THE LESS SAID ..... By NEVA ACKERMAN

NEW: About the United States Student Council's decision on the campus parking problems and the matter of the present and future of the Michigan State News, we have been hearing a lot of talk in the past few weeks. It seems that the Student Council is facing a difficult decision. The problem is that the parking lot is overcrowded, and the council is trying to find a solution.

But the council is not the only one expressing concern about the parking lot. Students and faculty members are also worried about the situation. Many students feel that the council is not doing enough to address the problem, and they are calling for action.

The council has been meeting to discuss the issue, and they have been considering various options. One of the options being discussed is to expand the parking lot, but this would require a lot of money and would take a long time to implement.

The council is also considering other options, such as charging for parking or implementing a lottery system. However, these options have not been well-received by the students, and there is a lot of resistance to them.

In the past, the council has been successful in addressing other issues, such as the student newspaper and the student activities. However, the parking lot issue is proving to be a more challenging problem.

The council is aware of the need to address the parking lot issue, and they are working hard to find a solution. However, it is clear that this is not an easy problem to solve, and it will require a lot of effort from everyone involved.

American Troops' Defy Enemy Fire in Open Thrust

ALLIED HQ., ITALY, Feb. 5 (AP)—American forces pushed farthest into Cassino today for an hour of bitter fighting and termed their lines as "definitely established" for a second assault on the German-held town. They were firing at a rate to try to bring them to a point of being able to form a junction with Allied forces holding a string of Rome positions.

Facing them were Nazi 'suicide squads' fighting to hold on in the southeastern city on the Tiber front.

New Prisoners

In a field diabolically sent from a forward command post outside Cassino, Associated Press Correspondent Hal Boyle said American troops charged into the area after dawn today and took prisoners before bloody clashes under the fire of heavy artillery.

He said Allied armed forces had not experienced in London during World War II. Fighting is going on in Cassino today.

Many tanks and artillery are in the American sector and have been for some time, he said.

Other Posts Taken

The battle for Cassino required the opening of four months of hard, bloody fighting to establish the enemy's main mountain defense line across Italy. American, French, British and Canadian troops, General Aleman and Turkish divisions moved up the German resistance to establish a foothold in the southern sector and take the town of Cassino and the surrounding hilltops to the north of Cassino.

The Allied forces were on the road to Cassino, he said.
