State News to Receive AP Service in Fall

Today's Campus

... Dark Deal

An example of willingness to help out in civilian defense was set by two Sigma Kappas during the blackout Sunday night when they answered an appeal for help from an anonymous "air raid warden." Following directions, the girls stood on opposite sides of Grand River avenue throughout the 30-minute test, counting cars which moved in either direction. Although only official cars went by during the last part of the test, the pair faithfully marked an entry for each in "official" folders. Now all they have as mementos of the test are the "official" white hats which they were given and the report on traffic which no one seems to want.

... Sleep Unchanged

There will be no changes in sleeping hours during the second summer session, but the college hours for eating and study will be slightly revamped. The Union grill will be closed entirely, but the cafeteria will be open as usual, except for Saturday nights and not at all on Sundays. The library will be open from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. on weekdays, from 8 a. m. until noon on Saturdays, and not at all on Sundays.

... News Item

Prof. Ray Hutson, head of the entomology department, attended a National Corn Borer conference in Chicago this week.

... Chop, Chop

"Cut'n' up" is the best way to describe what a certain group of students are doing on the campus these days. Prof. P. A. Herbert of the forestry department reports a job of major proportions in sawing timber is being carried on at the woodlot. Forestry students are cutting approximately 10,000 board feet of lumber a day and expect to reach a quota of 75,000 board feet within the next week.

MSC Donates $427.06 To Aid Other Students

Michigan State college students contributed $427.06 to the World Student Service fund during the regular school year, it was announced yesterday by Homer P. Rainey, chairman of the sponsoring service organizations.

The funds will aid in continuing education in Europe and China where university work has not been blacked out.

Attends Textile School

Miss Merle Ford, head of the T.C.R.A. department in Home Economics, is now attending a special school on textile testing at Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Boston, Mass.

Early Figures Indicate High Enrollment

New Record Is Anticipated For Post-Session

Although enrollment figures will not be tabulated until early next week, registration Tuesday and yesterday indicates that the total for the second summer session will be considerably higher than the previous record.

Registration ended yesterday for students attending both sessions, with some late registrants expected. Others planning to attend the post-session will register throughout the week or on Monday.

While it is still too early for administration officials to estimate the enrollment, unofficial predictions center around 1,500. Most of this total will be regularly enrolled undergraduates, including some new freshmen who register today and tomorrow.

Whatever the second session total may be, the combined summer enrollment will be far above last summer's high. Attendance for both sessions last year was about 1,900, which is already exceeded by 2,267 enrolled for the first half of this summer.

Enrollment in Veterinary Science will remain approximately constant, since course sequence requires full summer attendance. Early registration also showed a high percentage of engineers returning.

Nurserymen Finish Conference Today

About 100 members of the Michigan Association of Nurserymen, hailing from all parts of Michigan and northern Ohio, will conclude a two-day summer meeting here today.

Featured address will be that of Dr. Harper Chadwick, associate professor of floriculture at Ohio State university, who will discuss shortcuts for nurserymen in view of the increasing labor shortage apparent in the industry.

Prof. C. W. Barr, of the college horticulture department, will discuss camouflage methods as they affect nurserymen. The college horticulture and landscape gardening departments will take part in the program en masse.

Farm Women Close Conference Today

More than 700 delegates to the 16th annual Farm Women's Week at Michigan State college were scheduled to end their program today.

The program this year was centered around the theme, "Farm Women's Responsibilities in the War Effort." President John A. Hannah delivered the welcoming address, while Irma Gross, home economics professor, talked to the meeting on "Be a Victory Planner."

Anne Brown Here Next Wednesday

State students will hear the singer for whom George Gershwin rewrote the part of Bess into a lead role in the light opera of Catfish Row, "Porgy and Bess," when Anne Brown, talented negro soprano, appears on the summer concert series Wednesday, August 5, in the college auditorium. The concert will begin at 8:30 p. m., with admission by fee receipt.

Anne Brown, who is 26 years old, was born in Baltimore, where her father is a practicing physician and where she received her first musical inspiration from her music-loving mother.

Started as "Bess" Her first starring role was "Bess" and since then she has rapidly advanced until she recently appeared as soloist with the NBC symphony under Leopold Stokowski.

She is perfecting a repertory in four languages, including the Lieder of Schubert, Schumann, and Brahms, the great heroic French and Italian opera arias, and folk songs of America.

Has Full Booking The nearest thing Anne Brown had to a debut was her appearance at the age of 5 before the soldiers at Camp Mead during World War I. After that she sang in school and church and studied in New York until she launched her career six years ago with "Porgy and Bess."

State News to Continue in 2nd Summer Session

The Michigan State News will continue to be published weekly on Thursdays throughout the second summer session. Students interested in working on the editorial or business staffs may apply at the offices in the Union annex basement.

Associated Press Elects MSC Paper to Membership

Varied Services to Give Michigan State News High Ranking Among College Newspapers

The Michigan State News, which will become a daily student publication beginning fall term, has been elected to membership in the Associated Press, it was announced yesterday by AP officials in New York city.

The membership in the No. 1 recognized press association will enable the Michigan State News to receive complete worldwide news coverage by a direct wire, an up-to-the-minute news picture service, and the Wide World feature service.

Question Sale of 'Near Beer'

East Lansing authorities today were investigating the legality of "near beer" now being offered for sale here by several merchants.

Although officials do not question the alcoholic content of the beverage—proclaimed to be not more than 1 per cent—they are conducting a test to determine if the formula violates the city charter.

Chief of Police Richard Rogers said that several complaints have been made, and that the matter has been placed in the hands of City Attorney Harry Hubbard to determine the legality of "near beer."

Under the East Lansing charter amendment, merchants are not permitted to sell, manufacture or keep for sale or give away any "vinous, malt, brewed or fermented spirituous liquors."

Samples of the "near beer" have been submitted to the state chemist to determine if the formula used in making it violates the city charter amendment.

MSC Coaches to Discuss Pre-Military Training

"Preliminary Conditioning through Athletics" will be the subject to be discussed by Ralph H. Young, athletic director, and K. J. McCristal, associate professor of physical education, at noon today before the Lansing Kiwanis club at Hotel Olds. Karl Schlademan, MSC track coach, will be in charge of the program.

NYA Student Aid to Be Halved As Congress Slices Quotas

By BARBARA DENNISON

Contrary to recent statements, NYA aid will be available for students this year, although in somewhat limited amounts, according to a letter received by Pres John A. Hannah from headquarters in Washington.

Only one half of the money appropriated last year will be available this year, states Glen Stewart, who has been in charge of NYA student aid at Michigan State since 1933. "An average of 430 students per month received aid during the 1941-42 school year, whereas under the new system, only about 200 can be accommodated," he said.

In order to receive NYA work a student must have at least a C average, must not belong to a fraternity or sorority, and must be able to prove that he definitely needs financial assist-place the Michigan State News on an equal footing with the nation's topflight collegiate publications.

Other College Members

Besides the 1,400 commercial members of the AP, other select college members include Michigan, Wisconsin, Ohio State and Dartmouth.

A teletype machine, which will pound out the news from all over the world at the rate of 60 words per minute, will be installed in the Michigan State News office before Sept. 26 when daily publication will begin.

The AP wire service will supplant the Transradio Press service which was used in the Michigan State News after the outbreak of war last Dec. 7.

ance to carry on his college work.

A year ago last spring the program reached its peak at State when 600 students were on the NYA payroll one month. Referring to this fact Stewart observed, "I can't, however, look forward to the same demand for NYA jobs this year as has been prevalent in the past three years." He explained this was not entirely due to the fact that the program has been cut in half, but that the speed-up in industry will give jobs to many people who did not have them last year, thus enabling more families to support their children in college.

Application blanks will be available in about two weeks and should be obtained as soon as possible by those who wish to do NYA work during the coming school year.

ALONG THE WINDING CEDAR

By Len Barnes

THOUGHTS THAT PASS IN THE HEAT—What happened to the summer program of OSD and Student council, for which summer directors were duly appointed at the end of spring term? No news, noise, or activities have come from either . . . The new song "She Wears a Pair of Silver Wings" should help along the air corps recruiting drive no end. It's a good piece of propaganda . . . Has a Lansing bus company slowed its service in the past week or two in anticipation of a favorable ruling by Lansing and East Lansing city councils to pick up passengers every other corner in the future?

Unsung and unthanked patriots include the army of retail clerks who are cooperating in the Retailers for Victory program to sell war stamps and bonds in July. By suggesting to every customer that he buy stamps and bonds, they are showing Congress that Americans don't have to be forced to buy them.

But customers' attitudes toward the clerks aren't always all that could be desired. Salesmen get nothing for selling them, and it takes up time they might be using to suggest something else. Clerks tell us that many customers act bored when asked to buy stamps. Others bristle up and say they are buying their 10 per cent where they work, thank you, and it's more than they can afford now.

One navy man even got angry and said it was a lot of nerve to ask him to buy when he had come 1,600 miles on furlough to see his wife.

Exceptional in her attitude was the woman who declined a stamp seller apologetically, exhibited a fistful of them she'd bought upstairs, and actually thanked the clerk for offering to sell her a share in America's eventual victory. It is persons like her who keep the war effort on the home front going.

THE 8 A.M. FINAL

By CHUK

We have spent a very dull week, doing nothing but sleeping less, going to classes but sleeping more, and only succeeding in lowering our mind to the gutter stage.

Speaking of low things in general, we're sure you all heard about the mama pigeon who was worried about Oscar pigeon because he was becoming people-toed.

We thought you had. If Sherman had ever attended a second session of summer school when the only place of abode (?) was closed, meaning the Union grill of course, he certainly would have left a more colorful quote for posterity. We're seriously thinking of opening a small blind pig in the basement of Morrill hall for all thirst-weary citizens . . . bring your Palmer Method certificate.

Yup!

Did you hear about the fella that transferred from State to Michigan and raised the I.Q. of both?

THINKIN' OUT LOUD

By Sheldon Moyer

WAR or no war, Michigan State college will not suffer a tremendous drop in enrollment this fall as predicted in some circles.

This became more evident than ever last week when the registrar's office began to take count of admissions for next September.

It is evident at this point that a slump in total enrollment is due, but indications are that even more new students than last year will be in the fold by the time freshman week rolls around.

At last report, there were 1,029 applications for admission. Last year's applications at the same date were 1,093, which indicates a drop of 64 students. However, 234 new students already are enrolled in summer school, showing that enrollment is 170 students ahead of last year.

When the final count is taken, total enrollment should be somewhere between 5,500 and 6,000, which is almost normal for fall term. The loss in students will come from the ranks of upperclassmen who have entered the armed forces.

But among the upperclassmen still remaining will be the answer to the small drop in enrollment. Critics of college students being given draft deferment will have to sing another tune when they discover that more than 75 per cent of upperclassmen at Michigan State already are earmarked for the armed forces or for key positions in the defense program; students who are taking training in advanced military, those who have enlisted in the army, navy or marine reserves and those who will be ready to step in to a scientific unit of the production parade.

Although civilian building has been halted, war construction is booming at the rate of twelve and one-half billion a year.

Practice Insures Good Performance

Who knows if enemy bombing planes will ever come to this area, making necessary a blackout such as Ingham county went through Sunday night.

Reports indicate that the latest test was more effective than the first. That is to be expected. And it is a good sign that area residents, including students, know what to do when they are expecting an alarm. Practice precedes any good performance.

But as Capt. Donald Leonard of the Michigan State police has said, enemy planes are not going to wait for wardens to get to their posts, or storekeepers to turn out their lights.

No doubt, it is in the plans of Ingham county defense heads, ably directed by Col. R. C. Huston, dean of Applied Science at Michigan State college, to hold unannounced blackouts in the near future. That's the only way we can really be prepared for an emergency.

So now is distinctly not the time to sink into a complacent, well-prepared attitude. Preparations are not completed yet. They scarcely have begun.

YOUR School Paper Is Growing Up

Michigan State college students have been kind and indulgent in accepting the first summer school publication of the Michigan State News and its new format.

But why shouldn't they accept it in such a manner? After all, the Michigan State News is their paper, a student publication, manned, circulated and supported by them.

It is a cooperative effort of the student body, and through continued cooperation, the Michigan State News should be past its experimental stages by next September when it will be published five times per week.

The daily editions of the Michigan State News will appear every day except Sundays and Mondays with world coverage in words and pictures from the leading press association of the day, and, of course, with complete campus coverage.

In reality, the management of the Michigan State News will attempt to bring each student the best in the collegiate field at the lowest possible cost.

Do You Have Rooms to Rent? Do You Have Something to Sell?

It's only a matter of dwindling weeks now before all Michigan State college students will be back at school. Included in the vast group will be the freshmen and transfer students. They will want rooms, they will want merchandise, they will want services.

But they don't know where to get these things unless you tell them.

You still have until Aug. 10, the deadline of the annual Michigan State News freshman edition, to tell new students what you have to offer, and to get your share of the business. The freshman edition will be mailed into the homes of every applicant shortly after Aug. 15.

DZVs and Mason 8 to Meet Today for Championship

Mason 8 Wins Dorm Crown on One-Hitter

The DZV Brotherhood and Precinct 8 of Mason Hall, champions in their respective leagues, independent and dormitory, will meet today at 6 p. m. on diamond 1, west of President Hannah's home, for the all-college softball championship.

Mason 8 won six games in the dormitory league while losing one, and the DZVs are undefeated in five games. Mason 8 broke a tie for the dorm loop title last night when it defeated Mason 6, 1-0. Roy Fraleigh gave up but one hit to Pre-precinct 6, while the champions collected but four. Three of these were singles in the first inning, but Mason 8 failed to cross the plate. It was a scoreless contest until the fifth frame when John Goodman doubled. Two walks filled the bases and he scored on an error.

Blackout Termed a Complete Success; Another August 9

Sunday night's blackout, second in a series and first to last a half-hour, was "very successful in every way," according to Col. R. C. Huston, Ingham county air raid warden, who further declared cooperation from civilians, officials, and auxiliaries was completely satisfactory.

It was announced this week that the third and last in the planned series of blackouts will take place Sunday, Aug. 9, and will last from 10 to 10:30 p. m. rather than from 10:15 to 10:45 p. m., as the second in the series.

"More practice blackouts will of course be held later but for now the Aug. 9 practice is the last one we have planned," Col. Huston said.

Complete details of the approaching blackout will be announced later.

Harry Lott, local OCD head, reported that wardens experienced "very little trouble" in East Lansing, and that cooperation was all that could be expected, but that several prosecutions would be carried through for Sunday night violators.

He mentioned among these violators a professor who left a light burning and was detected by a crack of light at a window, and a workman who refused to halt his car during the blackout, protesting he was "on his way to work."

— THE — WOMAN'S WORLD

By BARBARA DENNISON

Women living in Mary Mayo dormitory who are finishing their-summer work at the close of the first session should be out of the dorm by 10 a. m. Saturday, according to Vera Deaner, president of the A.W.S. Judiciary board. Those who plan to remain for the second session do not have to follow this plan, she said.

However, West Mayo will be closed after Saturday and anyone wishing to live at East Mayo during the second session should put in her application as soon as possible.

Kay Welch, West Mayo representative to the Judiciary board will take charge of the board's activities for the rest of the summer, according to Dean of Women Elisabeth Conrad.

The new ensign enrolled at Michigan State in the fall of 1936 from Dunkirk, N. Y. He was a football guard for three years and was graduated from State in 1941. He then took up the duties of Kircher who entered the army and is a lieutenant stationed at Fort Knox, Kentucky.

Other coaches to enter the services are Don Rossi, a second lieutenant in the army air forces at Kelly field, Texas; Lieut. Vincent Vanderburg, Capt. Merton Vandermeer and Lieut. Bob Friedlund, all football assistants to Coach Bachman.

Every week, one hears of more coaches entering the army, navy or marines. Their former star athletes follow them into the services and are their pupils on camp and field athletic teams. These teams schedule games with colleges all over the nation. Once in a while one hears of a coach and players meeting the old alma mater. What war doesn't do these days!

Attic of Library Cleared of Fuel For Incendiaries

By LILLIAN PURDY

In the interests of safety, security and defense, the storehouse of knowledge at M.S.C.—better known as the college library—has been undergoing changes this summer.

More exactly, the attic of the library has been cleared of all material which would make effective tinder for incendiary bombs.

The attic above the wing containing the six tiers of book stacks has long housed a collection of bound and unbound newspapers and unbound duplicate magazines and documents, stored on wooden crate shelving. To Be Scrapped

The unbound-newspapers have been moved to the basement. As they are irregular files and are duplicated in bound volumes in the state library in Lansing, they will be offered for scrap.

The unbound documents have been moved to the basement stack tier, and the unbound magazines have been moved to steel cases which have been transferred from the basement to the hallway adjoining the librarian's office. Sufficient Space

Sufficient space in the basement is now available to receive enough of the former attic shelving to store the bound volumes of newspapers. The remaining shelving in the attic can be knocked down and stored in the basement for the duration.

With the attic cleared, the heavy concrete floor will probably prove adequate protection for the books on the steel stacks in the wing below.

Along FACULTY ROW

By Joan Meyers

Subtitle for this story might be "The Unwilling Hero" or "Uh uh, I'm not the type," since E. L. Ballachey, assistant professor of psychology insisted on being interviewed that a better subject for this column would be Prof. Lala Boomdeay, who does research with pink rats, or the organizing genius responsible for the Students Bankruptcy league.

But the tall, dark psychologist finally admitted that he has been at Michigan State since 1935 and that for the past seven years he has amused himself by teaching courses in general, applied and industrial psychology. Data-revealing whether or not his students have also been amused was not available, he said.

Graduate of Morningside

E. L. Ballachey is the proud alumnus of Morningside college, a liberal arts school at Sioux City, Ia. He did his graduate work and received his master's degree at the University of Minnesota, took his Ph. D. degree and taught one semester at the University of California.

He claims an average golf score of about 80, (for 18 holes) and also names photographing his children as one of his hobbies. A third hobby is indulging in various sorts of card playing.

Passes the Buck

Still insisting he is a prosaic figure and not a subject, Dr. Ballachey passed a youngish blond with toise shell rim glasses who just came in to relieve him of predicament and carry on interview.

It seems that even psychologists have a code of ethics springing to the aid of a brother in distress. The blond, it turns out, is Dr. G. D. Lovell, instructor in general psychology for the summer.

Dr. Lovell, as his summer students will testify, is an instructor who prefers the initial type of teaching. He is here from Grinnell college, Grinnell, Ia., where he has been teaching psychology for the year. He did his undergraduate work at Baylor, Texas, received his Ph. D. degree Northwestern.

Says Beauty Abounds

Commenting on his impressions of Michigan State, Dr. Lovell said he felt it necessary to say something besides "the campus is very beautiful," he said; "The beauty of campus is matched only by the beauty of the girls." He has done his duty on that score. Lovell did remark that Michigan State offers a good range of courses in psychology to its graduates, comparing very favorably in this respect with other universities.

Back at Grinnell besides regular teaching duties Lovell does some student counseling. When he is not figuring out what student I. Q.'s are, Lovell is busy with research on the United States army air force, the exact nature of which he is not at liberty to reveal.

With that the two psychologists went home to lunch, whatever psychologists eat.
