Allied Fifth, Eighth Armies Cross Key Italian Rivers in Advance on Rome

Nazi Line Falls in Escarpment at Lake, Near Anzio: Troops Capture German Entrenchments: American, British, and French Troops Make Strong Progress—Curtain Falls for Last Hours of Axis in Italy

Allied forces about to break through German defenses in the Anzio area. The Fifth Army, under General Mark Clark, and the Eighth Army, under General Sir Bernard Montgomery, are proceeding north into the heart of the Italian peninsula.

The Allied forces have crossed two rivers on which the German forces are making a stand. They are the British and the Americans in the Anzio sector and the French in the Cassino area.

The crossing of the rivers will be a signal for the Allied forces to continue their advance towards Rome. The German forces are withdrawing to the east, and the Allies are advancing to the west.

The crossing of the rivers is the final stage of the Allied offensive in Italy. The Allies have been fighting for several months to break through the German defenses and capture Rome.

Weary coastal defense area, fitting Morton Cooper pitched the St. Louis Cardinals to a 4-5 victory over the New York Yankees in the second game of the world series today off a few hours after the sudden death of his brother.

Mort and his brother Walter, who recently joined the team a few days before the war, were among the Yankees who were worn out by the doubleheader.

The score was 4-5.

The Yankees, led by left and Keller following the infield's outstanding series, were out of the game after Cooper had pitched a no-hitter into the fifth inning.

Hinder as a pitching error, the ninth inning, to score an unearned run, and the last batter, after Cooper had walked in a run, was allowed to score on an error by second baseman Dan Tulasides.

The count was 3-1 in favor of the Yankees, and it didn't look like the ball was going to be the pitching error of the day.

Yankees Numerical Strengths

A couple of the better philosophers of baseball believe that a ball game is a game of numbers and that the team with the largest numerical strength wins.

The Yankees are the largest numerical strength, with 28,000 fans in attendance.

The game was played in a field that had a home run fence of 500 feet.
