Faculty Member Dies While Vacationing In North Carolina

James T. Caswell, assistant professor of history and political science, died Aug. 15 in Black Mountain, N. C. while on his vacation.

He and Mrs. Caswell were on their way to visit friends at Elon college when the 62-year-old faculty member was stricken with a heart attack and died almost instantly.

A member of the Michigan State staff since 1925, Prof. Caswell received degrees from Michigan State Normal college and the University of Michigan. He had been superintendent of schools at Redridge, dean of the Highland Park Junior college and had taught in the Calumet public schools.

Review of MSC War Years Shows Variety

When a nation went to war on December 7, 1941, a college went to war.

Michigan State felt little effect of the war during the first few weeks except for the loss of a multitude of young men who failed to return to classes when the new term convened in January, 1942.

That spring ROTC men were graduated into active service and the ERC began to call its enlistees.

The fall of '42 witnessed a slump in male enrollment, but engineers, vets, business ads and ag majors continued to fill the buildings on campus from eight to five every day. Winter term

Returned Vet Enrollment to Go Up in Fall

Refresher Course Planned To Continue for Men Starting College

Approximately 5,000 students will be enrolled at Michigan State next fall term, according to Robert S. Linton, registrar. Of this number, about 1,200 will be freshmen women and 500 will be returned servicemen. Also present on campus will be the 325 men in the Army Specialized Training program.

The majority of the war veterans will be receiving college training for the first time, while a smaller percentage are former students who are returning to Michigan State to finish their education.

Uncertain of Work
Dr. Fred T. Mitchell, director of the Servicemen's Institute, says that the greatest handicap of the war veteran is that he is unsure of being able to handle college work. For these men non-credit refresher courses are given in English, mathematics, science and history.

Since these courses were installed in the college, 314 veterans have taken advantage of them and have received better grades than the average college student.

The good grades of the ex-servicemen is explained by their desire to work hard and get through college in the shortest time possible.

These men have been readily assimilated into college life by participating in athletics, dramatics, fraternities and other campus activities, Mitchell said.

Start With Basic
Veterans who are taking college courses for the first time will start with Basic college courses. With many varied interests included in their training programs, these students go into their special work as soon as Basic classes have been completed.

No new refresher classes have been scheduled, according to Mitchell, but added sections may be considered in order to keep the group within a limited, tutorial unit.

Student Council to Back Pre-Michigan Game Rally

Plans Will Include Dance, Bonfire

Student Council members have been working during the summer to arrange plans for a combined pep rally and informal dance to be held the night before the Michigan-Michigan State football game, Friday, Sept. 28, according to Pres. Helen Fisher, Grand Haven senior.

Graduate List Will Include 95 Seniors

Ninety-five summer school students will have completed requirements for degrees at the end of the semester, Aug. 31, according to an announcement by Pres. John A. Hanrahan.

Some of these students completed their requirements at the end of the six-weeks sessions. All took part in the commencement exercises in June, since there is only the one graduation program during the year.

Candidates for degrees include the following:

Eleanor Hill, Chatham; Mrs. Helen Foster, Wayland; Mildred Gaskill, Hastings; Martha Crossman, and Alice Knott, Niles; Barbara Swartz, Buchanan; Ann Moore, Bath; and Margaret Carris, DeWitt.

Mrs. Jeanne Ballew and Joyce Chapp, Grosse Pointe; Dorothy Goralczyk, Hamtramck; Patricia Johnson, See GRADUATES, Page 3

Original arrangements for the affair include a snake dance and bonfire on campus along with the rally and dance at the Union. Miss Fisher said, in discussing the renewal of the pre-game rally, that IFC will handle that portion of the program; Union Board will sponsor the dance, and the Council will act as co-ordinator for the entire evening.

Ora Smith, Dearborn senior, and Marion Heckel, Detroit senior, will act as Council co-chairman for the evening.

Plans for the affair were discussed at the last meeting of the Council in July, and other members who have been working on the arrangements include Jack Breslin, Battle Creek senior, John McCaughna, St. John junior and Dale Brown, Sebawaing junior.

Building Grant Set by Board

Appropriations for three women's dormitories, two men's halls, an apartment for veterans, and additions to the Union a food storage building were announced by the State Board of agriculture, MSC governing body, at its meeting last Thursday.

The tremendous building program will be financed through a self-liquidating project to be handled by the Ann Arbor Trust company and will total $6,000,000.

The college will operate the buildings on a revenue basis and repay the money borrowed through the trust company over a 20-year period.

Five grants were accepted by the Board from industrial and business firms to further research work and scholarships at the college.

Eleven new faculty appointments were approved at the meeting and seven members of the faculty were reinstated after varying leaves of absence.

Resignations were accepted at this meeting from C. L. Cole, associate professors and research assistant of animal husbandry, and Lee J. Rothgery, assistant professor and research assistant in civil engineering.

Departmental Head Returns to Staff

Charles P. Loomis, head of the department of sociology and anthropology, returned last week from Europe where he has been on a special mission for the war months.

Loomis interviewed German civilians in the British and American occupied zones under the auspices of the Morale Division of Strategic Bombing.

After handing in a report of his survey work in Washington, Loomis will return to Michigan State where he will resume classes this fall.

Today's Campus

Big Blaze
V-J celebrations around East Lansing have been comparatively peaceful and hesitant, as they have been almost everywhere in the country. But, the spirit of the thing must have gotten the better of several ASTPR's and high school boys because Monday evening a smear of kerosene went up momentarily in flames on the main drag... driving the pranksters a thrill and the passersby a surprise.

He's Slipping

Spring cleaning around campus has been slightly misplaced, and the clean-up crews are at work all over the place. Occupants of offices in the Union, including the State News staff, have had to climb over desks and around ladders and pails to get to work, but even the dorms have been invaded. Lillian Sigan, Gladstone junior, breezed out of her room the other day, dressed completely except for her dress, only to breeze right back again. One of the mop welders was directed outside of her door, and tried to calm her embarrassment by saying, "that's all right, I'm just leaving."

Marines Show Action Picture

The filmed record of America's victorious march across the Pacific from California to the doorstep of Tokyo, will be shown at 8 p.m. tomorrow in Fairchild theater to students, faculty members and townspeople.

The hour and a half movie program, consisting of official U. S. marine corps films in sound and color, includes scenes of the battles of Tarawa, Saipan, Guam, Peleliu, Anguar and Iwo Jima.

Appearing on the program to answer questions concerning Pacific warfare will be S/Sgt. Robert H. Kirkpatrick and Sgt. Robert Hall.

Kirkpatrick, a former Michigan newspaperman, is now a marine corps combat correspondent. Hall, a veteran marine of 30 months' duty in the Pacific theater has seen service in the Solomon Islands, New Hebrides, Saipan and Guam in the Marianas.

Advance Ticket Selling For Football Begins

Advance ticket sale for Michigan State college 1945 football games has been opened by Lyman L. Frimodig, assistant athletic director.

Season tickets for six home games is priced at $10. Game tickets for Kentucky, Marquette, Missouri, Great Lakes and Penn State will be $2.40 while the away game is priced at $1.50.

Michigan State's Responsibility

The end of the war fills us with happiness and a feeling of profound appreciation to the members of the armed forces, to the workers at home, and to our farmers for their great contribution in making victory possible.

Jubilation in the victory is tempered with a deep sense of obligation to those men who have fought and died to make certain that the victory won at so great a cost is not to be lost through apathy, or selfish greed, or lack of understanding of the responsibilities of our nation and of our individual responsibilities within the nation if peace is to be permanent. These has been no victory unless all the peoples of the world are assured political justice, social justice, and economic justice regardless of race, or creed, or color, or the spot on the earth's surface where they live.

Michigan State College, in common with all other educational agencies, has a grave and continuing responsibility in bringing about a maximum understanding of the problems that face us and all the peoples of the world. Only through education—and not the education of a few but the education of all of our people and all the people of the rest of the world—is there any hope for the elimination of those conditions and situations which bring on wars.

John A. Hannah, President, Michigan State College.

An Understanding Friend

There are professors who are professors, and there are professors who combine the qualities of teacher and friend. When the latter is the case, the professor becomes a campus password, a symbol of the institution's atmosphere, a support for the lost or wayward student to lean on, and an enduring figure for old students to come back to.

Such was the case of Prof. James T. Caswell who for twenty years was the friend and teacher of students of Michigan State college. His was the true interest of an educator, an interest in his students as well as in his classroom topics, an interest which brought homesick girls and troubled boys to his side.

He was the bulwark of every student who strayed off the straight and narrow, the friend-confessor when it came to difficulties with housemothers, professors, parents, police or college officials. He never failed as a friend.

Professor Caswell was a man of dogged beliefs in the rights of men. His undying faith to the Republican party has become a campus legend, but not in jest. Even his political enemies respected the power he possessed as an orator and philosopher.

A man with an insatiable appetite for knowledge, his political science class classes benefited from a vast wealth of information. His students, relishing the tales of political conventions and party activities, answered the challenges which he thrust before them.

No other member of the MSC staff or faculty has ever held the high respect and esteem of the student body, both active and alumni, as Prof. James T. Caswell. The sudden shock of his death leaves an enduring memory for all who knew him.

Spartans At War

By MARSHALL STUART

PFC. ROBERT D. KNOX . . . '45 is now on duty with the Chinese combat command, the United States army organization working in the field with the Chinese army to increase their effectiveness against the Japanese invaders.

He arrived in China with the American 475th infantry regiment when most of that organization was flown from Burma by the ATC. The 475th was organized in north Burma from the famed Merrill Marauders and replacements from the U. S. after the successful battle for Myitkyina in the spring of 1944.

It became part of the America Mars task force, which saw action as long-range penetration troops in the Central Burma campaign in early 1945.

A graduate of Detroit Cooley high school in 1941, Pfc. Knox had three years of veterinary science at State before entering the service in Dember, 1942. He is a member of Lambda Chi.

CAPT. IRVING R. WYETH . . . '39, has been awarded the bronze star medal for meritorious service in direct support of combat operations in France and Germany during the past year. According to his commanding officer as an air ground liaison officer, Captain Wyeth discharged his duties in a superior manner throughout this period and through his effort made possible the close and effective coordination of air and ground forces.

In the attack upon the fortress city of Bitch, his direction of close support missions contributed markedly to the success of operations in which 84 planes dropped 42 tons of bombs, which materially assisted the infantry to secure the objective with a minimum of casualties.

Wyeth was an Applied science student and a member of I. M. L. and the track outing club.

CAPT. DONALD T. HARTLEY has been promoted to that rank, it has been announced by Brig. Gen. H. N. Gilbert, director of the War department office of dependency benefits to which Captain Hartley has been connected since March 1943.

At the ODB Captain Hartley is officer in charge of a mechanical operations section in the class E. Allotment Division. This division administers more than four million class E allotments-of-pay which are assignments entirely from an army man's own pay.

Hartley was a liberal arts student at State for one year.

LT. ROBERT B. POKORNY . . . '42, has returned to the states from the ETO where he flew a Flying Fortress on 35 missions against the enemy. For his commendable action during this period, he was awarded the DFC, the air medal with four oak leaf clusters and the Presidential Citation.

He has just completed the "post graduate" course of advanced instruction in instrument pilot training at a large AAF base in Texas. He will now return to his base station where he will train other fliers in the lat-

The World Adventure programs for this year, Crowe said, are colorful and educational tours around the world via illustrated narration, and are presented on nights when there is no lecture-concert program.

Prominent among the lecturers on this series is Robert Friers, who will take his audience on a "Mexican Holiday" October 27.

Burton Holmes will tell about "Rainbow Land of Utah" on November 10, and "Colorful Guatemala" on December 1. "African Paradise" is the topic of Osa Johnson's lecture on January 26.

MSC Tankmen Take Top Honors in AAU

Siebold Cops Meet in Last Event

Team championship honors for the National A.A.U. swimming and diving meet were won Sunday, August 12 by the Michigan State Spartan swimming team, with a score of 26 points over the Great Lakes swimmers' 23. Spartan Dave Siebold swam the final event of the program, the 300-meter individual medley, and gathered enough points to insure the victory for the MSC poolmen.

When they entered the final event, the Spartans has 21 points opposing the Great Lakes 18, but had two strong opponent swimmers to combat.

Book Early Lead

Siebold, swimming a five-meter lead over Great Lakes swimmers Tom Gastineau and Bob White, went ahead in the first of the 100-meter breast stroke. He maintained this lead until the last 50 meters, had trouble staying away from Gastineau, but finished with the time at 18.5 against the sailor's 4:18.8. The 300 medley relay, swum by 10 by Siebold, Patterson and James Quigley, gave the Spartans that event's title and 18 points.

Runs to Middy

Aug. 11 the Spartans took first place in the 200 meter breast stroke, with Siebold winning again. Howard Patterson was most of the route in the 100 meter back stroke, but was beaten by less than a foot by Midwayman Robert Cowell of the S. Naval academy. Up until the last day the Spartans were tied with the Great Lakes team, but Aug. 12 John Mond took third and Patterson a fourth in the 100 meter style event to increase the team's points, and the final points by Siebold settled the national meet.

Runs for Second Place

Siebold tied with Jim McLane, from the second point honors, by getting 10 points. Keo Nanna, one of the country's best known swimmers from Ohio, was high point man with 10 to his credit.

Does this wind bother you?

Oh no. Talk as much as you like.

Cardinell Returns to State

H. A. Cardinell, research associate in horticulture at Michigan State, has just returned from a two year stay in Brazil where he was an agricultural extension specialist with the food supply division of the Co-ordinator of Inter-American affairs.

In August 1943, Cardinell was granted a leave-of-absence by the college to help Brazilian authorities with the civilian food supplies.

Brazilian food supplies have been severely taxed during the war with the advent of American soldiers, sailors, engineers and research workers who had been sent to Brazil to build air bases and factories for the necessary war supplies and industries, he says.

Hard Task for Staff

The situation faced by Cardinell and his staff was a difficult one. Brazil, which is larger in area than the United States, is comparatively undeveloped considering the vast wealth of natural resources the country has.

Also, the country is run by a feudal system under which a few land owners are reaping all the benefits while the tenant farmers are starving.

To alleviate this condition the extension workers secured thousands of cotton-chopping hoes and loaned or sold them on credit to the tenant farmers.

Helped Farmers Move

Farmers were also encouraged to leave their present homes and ground is more fertile. Sixteen farm workers training schools were set up and supervised by the group Cardinell worked with and a food production program was installed to teach the improved methods in the production of vegetables, poultry and cattle.

working behind the Union desk, classes were almost entirely composed of the feminine gender, knitting and bridge replaced the usual Saturday night of dancing and dating.

All Worked at Defense

But State's contribution to the war effort was not all in men. While the music department loaned professors to the mathematics department and the English professors became physics instructors, the students took hold and established the Civilian Defense corps, Red Cross classes of first aid, home nursing and grey ladies.

Airplane spotters met once a week, and blackouts were practiced with grim regularity.

Curricula were intensified—the first accelerated program was instituted for the freshman of fall, 1943, in order that manpower and womanpower might be available more quickly to the industrial and business world deep in war production.

To further develop the understanding of the war and its contemporary and future problems, the Institute of Foreign Studies was founded to increase the interest in Asia and the American relations south of the United States.

Cover Diversity of Subjects

Japanese, Russian, Portuguese and Arabic languages were taught, as well as geography of South America and Asia, along with the history and cultures of the Far East.

Mental development was not the only trend of MSC at war. The physical fitness program for men came to be recognized as one of the best in the country. Military trainees were required to attend six hours of physical education a week, with three hours a week compulsory for civilian men.

The women's physical education department adopted new courses designed to strengthen endurance of the coeds. Competitive sports were encouraged, especially volleyball, basketball, hockey, soccer, and softball.

Wide Coed Participation

Women came to be recognized for their intelligent handling of engineering problems, and 36 senior women were the recipients of $1,200 scholarships from the Pratt Whitney Aircraft corporation.

Upon graduation these women engineers were employed by the industry for which they had trained, and all were given equal recognition with men of the same experience.

The faculty went to war too. 166 members of the staff were given leaves of absence to fill military and civilian posts in the national government's wartime bureaus. Three of the faculty now serve on the faculty of one of the university centers to be used in the Army education program for troops in the European theater.

China Sent Special Vets

Eleven Chinese students, sent to this country by the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation administration, are studying veterinary medicine.

Latin American students are generously present in the classes of history, English, and mathematics attended by native residents of Michigan and the United States.
