College Living Cost Raised $1 a Week

Dorm, Co-op Room and Board Prices to Rise Fall Term

Michigan State’s dormitories and cooperative houses will experience a blank $1 per week raise with the beginning of fall term due to rising food prices, Sec. Karl R. McDowell said yesterday.

Room and board prices will thus be raised to $11 per week at women’s dormitories and $9 and $10 at Mason-Abbot halls, he said.

McDowell, who is also chairman of the college dormitory committee, said that the continual rising prices of food forced the committee to this decision and that it was surprising to find that the decision had been deferred to this date.

Although the committee considered a raise in rates prior to the beginning of this year, opinions of dormitory and co-op residents were asked for, and when their disapproval became apparent the committee chose to wait.
