WHat Emily Post would have said about the freshman brawl that occurred during the half-time intermission of the Michigan State-Michigan football game last Saturday would be rather hard to forecast. But one thing is certain—she had considered it on a guest-host basis. Miss Post would have thought Michigan State college football very improperly handled.

The whole affair was a disgraceful and ugly blot on the good relations that have existed between the two schools. Michigan State had the right to be disappointed on the Michigan field that has Hirohito offering President Roosevelt a note of apology. The fine performance of the Michigan State team was spoiled when charging freshmen boiled into several bandsman, knocking them to the ground.

If Michigan State football cannot be held entirely responsible for the affair, some State upperclassmen urged them on. University of Michigan students (many of them not freshmen) brought their good manners to the fore by streaming out of the stands and attacking State freshmen. Numerous fight occurred, many students received cuts and bruises, some of them serious, and even the playing of the Star-Spangled Banner and our own national anthem was stopped. The game reached a new low in righteousness when Michigan state police had to intervene and break up the fighting.

The future careers of athletes of that sort can be eliminated, outbreaks that may lead to strained relations between the states. There is no way to make freshmen demonstrations and snake-dances on our opponent's field. This will do away with any opportunity for shameful conflits such as that in future years.

Fire Prevention Week is Every Week

This is Fire Prevention week, and it would not be unwise to heed a few words of wisdom from M. V. Crewe, East Lansing fire chief.

"With fire inspections and the splendid cooperation of the owners and operators of the houses in which you live, everything possible has been done to make them safe from fire. So do your part to assist in making this week and every week of your life in which you can be proud.

"Fires caused by our war enemies are bad enough. Let's not add to them with carelessness."

"Check on your electrical appliances; keep them in good order. Protect your own property. It is of much more value to you than the money you would receive on an insurance adjustment. Carefulness on your part will be greatly appreciated by the people with whom you live."

(Appendix Cases Mark Hospital Week-end)

Four students, all relatives of the late Olm Memorial Health center, were reported as undergoing emergency operations for acute cases of appendicitis.

What might be termed an "epidemic" of appendicitis was handled at the regional hospital during the week-end, Dr. C. A. C. Hollander, director of the institution, reported. Two patients were operated on, one patient with an acute condition of the appendix, and one patient who had a suspected case of appendicitis.
