Spartans At War

LEADING this week's coverage of the Michigan State football team's activities was the start of practice on Tuesday, August 3rd. The team is currently preparing for their upcoming season under the guidance of Head Coach Dale Rimmer, who has been working closely with the players to ensure a successful campaign.

In the midst of this preparation, the team faced several challenges. One of the major concerns was the issue of space. As the number of players increased, finding adequate practice facilities became a major challenge. The team had to make do with the existing facilities, which were not always conducive to their needs.

Another issue was the limited availability of equipment. The team was forced to make do with whatever was available, which resulted in some delays in their training sessions.

Despite these challenges, the team continued to work hard, determined to meet the demands of the season. The players were enthusiastic about the season ahead and were looking forward to showcasing their skills on the field.

In the meantime, the team's fans were eagerly anticipating the start of the season, and the team was determined to live up to their expectations.

Training Director Stresses Import of College Courses

Captain Payne Calls Training "Proving Ground"

"Rumors are probably one of the greatest hindrances that raw students have to overcome in their training," according to Capt. Kenneth T. Payne, director of training for the Ninth CTH.

From the time an aviation cadet candidate enters the army, he is bombarded by such pieces of information as these: "The tests don't mean a thing. You're in and you can't be sent home."

More than other news stories, aviators' accounts of college and cadet training are an ideal medium for the news media to transmit the truth to the public. They must expect to hear a lot of such advice and contrast some of it with their own experiences.

Grades Count

"There are those who believe the value of college training is not worth the. cost," Capt. Payne said. The importance of what these young men of Michigan State cannot be understated. The future they make on the airfield depends on sound training, and it is crucial that their training be given special attention in shaping their future. That means it is the responsibility of the college to make sure that their training is adequate as well as necessary.

Exams Important

It is an axiom that what Capt. Payne has said is needed in the training is needed in the future. "If you don't have the training, you don't have the future," he declared.

Sectional Bids

Lafayette College will hold sectional bids on August 19. College bids close at noon. Alumnae and other interested persons are invited to attend. Telephone 8-2216 or 8-2217.
State's hospital history began in 1884 when the first hospital building was built at the corner of Abbott road and Grand l'Anse. It was a seven room house comprised of a fireproof hospital, $2,000. The hospital later added a new building and was supported by the State, which was paid for the hospital by the Board of Control. The new building was opened in 1901. It was the third hospital building of the State.
