Big Flare

If celebrations around East Lansing have been comparatively few and isolated, as they have been almost everywhere else in the country. But, the spirit of the thing must have existed no matter where. Several APXFS and high school boy scouts because of their studies, have been up momentarily in front of the Grand Central Building grace a flare and a nearby surprise."

It’s Slipping

Spring evening around campus, in the vicinity of the library, the cleanup crew are at work. Groups of officers in the Union, including the Student Council, have had to climb over the rubbish piles and, armed with small shovels and pails to get to the garbage in the dormitory. Lillian Hugger, chaperone, knows that there are some people who are not entirely pleased, except for her, during the cleanup. She has said, that if the meadow growers were disturbed by the noise, she would try to calm her embarrassment by saying, "That’s all right. I just left".

Marines Show Action Picture

The fiftieth record of America’s fight march across the Pacific was shown in the theater of the Grand Central Building, Saturday evening, and was shown to students, faculty members and guests.

The hour and a half movie included Merchant Marine Corps films in sound and color, and includes scenes of the Allied landings in Normandy, the invasion of Anzio, and Iwo Jima. Appearing on the program were guest speakers concerning Piano, Dr. Charles H. Kappert and Sgt. Paul Robeson.

At the conclusion of the pictures, a letter was read by Mr. Thomas Hemmes, chairman of the University’s Committee for the overseas service of veterans.

Review of MSC War Years Shows Variety

When a nation went to war on December 7, 1941, a college went to war.

Michigan State felt little effect of the war during the first few weeks except for the loss of a multitude of young men who failed to return to the university. When their names were convened in January, 1942. This spring ROTC men were among the cadets and the ERC began to call its seniors.

Of all 42 witnessed a slump in male enrollment, but the university was able to keep classes full because of the contingent of female freshmen when 1,500 aircrew students took up residence in Mussen and Abbott halls.

In July, 1945 Army Specialized Trains arrived to receive commissioned officers in agriculture and area engineering, and veterinary medicine. They lived in Frankfurt housing halls and North Hall.

When the air corps and the ASTP groups were disbanded in June, 1944, 10,000 persons and equipment had been handled at State. Re¬ placed by the ASTF, and the ACER, military training on campus has since dwindled to 300. Rationing tight, pilots in an aircraft were privileged, the grill had shorter hours. Women staff

Plans for the affair were discussed at the last meeting of the Council in July, and other members who have been working on the arrangements which include, Brenda, Battle Creek, Betty Morgan, Winton News, and Dale Brown, Sebewaing senior.

Building Grants Set by Board

Appropriations for these women dormitories, two men’s halls, an apartment for veteran, and adjustments in the Union for food storage buildings were approved by the board of agriculture, M.S. & G. governing board, at its meeting last week.

The tremendous building program will be financed through a self-appropriating project to be undertaken by the board of agriculture company and will total $60,000

The college will operate the memorial library building and Cullen Memorial Hall, and repair the money borrowed on the state buildings over a 20-year period.

Grants were awarded to the Board from industrial and business firms to further research work and scholarships at the college.

Eleven new faculty appointments were approved at the meeting. Two members of the faculty were reinstated after an absence.

Resignations were accepted at this meeting from C. L. Cole associate professor and research assistant of animal husbandry, and L. J. W. Peter assistant professor and research assistant in civil engineering.

Departmental Head Returns to Staff

Charles P. Lebin, head of the department of anthropology, returned last week following a three-month absence on a special mission for the war department.
Michigan State's Responsibility

The end of the war fills us with happiness and a feeling of profound appreciation for the sacrifices, which the workers at home, and to our farmers for their great contribution in making victory possible.

Jubilation in the victory is tempered with a deep sense of obligation to those men who have fought and died to make certain that the victory won at so great a cost is not to be lost; and that peace, prosperity, and the goal of all the peoples of the world are assured political, social, and economic justice.

Michigan State College, in common with all other educational agencies, has a grave and continuing responsibility in the nation's understanding of the problems that face us and all the peoples of the world. Only through education—and not the education of a few but the education of all—will the people of all the rest of the world—is there any hope for the elimination of those conditions and situations which bring on wars.
Cardinell Returns to State

H. A. Cardinell, research associate in horticulture at Michigan State, has just returned from a two-year stay in Brazil where he was an agricultural extension specialist for the U.S. Department of Agriculture. His work in Brazil was sponsored by the Division of the Co-ordinator of Inter-American Affairs.

In August 1943, Cardinell entered the College of Agriculture to help Brazilian authorities with the civilian food supplies. Brazilian food supplies have been severely taxed during the past two years because of advent of American soldiers, sailors, engineers and research workers who had been sent to Brazil to build air bases and factories for the necessary war supplies and industries.

Local Grocery Store Under New Manager

George M. Hill, manager of Kruger store in Lansing for the past twelve years, purchased the Adams Grocery store at 134 West Grand River Avenue in Lansing the 26th of August. The store will remain the same under the new ownership. Mr. Hill is a native of Vermont, owns his store and will continue to operate it.

Hard Task for Griffins

The situation faced by Cardinell and his staff was a different one. Brazil, which is larger in area than the United States, is comparatively undeveloped considering the vast wealth of natural resources the country has.

Also, the country is run by a military system under which a few rich people and army officers are ruling the whole country while the tenant farmers are starving.

In this situation many conditions the extension workers secured thousands of cotton-chopping hands and trained or organized them to benefit the tenant farmers.

Far from being discouraged, the Cardinelli workers were encouraged to leave their present homes and to settle in more fertile sections of the country. A group of farm women, farmers training schools was organized which was supervised by the group Cardinelli worked with.

Three quarters of the grocers in the city of East Lansing were taught the advantages of refrigeration, production of vegetables and poultry.
