Senator Asks New Coalition of Dems, GOP

Wallace Blames Loss on Poor Turn-out

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 (AP) — A leading Senate Republican, Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan, today proposed a Republican-Democratic victory meeting with "politics and new deals" for December to enlist support for the coalition. The coalition, he said, would carry the job of bringing the war home.

His idea is that congress should create a unicameral committee on war cooperation. "The committee should be open to congressmen, both parties, and would be appointed by the President and the majority leader of the Senate and would have its own chairman.

Meanwhile, the house head bill, sponsored by Michigan Republican Rep. Harold L. Turner, was called for reading. The bill would create a unicameral committee on war cooperation. British Commander Declares Complete Victory Almost in Sight, Axis Troops to Keep Up Battle Pressure, 'Put Panzers in Bag'

By Edward Kennedy

Over 100,000 men, fighting with hundreds of wrecked enemy tanks, planes and guns, the British and their Greek, Greek, and Greek allies, drove relentlessly on the westward, Marshall Erwin Rommel's exalted Panzer army, which had been brought to bay at Fuka, 62 miles south of the Alamein Line.

Soviet Garrison Halts Germans

MOSCOW, Nov. 6 (AP) — Wave after wave of German soldiers halted in the rubble of Stalingrad on the night of Oct. 30-31, and the Red army also held firm. The battle for the city of the Soviet Union was in full swing.

The situation as it had been summed up just before the onset of the month communication was:

Despite a German attack on the east of the city, the Russians declared they held all Stalingrad, except for a narrow pocket where the embattled troops on the northern outskirts are now fighting.

Even the recently-defeated German armor force was still holding a small area of the northeast of Staligrad and the battle was still being fought in that area.
Something to Keep—Don't Let It Go!

If you have in your heart a sacred memory of the days gone by, that glow warm and your heart was pure, to which you can bow down when the days are dark and the road rough—don't let it go.

If you have a faith, however dim, which makes sense out of life, and gives meanings to your fleeting days, and desires to believe in the face of the worst the years can offer—don't let it go.

If you have ever had a high mood, cross-stained and holy, when life seemed to reveal you what it is, and you could feel, when for an instant the clouds parted and let the light—don't let it go.

If the world in which you were brought up seems unreal, or has been shattered like a ship in a storm, and there is one piece of it that seems near and real, grasp it, hold it—don't let it go.

If in this sad, cynical world, in which you are tempted to turn hard and sour, believing that all men are mean and mealy, you see the white flower of a disinterested goodness blooming—don't let it go.

If, when life seemed to drop its veil and show you what it can be, when for an instant the clouds parted and let the light—don't let it go.

State Will Feature Passing Attack Against Cougars Tomorrow

SPOKANE, Wash., Nov. 5 (AP)—Without waiting to take a look at the returning Michigan State squad, football sources here gave Washington State today as a favorite to beat the Spartans Saturday in their interdivisional battle.

Backed by four scores in eye starts for second place behind D.C., A.A. in the Pacific Coast conference, Washington State appears to have a sounder or less edge on the traveling Spartans, who haven’t had a workout since they left the home field Monday.

Treating Axis armored detachments—men who fought at Chertok, thanks to the steady rear-line battering of their supply depots by American and Allied airmen. But a British dispatch noted not a single Axis tank had been able to move the roads.

Allied airmen reported desert roads and trails were packed with retreating Axis tanks, and their bombs tore huge holes in these concentrations. Fighting planes also strafed Axis troops scurrying away from the roads.

However, conservative officers believe there is still some hard fighting ahead for the eighth army, they point out that the existence of an enemy screening force has enabled Rommel to hold his elements together to some extent in order to cover his retreat.
