Fag a Ride

Class Dismissed

When members of Dr. Hans Leonardt's one o'clock history civilization class evidently yesterday that the end of President Truman's speech, the entire class had taken time to listen to, marked the end also of the school-year activity for the day. They adjourned, after the speech, at a dead end in the direction of the class. Dr. Leonardt followed immediately afterward on his own. The ensuing race, marked by brilliant efforts by both students and faculty representatives, resulted in a tie. The final two students rescued for their work, two still un-

Truman Aims To Maintain War Policies

WASHINGTON, April 16 (AP)—President Harry S. Truman today urged Congress and the American people to help him carry out the war and peace policies of Franklin Delano Roosevelt and boldly warned the Axis: "There will be no terms of unconditional surrender." "No war criminal can hope to escape punishment. None will be permitted to plot future wars in any mountain retreat, such as Berchtesgaden." "Immediate reaction to the speech was couched in the highest of praiseworthy terms. Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) called it a very fine dedication to duty and the public welfare." Senator Connally (D., Tex.) was "eloquent and dignified." "Catalyzed to the highest of emotions by the death of Mr. Roosevelt, the President seized his first opportunity to address a joint session of Congress. Shortly after noon, punctuating a hectic day that started in the White House at 8:15 a. m." "The President said that a more fitting tribute to the fallen would be reverent silence for this hour, silence might be a comfort to the enemy. Thus he called on, he said, to carry on the nation's "forward" march because "our departed leaders never looked backward."

Pons to Make Second Concert Appearance

Met. Coloratura Soprano Will Sing 'Bell Song,' 'Clair de Lune'

Lily Pons, internationally renowned coloratura soprano, will appear tonight at the College auditorium at 8:15 to present a concert to a full house.

A star of the screen as well as the opera and concert halls, she has appeared with leading companies from London to Buenos Aires. Miss Pons recently returned to the United States from a USO tour overseas in which she and her husband, Andre Kostelanetz, performed for Allied troops.

Planned to Be Pianist Miss Pons originally started her musical career by playing the piano. When she graduated from the Paris conservatory she began entertaining wounded soldiers in Parisian hospitals by playing the instrument.

She soon discovered the men appreciated her singing more than her playing and she began to study with Alberta di Gorostiang, Italian vocal instructor, for an operatic career.

B-29s Damage Tokyo Plants

GUAM, April 17 (AP)—Total elimination of Tokyo's war production became a definite goal today after American B-29s in a Monday pre-dawn mass raid added destruction to the 27 1/2 square miles of the city already in ruins.

Staff officers of Maj. Gen. Curtis E. Lemay's 21st bomber command here figured all production would come to a standstill without actual destruction of the 65-square-mile urban industrial area.

Tokyo radio admitted the Monday raid on the southwestern section and on adjacent Kawasaki left fires burning for seven hours.

The Japanese cabinet met in emergency session late Monday to discuss "The latest devastation of the war," radio Tokyo said.

Another Tokyo report, lacking confirmation, said U. S. medium Mitchell bombers and navy carrier planes, striking Japan for the second successive day, raided Kyushu island Monday.

This was the first report of any source of medium bombers, which could fly from Iwo Jima, attacking Japan's mainland since the Doolittle carrier-based Mitchells' daring 1942 mission.

Hunger Riots Shake Berlin

By OLLE OLLEN STOCKHOLM, April 16 (AP)—Hunger riots were occurring daily in the northern and eastern sections of Berlin when I left the German capital eight days ago.

On the eve of my departure hungry mothers of starving children stormed food shops in the Alexanderplatz and almost lynched an SA (Stormtroop) guard who tried to quiet them with the suggestion they economize on their bread rations.

The population is ripe for rebellion but it will be a hunger revolt, not a fight for freedom. The Germans have forgotten that freedom is. As long as starvation stays away from their doors there never is any chance of insurrection even though 90 per cent of the capital's citizens heartily wish for a speedy end to the Nazi hierarchy.

A month ago Berlin was an apathetic city, a city which, compared with Copenhagen, was like dough not yet in ferment. No machinegun pistols rattled unexpectedly in the streets. No "freedom fighters" tried to accelerate with bombs the inevitable development. There were no great illegal organizations functioning, only weariness and loquacious hopelessness.

PARIS, April 16 (AP)—American tanks and troops battered five miles beyond the Elbe today and the enemy said other U. S. ninth army forces had burst across the river farther north at Havelberg, only 45 miles northwest of Berlin and possibly 94 miles from Russian lines.

U. S. third army armor and infantry laid siege to Chemnitz, baffled seven miles from the border of Czechoslovakia and thrust a steel fist within 30 miles of the German's Russian front base of Dresden, 85 miles or less from the Red army east of Cottbus.

Near Leipzig The U. S. first army hammered up seven miles south of the great fortress of Leipzig, where 40,000 German troops stand at bay defending possibly 1,000,000 civilians in that refuge-swollen fifth city of Hitler's Reich.

On the north, first army tanks opened battle at the approaches of Dessau, close to the Elbe river 52 miles southwest of Berlin.

In the south, the U. S. seventh army was but eight miles north of the Bavarian stronghold of Nuernberg, outerbastion of the Alpine retreat where the final shots in the war in Europe may be fired.

British Attack Bremen In the north, the British second army launched a big assault on Germany's fine river port of Bremen, advancing to within two and a half miles of its southern outskirts and farther east cut loose with a 15-mile surge from its Aller river bridgehead that wound up only 40 miles southeast of Hamburg, Germany's second largest city.

The Canadian first army won the battle of north Holland by capturing Groningen, and fanned out all along the North sea coast to within five miles of the port of Emden.

Canadians Advance Farther south, Canadian armor all but pinned four German divisions against the Zunder Zee with a lightning drive that rolled up northwest of Arnhem to within five miles of the old Dutch water line guarding Utrecht, Rotterdam and Amsterdam.

The battle of the Ruhr was almost at an end, and with 176,000 German troops and three enemy generals already captured there, a U. S. first army officer styled it "the greatest defeat any German army ever suffered on German soil."

Give the New Man a Break

The recent death of Franklin D. Roosevelt has quite naturally plunged the nation into mourning for the passing of a leader of an American political era. However, the accompanying soulful music broadcast over the radio for the past few days has done little to raise the morale of a people recovering from the shock of such a loss.

If the Axis leaders themselves had planned a propaganda program in America, they could not have done a more successful job.

The people of America should begin to realize that our founding fathers never meant any man to be so essential to our government that his loss would cause the ruination of this country. There are, after all, three branches of our government: legislative, executive, and judicial, and no one branch should ever become so powerful that it disrupts this balance of power.

Upon learning of the death of President Roosevelt, many people asked themselves: "How capable is Truman?" They remembered his unsavory beginning with the Pendergast political machine of Kansas City, and doubted Truman's place in the presidency. This has been the only major criticism directed against him. They cannot deny, however, that he kept his hands clean when Pendergast's machine was wiped out.

President Truman's record as a senator was excellent, and certainly no one can fail to credit him with his investigating committee. In that capacity he was even so bold as to criticize President Roosevelt and many other offices high in the political world of Washington.

Harry S. Truman has been called "weak." If a man has enough sense to depend upon experts in the various fields of government, instead of trying to do the whole job himself, then let us have more weak presidents. Before you criticize our new president, wait and see what happens.—WBC

To the Editor

Editors' Note: Writers of these letters express their own opinions and not necessarily those of the editors.

To the Editor:
In final respect to our late president, Franklin Roosevelt, the entire world mourned on Saturday. In London, thousands thronged churches. In Moscow, flags were ordered at half-mast for two days, and in Paris, all activity ceased for the day. Yes, the world attempted, in its humble way, to pay tribute to the passing of its greatest friend.

We, too, in the United States were asked by our new president to set the day aside in due respect to our late president. The greatest portion of the nation did just that.

However, we, at Michigan State, as far as I can see, did little that was in keeping with the monumental spirit of the remainder of the nation. This is truly to be regretted.

The least that could have been done would have been a convocation called, if only for a moment's silence in memory of the man who did so much for us. Other colleges and universities did as much.

It is certainly disappointing that the administration failed to commemorate this tragic happening in a fitting manner.

Sincerely,
Florian Lukowski

To the Editor:

So State isn't big enough to honor the death of such a great man? Servicemen can cancel leaves in order to get back to the front lines, lonely families may kneel together in silent meditation, a little shirt-tie boy can close his rocky little lip in honor of President Roosevelt, but here at State anything we could do as a student body would be inadequate.

Saturday stores and places of entertainment were closed, but the halted entertainment in large cities, bars were closed, and State continued its net work of can events, and that is as even, ordinary, or even more remarkable of the duty of a good leader. State wasn't big enough to Park.

It seems to me that State is big enough to do plenty of money or President Roosevelt that is of the student body were given a chance by the administration. Let us long as we are held in check by a nationally minded administration, State will never prove to others what she is or can be.

Vet Squadmen Practice for Positions

Coach Toughens 'Em Up

By JACK KENNEY

Candidates for State's spring football practice are going to get just a bit more than they bargained for.

With his eye cocked towards the fall season, Football Coach Charlie Bachman has increased the amount of calisthenics to three weeks. He said that the extension came as a result of the requests by returned war veterans who are out for practice.

Here are some of the boys who have returned to MSC's gridiron. One is Walter Vezmar, who was discharged from the service because of shrapnel wounds received while storming Anzio. Vezmar is 20 years old and weighs 225 pounds. He was previously an all-city, and an all-state center, who starred for the Detroit Northwestern high school. He saw action in both Africa and Sicily as well as Anzio.

Chet Kwiatkowski was wounded in the leg while fighting with marines on Bougainville. He played football for Chadsey high school in Detroit, before leaving for the service.

Louis Kitzman is another serviceman who has returned to State to play football. Kitzman spent several months in the army and at 27 he is the oldest man on the Spartan nine.

Milt Hattema has a medical discharge from the marines following wounds received at Saipan. His home is in Lansing.

These are just some of the men that have come back to State and are again enjoying the things that they dreamed about while in the service.

Checks for used books will be available at the Accounting office today.

Adolf Hitler Calls for Death-Stand As Russians Open Final Offensive

Red Army Troops Stand 23 Miles From Berlin

LONDON, April 16 (AP) —Adolf Hitler, calling for a death-stand, announced tonight that the Red army had opened its final all-out offensive against Berlin as the thunder of 1,000 Russian guns shook the Nazi capital and Russian troops won high ground only 23 miles away.

Berlin reports indicated that four Russian armies with perhaps 2,000,000 men were on the move.

German Radio Reports

The German radio commentator Ernest von Hammer said today that the Russian assault waves had breached Berlin's outer defenses on both sides of Frankfurt and that ferocious fighting was raging between Frankfurt and Kuestrin at points only 23 miles from Berlin.

The long-expected offensive burst upon the Germans at 3:50 a.m., today, the German high command announced, and drove forward along a blazing 120-mile front within 85 miles of a link-up with American armies that might end the war.

Berlin Hears Russians

The deafening drumfire of Russian guns was heard ceaselessly throughout the day in Berlin, the enemy said, as Soviet assault units battled into massive, reinforced fortifications under cover of hundreds of Red army planes bombing and machine-gunning enemy positions on Berlin's eastern approaches.

Hitler's order of the day to German soldiers on the eastern front declared that Germany's "arch-enemy" had launched its "ast massed attack" and ordered his troops to "drown the Bolshevik assault in a blood bath."

Indirect confirmation that the offensive had opened came from Moscow.

Concord house won the "Oscar" with a humorous take-off on Columbus discovering America. The winner of the plaque was announced by Mrs. Isabelle Gonon, counselor of women, who also expressed the hope that the meeting would create a renewed interest in the organization of the cooperative houses being planned.

Dr. and Mrs. John B. Harrison of the history department, as the potential advisers of the co-operative girls league, which is being discussed, attended the meeting.
