LONDON, Nov. 1.—The Red army cut the last German road of retreat from the Crimea today by capturing Prドkopolit and smashing a German reconnaissance train in a swift effort to kill or capture the tens of thousands of Germans trapped in the Crimea. The Red army is on the verge of a complete victory, according to Gen. Mikhail Kutuzov, the German field commander.

The Germans faced one of their greatest disasters since Berlin, where Field Marshal Gen. Friedrich von Paulus, chief of army of the Volks-Sturm, was killed. The Red German forces are believed to number 20,000, and the situation is described as desperate. The Red army has crossed the Don, the northern boundary of the Crimea, and is now in the isthmus of the Crimean peninsula.

In many ways, it would be possible to drown out the rustling leaves by the addition of the sound of gunshot and the shouts of the soldiers, during the war. But while the war is on, the student at Michigan is not one of the thousands who are serving in the armed forces. Instead, he is working at his studies, not for the purpose of being a good citizen, but for the purpose of being a good student.

In order to be sure that the students have the opportunity to continue their studies, it is necessary that they have the necessary supplies. It is also necessary that they have the necessary time to study.
