School Spirit

Prof. Ernest M. Banzet was explaining to his Thursday psychology class the three steps of psychology study. The heartiest, he said, was superstitious, and the definition of superstition is "belief due to spirits."

An attentive student in the class was heard to ask, "Yes, but I'd like to know is, when you buy it these

A-tiskit, A-tasket

Dropping a handkerchief may be an old trick, but Patricia Parks, Middleville sophomore, thinks it brings out the army students gallantry. She was trying to put her hanky back into her pocket when the wind caught it and carried it toward an army section coming behind her. Giving the hanky up for lost she went on only to hear calls behind her of "Don't you want this?" She then saw the first soldier was dangling her lost possession toward her.

Religious Leader to Speak Sunday

DR. PAUL WEAVER speaks tonight, Sunday

Coming to Michigan State's campus this weekend is an outstanding figure in the field of student religious action, Paul Weaver, doctor of philosophy at Stephens college, Columbia, Mo. Dr. Weaver, chairman of the division of religion and philosophy at Stephens, first attained national prominence through an article published in the Readers' Digest in 1942, "Youth Finds a New Road to Religion." His Rural class is the new road to religion described in the article. This class, the largest and one of the most successful in the student religious field, enrolls 3,000 students from all the colleges in Columbia, and meets every Sunday throughout the school year.

The Religious council, Interfaith council, advisory boards of the Spartan YMCA and College YWCA, and Christian Student foundation are sponsoring the talks that Dr. Weaver will give and the informal gatherings to be held at Peoples church on Saturday and Sunday.

A graduate of Yale Divinity school, Dr. Weaver also took his doctor's degree at Yale university in 1934. He went to Stephens college shortly afterwards.

Dr. Weaver is the first speaker in a group of national religious leaders to be brought to the campus by the foundation.

Duties of College Coed Discussed By Counselor

"Colleges today as never before are duty bound to give each one of you opportunities to develop your powers so that you may be able to make a maximum contribution to society," was one of the main points of Mrs. Maurice Gonon's talk at the woman's convocation yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Gonon, acting counselor of women, also stressed the opportunities to heighten appreciation of music and art. "You are exposed to companionship of good books and have the chance to develop citizenship in these halls and organizations."

Warning the women students of the attitudes of awe and envy and scorn of non-college trained persons toward them, Mrs. Gonon continued, "We are privileged to continue training beyond the legal age. We live in a country club atmosphere, but this does not entitle us to be intolerant or scornful of those who have not been so fortunate."

The third wartime woman's day was concluded with a coffee last evening in the Union ballroom honoring Mrs. Gonon, at which time women also had a chance to discuss activities and organizations with representatives from the various campus groups.

German Winter Offensive Grows; Strikes Blows At Critical Point

Allied Unity Strained By Soviet Move

Reds Formally Recognize Polish Group at Lublin; U.S., Britain Differ

LONDON, Jan. 5 (AP)—Soviet Russia brought to a head one of the thorniest problems facing the impending "big three" parley today by extending formal recognition to the Polish provisional government of Lublin and making a clean break with the exiled Polish regime in London, which is supported by the United States and Great Britain.

The Soviet move emphasized with finality the inability of Russia, the United States and Britain to agree on the Polish question and brought a definite split in big three unity.

Both Britain and America followed the Russian statement with a reiteration of their announcements four days ago that they still were standing by the London Polish government.

Caught between this terrific diplomatic crossfire, the London Poles officially expressed "regret from the point of view of United Nations unity," but said they were not surprised at the development.

Diplomatic and military observers here believed that the Russians, having made their decision, were ready to launch their long-expected offensive in Poland.

Winter Play Tryouts to Be Next Week

Try-outs for the winter term play are scheduled for Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week, according to Prof. Don Baell of the speech and dramatic department. The try-outs will be held at 7:15 in the Spartan room of the Union.

"Personal Appearance" by Lawrence Riley has been selected as the play. Its cast is about 15 and gives excellent opportunities for character or straight actors. All students who are scholastically eligible are urged to try out.

Headquarters Names Montgomery Leader of Four Northern Armies

PARIS, Jan. 5 (AP)—A second menacing German offensive was unmasked in northeast France today as the British army joined the U.S. first in Belgium in a concerted assault that gained up to two and a half miles on the north flank of the bulge created by the enemy's first big push.

MONTY

SHAFF, PARIS, Jan. 5 (AP)—Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery has been commanding the U.S. first and ninth armies and all forces north of the German bulge into Belgium for more than two weeks, with Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley commanding forces only on the southern flank, supreme headquarters disclosed today.

The quick change of commands was ordered by General Eisenhower when the Nazi offensive threatened to split the Allies in two.

The colorful confident Montgomery personally took command in the north at midnight Dec. 26, and rushed direct to the front to direct American blows that halted the German plunge toward Liege, and now are hitting southward at the German salient, a field dispatch from AP correspondent Wes Gallagher said.

The British second and Canadian first armies already were under his direction, so Montgomery now is leading four armies.

The embattled U.S. seventh army was faced in northern Alsace with the stern necessity of restoring its position or making large-scale withdrawals as German vanguards cut across one of its main east-west supply highways in the northern Vosges mountains.

The enemy altered forces into Wingen, astride the vital Saareburg-Bagny highway nine and a half miles south of the Magnot fortress of Bitch and only 12 miles north of Saverne in the gap of the same name—a jugular vein of Allied forces in northeast France.

Nazis Cross Rhine

Simultaneously, the Germans crossed the Rhine in motorboats and were engaging Allied commandos in a fierce battle for possession of Gambenheim, on the west bank nine miles north of the French city of Strasbourg.

The second up-stream offensive in less than a month came as supreme headquarters announced that General Eisenhower had reshuffled his command, naming Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery over all four armies north of the Belgium bulge, keeping the U.S. first and ninth armies with his British second and Canadian first.

A recent dispatch from supreme headquarters said that the German push in the Magnot line area of Bitch had developed into a full-blown offensive, and carried nearly 10 miles into France and was but 12 miles from the vital Saverne gap supplying two Allied armies along the Rhine.

Hit Vital Point

Once more Field Marshal Karl von Rundstedt had struck at a critical point, for should he capture and hold Saverne, the U.S. seventh army and French units with it would be caught between these forces and German troops firmly entrenched around Colmar in southern Alsace.

In slow and stubborn battling, the U.S. first army and the British second army—the latter disclosed for the first time today to be in action—widened the front of their assault north of the Belgian bulge today to 21 miles in gains of more than a mile.

The third army on the south, all that is left under Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley's post-shuffle command from the 12th army group of the first, third and ninth armies, ground out a one-mile gain west of Bastogne after beating off at least 13 counterattacks in 24 hours up to early today.

Second Hand News

In Thursday's State News a list of the fraternity and sorority comparative ratings for fall term appeared, but yesterday it was evident that the figures were not correct.

The error was realized by the staff of the State News, too, but because of restrictions upon our news gathering, we were denied the correct figures until Sunday, which meant Tuesday before they could appear in the State News.

The scholarship figures were prepared by Thursday, and despite the fact they were of more interest to Michigan State students than to the public at large, the figures were released by the publications department to outside papers first.

The same situation prevailed at the end of last term when the official list of graduating seniors was denied the State News for publication in the last issue.

Supposedly the State News is an independent newspaper, with no faculty censorship restricting the printing of news. If we were denied the right to print some objectionable material it might be understandable, but the right to obtain it is something different.

Weekly Letter to Men in the Service

Jan 6, 1945

DEAREST JOHNNY,
Back again after the holidays with another year added to my credit. I felt more stuffed than the turkey himself after Christmas dinner but it was a fine feeling. I'm glad you received your Christmas boxes in time. I got yours too and loved the French perfume but it really wasn't necessary to send a whole parachute because you couldn't get nylon. Apparently you expect me to roll my own.

Our white Christmas has extended through New Year's and then some. Winter term registrants tonight like snow plows to get over to the fieldhouse amidst biting winds and deep drifts. The campus looks like the pictures on postcards—not the ones you sent me—so we won't complain until it gets to the slushy stage.

Coceds had their field day yesterday at the annual Women's day at which Mrs. Maurice Gonon, counselor to women, gave her first address to coceds. In the evening, Mort, Board, Tower Guard, and AWS members were hostesses at a coffee honoring Mrs. Gonon, and organization heads beamed out at freshmen in an effort to lure them into their respective activities.

Tonight the Spartans will take on the University of Cincinnati hoping to halt a three straight losing streak. I'll let you know what happens.

With love—and my fingers crossed,
PEG

Spartans Have Bearcats on Tonight's Menu

MSC Hopes for Second Win of Season Over Twice-defeated Cincinnati

By JOE HAEGANY

In an effort to start the New Year off right the State basketball forces will try and pull themselves out of a three game losing streak tonight when they tangle with the University of Cincinnati in Jenison fieldhouse at 8 p.m.

On the strength of the previous records of the two teams the game shapes up as a toss-up, but the Spartans are expected to be shortchanged. True, they have dropped their last two contests but their conquerors were the powerladen quint of the Big Ten, Iowa and Ohio State.

On the other hand the Bearcats dropped their first two and then went on to swamp their next two opponents. Last night the Ohioans avenged the Wayne university for their fifth game of the campaign so they will have the feel of real competition fresh with them.

Three Lettermen for Ohio

The Bearcats are sporting three lettermen led by Al Schneider, high scoring forward of last year. The Spartans have one, and singly enough it is doubtful whether Nick Hashu will get the starting nod at his guard slot.

Hashu will no doubt see plenty of action as he has in the last two games he has not started. Guards are plentiful and for that matter every position in the team has at least two men who can play. Many men play two positions.

Bob O'Leary, Paul Bauman, Dick Young, and Bill Rapchak are four boys who can go at either forward or guard. Rapchak may also be inserted into the center slot. In the last two games the burly Hoosier has led the Spartan scorers.

Two New Spartan Cagers

Two new men who joined the squad this week are also giving the regulars a hard battle and both may see action and there is a chance that one may start. Stan Krakora, a top-notch prep center from Illinois last year, and Robin Roberts, also from Illinois, are the two men. Krakora has been changed to guard and Roberts may be at the forward position tonight when the starting whistle blows.

Almost every position holds a question mark for who will fill it. Sam Fortino, high scoring push shot artist is as close to a sure starter as there is. Bill Krall, towering center, will probably start. Joe Beyer, who has started every game is also a good bet.

To Face Albion

O'Leary, because of his torrid speed may either start at a guard or a forward. Rapchak is also a dark horse for either the pivot spot or a guard slot. Robbins and Hashu also have a chance. In either case all these boys will all see action. Two other men who have a good chance are Bauman and Chuck Frankel.

Monday night Coach VanAlstyne will take his charges cross-state to Keesee-gymnasium to renew rivalries with Albion college. The traveling squad has not yet been named.

Dr. Bouyoucos Named Greek Ag Consultant By Diamantopolous

He will also assist in the selection of men with technical training for service in Greece, and in formulating new projects for his homeland.

Hope for State Wayne Downs Bearcats for Fourth Win in Five Try

DETROIT, Jan. 5 (AP)—Wayne downed the Bearcats tonight scored its fourth basketball victory in five games this season by trimming Cincinnati 20-15-19.

The Bearcats moved into a lead early in the contest and never were troubled. The Bearcats, midway through the second half, counted 10 consecutive points to come within one point of tying Wayne. The lead was as close as they got.

Wayne's center, Lutar center, and forward, Kenneth Guise of Cincinnati scored honors, each netting 10 points.

It was the fifth time the two teams have met and Wayne's fifth triumph. It was Cincinnati's third loss in five starts this season.

Ann Arbor to Play Host to Annual Track Carnival

EAST LANSING, Jan. 5 (AP)—Ralph H. Young, Michigan State college athletic director, announced today that the Michigan track carnival will be held in Yost fieldhouse in Ann Arbor this year, instead of at its traditional home in East Lansing.

Young said the change is not permanent and that "there has been no discussion of alternating the meet between Ann Arbor and East Lansing. He said the college planned to stage it in future years.

He said the University of Michigan asked if they could put it on this year and because "our track schedule was satisfactory without it this year, we said it would be agreeable with us."

This will be the 24th year of the classic, resuming after a year's interruption because of the war.

Young said Ohio State, Purdue, Notre Dame, Marquette university, Drake, Michigan Michigan State and several smaller schools expect to send contestants to vie for the individual prizes which will be awarded.
