College Carousel to Feature Faculty Entertainment

By Leon Sennstrom

The streets of Michigan State College will be filled with the sounds of music tonight as the student body is treated to the enthralling presentations of music and show programs planned for the evening by members of the faculty.

The evening's events will get under way at 8 o'clock tonight with a musical drama, "The White Collar," by Professor of Music J. H. O. Genung. This will be followed by an organ recital by Mrs. H. R. Watters, and a musical comedy program "Honeymoon in Heaven." Both of these events will be presented in the Lone Star Ballroom.

At 9:30 the audience will be treated to the highly-successful musical "The Farmer's Daughter," presented on stage by the students of the School of Speech.

A short address will be given by President A. M. Clapp, and the evening will close with intercollegiate games of football and basketball.

Today's Campus

Dear Santa

The young folk in the dormitories and the house mothers and maids as well are looking forward to the coming of Santa Claus and his reindeer and sleigh. The children especially are looking forward to telling Father Christmas all the things they have been good about while they were growing up, and are secretly hoping that Santa will bring them something they have always wanted

Women's Intuition

For color of the State News and its Tom Greene has said that the belief that the pen is mightier than the sword. Women for years have had their hands full with the housework and the pan of a man, whose part in the war were wives and mothers and the other household chores.
