless, Van Alstyne plans to put a starting team on the floor, although he may have to pick it from the audience. Right now, with those four out of there, it would probably be Joe Gerard, Marty Hutt, forwards, Max Dalrymple, center, and Mel Peterson and Pete Rasich, guards.

SPARTAN SPORTFOLIO

By DON ANDERSON

For those of you who may not realize that the present edition of the Michigan State basketball team has been rolling along its winning way without much help from the reserve ranks, take a look at the individual scoring records for the first 11 games.

A glance in that direction should suffice. Five men, those who have seen most of the action to date, are fairly well bunched in the race for scoring honors. Chet Aubuchon is out in front with 92, followed by Hutt with 77, Hindman with 62, Gerard with 51, and Phillips with 46. After that it is quite a jump down to the next individual in the list, Max Dalrymple with 29 points.

Even Distribution Customary

It's customary for a few to lead in the scoring, but it is unusual for such a gap to exist between two players who are next to each other in the scale. Usually, you find a more or less even, approximate slide down the list from the top man.

Since five men are bunched near the top of the heap, it would appear that these five, who with but one exception have been the starting line-up since the season began, have been forced to bear the brunt of the scoring burden. Lacking in reserve power, Van Alstyne has not been liberal with his substitutions with the result that that advance guard has done most of the scoring.

This fact speaks well for the caliber of Michigan State's starting five. With the season at the halfway mark, a record of eight victories out of 11 chances is nothing to be sniffed at, when you consider the squad's meager enrollment. A team has to be good to register a mark like that in the face of the type of game that is played today.

Speaking of individual scores calls to mind something else. Perhaps you haven't noticed the number of free throws Chet Aubuchon has cashed in on. With an even 40 already on the ledger, it begins to look as if "Aubie" is out for the record. If he keeps it up they'll have to make a rule whereby he'll have to pitch 'em with his eyes shut.

The name Aubuchon is receiving more than a little publicity these days. We've heard more than one person who was by no means partial to Michigan State call the Gary Gamecock the best guard in the country.

There is only one other basketball guard in Michigan State's cage history that came even close to Aubuchon. That was Bob Herrick, a Spartan great of only a few seasons ago. Bob was probably Aubuchon's peer in the shooting department, for the former had a pair of the keenest eyes we've ever seen. He could drop them in from far out with the greatest of ease and he was sure death on the dog shots. But he'll have to take a back seat to Aubuchon when it comes to ball handling and all-around floor work.

Throws Them Off Stride

"Aubie" is a past master at throwing the opposing player off balance. In the Washington State game he had those six-foot plus boys from the coast tearing their hair. He did everything but dribble between their legs.

Next year will be his last in basketball for Michigan State. It will be pretty hard to fill the gap he'll leave in that starting lineup.

It begins to look as though Michigan State and Michigan will open their football schedules as planned next season, meeting each other on October 12th. There doesn't seem to be much chance that the contest will be switched to November 2.

Tank Prospects Brighten In Daily Workouts

By Bob Hutton

Spartan tank prospects which hit the bottom of the pool in 1939 apparently are on the rebound to the surface, according to Russell "Jake" Daubert, varsity swimming coach.

With the initial meet of the current campaign yet three weeks in the future, varsity records are being smashed in wholesale lots by the swimmers who are working out daily under Daubert's supervision.

A strictly sophomore team will represent Michigan State tank wars this season, Daubert indicated. Only four regulars from 1939 have been able to hold their positions against the crush of sophomore swimming talent.

Those regulars who once again will carry the Spartan colors are: Capt. Eddie Ochocinski and Bob Whitsit, backstroke; Lad Loomis, breast stroke, and Don Ladd, free style.

Coach Daubert feels safe in predicting that his charges will chalk up at least a 500 record for the season and may even go over the even mark. This would represent a great boost to the Spartan swimming ego after the disastrous 1939 season.

Although February 3 has been announced as the date of the initial meet, the name of the Spartan opponent has not been revealed. The entire tank schedule will be released in the near future and word from those who know has it as the toughest card State mermin have ever faced.

Wrestlers Open At Wheaton

Michigan State wrestlers will lift the curtain on the 1940 Spartan mat season tonight when they clash with Wheaton college in the Illinois school's stronghold.

Coach Collins is depending largely on victories from his Co-captains Benny Riggs and Charles Hutson, although there is a slight possibility that Riggs, who has been bothered with a slight muscular injury, may be forced to the sidelines.

In case that Riggs is unable to start, Tom Brown, Detroit senior,

Fencers Seek Revenge For 1939 Loss

Michigan State's D. J. Genski unsheath their weapons this afternoon at 2 p. m., in the gymnasium, when they tackle Lawrence Tech's strong fencing squad in the home card attraction on the Spartan campus during the day.

The Spartans, in an attempt to avenge the two defeats suffered at the hands of Tech last year, will present a strong line-up, though Manuel Arteaga and Bill Hasselback, two of last year's stellar performers, are gone.

Coach Schmitter's starting line-up include five veterans and two sophomores. In foils, Capt. Jerry Richardson, Ben Bisberger and Sophomore George Williams will hold down one, two and three spots, respectively.

George Genski and Bill Hammond will take over in sabre and Bisberger and Garth O'Connell in epee.

Alternates in foils are Bill Hammond and Elmer Kay, in sabre, Booth, Herber and Williams, Richardson and Wade.

The Spartan schedule this year calls for thirteen matches, only four of them scheduled at home attractions. Lawrence Tech, Western Reserve, Notre Dame and Wayne are the four teams Michigan State fans will have an opportunity to see.

Coach Collins is depending largely on victories from his Co-captains Benny Riggs and Charles Hutson, although there is a slight possibility that Riggs, who has been bothered with a slight muscular injury, may be forced to the sidelines.

In case that Riggs is unable to start, Tom Brown, Detroit senior, will receive the call in the 125 pound class.
