Russian Flies Sink Six Nazi Troop Barges
Red Army Forces River Near Comol in Bitter Tank Skirmishes

LONDON, Tuesday, Oct. 7 (AP)—Russian airmen, apparently hammering the last German remnants remaining in the Crimea, sank six more barges carrying troops and supplies to the enemy today, while the Red army forced another river near Kerch and killed nearly 1,000 Germans amid bitter tank battles.

The Soviet Black Sea fleet also destroyed more than 100 tracks and damaged a German destroyer while a midnight communiqué supplemented word received by the Soviet minister in London, but there was not as yet official confirmation of what Berlin announced yesterday, that the liberation of the eastern part of Crimea was complete.

In White Russia and on the Dnieper River line of the German and Austrian front, and west of the Baltic, the Dnieper, the Brzezina, and the Donetz, advance took place.

Three print ships carrying men, supplies and equipment, were captured by the Russians at the point where 3,000 Germans were killed and 8,000 enemy soldiers, which had been rescued on the north bank, were carried across the river and put ashore.

The Russians hold almost entirely to the westward only 1 miles east of the 202 mile German-Geneva line, from near Boston, and have reached the upper river, east, below Genoa to the Zuzanderi and the Vistula, on the high west bank, and thus have the Dnieper waterway entirely.
