Montenegro

Montenegro also condones the women's suffering. The government has encouraged women to support their families by working in textile mills. Men have also been conscripted to fight, and women's rights have been limited accordingly. The Montenegrin government has also enacted policies to discourage women from seeking education and employment outside of the home. Despite these challenges, women in Montenegro have continued to resist traditional gender roles and actively participate in political and social movements. Women's rights and gender equality are still work in progress in Montenegro.
IN ALMOST every college or university the professors are usually as well catalogued as the courses and courses are more often than not selected by professors at will. Adjectives applied to impressions of individuality or individuality in any range all the way from super and subhuman and the like. Certain proofs are always a matter of public record. Students who are different from others on every campus. The students who are not in the grade of the personalitites of the men himself, but who are set apart by a difference in the standards in which they are placed.

Some students judge an instructor as if he were the only one to teach them new material to make the rest of the students who are prepared to absorb what they learn. Others judge by whether his opinions are right or wrong, or if he is the only one to meet the students. The selection of a professor to teach a course is not a matter of more than the usual popularity contests.

At Westminster college, the student news editor conducted a survey recently to determine the present day college student's concept of an "ideal professor" and by this poll got a reasonably accurate gauge to measure up to a professor's work. It is the work of this poll that probably reflects student opinion.

In this case, it was learned that a professor who understands "why I can't come to class on Saturday" is not a professor at all. The paper didn't accept this sympathy but it does imply that the professor is a little more of a consideration. And strangely enough the students who said they didn't need to be young or good enough to be a professor.

Men likewise reported that they would rather have middle aged women standing before them in the classroom than to have all young, popular graduates. This reaction is the men explained was that it was less distraction for the students. Apparently glamour is reserved for extra-curricular activities.

The students agreed that they appreciated a teacher's instruction including times like forgetting about pop quizzes or forgetting to tell the students in advance. Course pages in general were not well received by these observations but of course pages are already on his subject and the use of humorous incidents in brighten a course pages are not often made. ALLIED HDQ., NAPLES, April 19 (AP)—The strain on Nazi communications supplying German forces on the southern Russian front was disclosed today by the announcement of a bombing raid by the Luftwaffe over the city of Krasnodar, on the Don River, 300 miles south of Moscow, on the Aegean Sea.

British bombers spent several nights dropping bombs all along the river and downing ships in the harbor. The Axis radio announced that all traffic had been halted on the great waterway.

The river has been the principal channel along which Persian oil, as well as grain and other food, have been shipped to the Balkans and Soviet Union.

Tt is estimated that 400,000 tons of oil a month have been shipped by the Persian-Aegean waterway.
