MSC Amacons

Judging by the health center's reports for the last year, Michigan State's women are somewhat healthier than men. Men made up three-quarters of the 40,699 calls made at the hospital during the year ending April 1.

Eclipse

Dr. Hollander reported, this was a drop from the 50,143 calls of the year before, and it's likely the winter warmth was responsible for the smaller improvement, said the college's medical director. Women call more frequently than men, and roughly a similar proportion was responsible for the decline.

New Order

Readers of the Marquette Tribune, published by the State of Michigan Press, are invited to attend the meeting when the paper came out. The Marquette Tribune is the only thing in the State that is like a newspaper. The Marquette Tribune is a daily newspaper that is published in the city of Marquette, Michigan.

Age of Innocence

Some of the older students at Michigan State College have been known to make a trip to the lake, their thought editors say, the other morning when the paper came out. "The Marquette Tribune," an issue devoted to the Marquette student, what it would be like if America should become a political party. The fantasy series like "Golden Years," "The Lakefront," and "New Faces on the Frontier" got the reader interested, but the explanation they were trying to derive was that "It Can Happen." These papers are published by the State of Michigan Press.

Teacher of Japanese Course Relates Her Experiences With Rising Sun

Dr. ELLEN STEGEMEN

An article by Professor Elmer Stegeman was published in the September 1943 issue of "Japanese American," a quarterly journal. The article was titled "Japanese American: A Historical Perspective." It discussed the history of Japanese Americans in the United States, focusing on the period of World War II. Stegeman, a professor of history at Michigan State University, was an expert on Japanese American history. The article was later reprinted in "Japanese American: A Historical Perspective," a collection of essays on the history of Japanese Americans in the United States. It was published by the University of Hawaii Press in 1983. The collection included essays by other historians and authors who focused on different aspects of Japanese American history. The essays discussed the experiences of Japanese Americans during the war, the impact of the internment camps on their lives, and the challenges they faced in the post-war period. The collection also included interviews with Japanese American veterans and their families, providing a personal perspective on the experiences of Japanese Americans during this time.

Why Isn't MSC in the Scrap Drive?

It seems that every civic organization, every patriotic citizen, and even the high schools in the state are making some type of contribution to the scrap metal drive. It appears that this has been forthcoming from the Michigan State college or its student body.

Surely a sizable amount of scrap must be hidden in the various dormitories and cemeteries of the campus. Every basement and attic storeroom undoubtedly contains some old copper, tin, and maybe tin cans. Scraped. This appears to be a step in the right direction, but buildings and grounds department to look into.

Why not set the pace for other East Lansing residents by searching through your basements, attics, and closets and scraping useless articles? A thorough going over of each house would probably produce several tons of scrap metal which is so vitally needed at this time.

Beauty is truth, truth beauty; that all is known on earth, and all ye need to know—Beattie.

An Open Letter to Eddie Sewell

Dear Eddie,

Congratulations, fellow! You unquestionably are one popular guy on the Michigan State campus! I am sure that you are nomination leading in the senior class presidency, and you're still the only candidate. The fraternity the all for you, and nobody is your business.

May I suggest that, they held the elections over until this fall—and just for one reason. They don't want anybody for senior class president other than Eddie Sewell. This is a fine tribute to you.

Spartans at War

By Al BERGLUND

Interesting note about the older wings that many former Spartans and now wearing in combat is that although wings have been in existence since the beginning of the war, the actual flying of the planes has been done by the students who have passed through the Michigan State College aeronautical training school. The school was established in 1914.

Donald Goss, L. T. Al, former undergraduate assistant in the aeronautical department, has recently returned from the Training Replacement Training Center at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., for his basic training. He was graduated in February.

On February 16th is another big event at the war station, the Al War Wing, as members of the 54th, the 102nd, and the 132nd outfits are due to arrive. The 54th outfit has been fresh from three years ago, when they left Columbia, S. C.

Two other men from Lansing Cadet Camp were a member of the 1934 state championship team when estimating the future of the 54th outfit. They said that it would be a success, and the 54th outfit should be a success.
