Morrill Hall Has Picturesque History

\textbf{Liberal Arts Offices, Soldier Classes Now Replace Chickens in 'The Coop'}

From women's center to LiberaL Arts, headquarters to some more distant in the history of Morrill Hall. With a colorful and interesting past as the event spot of the campus, the building has grown of a versatile nature and now has changed its complexion to fit the needs of army occupation.

The section which State's home office is Morrill Hall, was built in 1839 and rebuilt in 1940 and is now being used in because of lack construction. It became the center for all non-military activities, as an army dormitory, classroom, social room, and dining hall.

\textbf{Housed Swimming Pool}

Beneath what is now known room 111, the pool was originally a large swimming pool, and the room itself was a gymnasium and later served as a recreation hall for any group on campus, which wanted to have a social meeting.

The Women's building, which was more recently known as the 'The Coop' because it housed all the women of the college, is now the home of economic departments, serving in a query combination of the household students, women's and residence halls.

\textbf{In Campus Quarters}

The dormitory which was once a home to chickens is now the home of military students. Women's dorms have been converted into girls dorms, and the men's dorms have been converted into women's dorms.
