State Plans Pep Rally, Dance To Precede First Home Game

Spartan Eleven to Clash With Kentucky

"We need more wood to kindle the fire," was the plea of Red Schneider, Lansing junior, as the pep rally for the big gridiron clash between State and Kentucky draws nearer. "How can our team come through with a victory if the college doesn't get behind them and give them that extra shot of 'oomph?'"

Tomorrow night at 7 every Spartan should hike over to the tennis courts near Demonstration hall for the big rally backing State's eleven.

First Home

This game is a crucial one. Last year State nosed out Kentucky, 2 to 0 on their own field. Kentucky has several men returning, so State will need power, zip, and drive to come through with the bacon. Students of Michigan State college can help them get that punch.

In place of the MSC band, the army ASTPR band will parade and play the marches. Fireworks have been added to the bill to add color to the show.

Guest Speakers

Guest speakers with words for the team, include Paul Martin, publisher of the State Journal; Jack Maynard, head of the Lansing Businessmen's association, and Joe Gwinn, from the Downtown Coaches association. Jack Breslin, State's stellar fullback, will represent the team at the rally.

The rally will end with the lighting of a bonfire. A Union Board dance from 8:30 to 11 p.m. is scheduled after the rally.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3 (AP) — The White House announced tonight President Truman will take over today the oil companies involved in a strike wave.

State To Purchase 10 Acres

New Property Situated East Of S. Harrison

Michigan State's campus will be increased by about 10 acres with the college's acquisition of property consisting of 19 lots on the east side of South Harrison road, according to Karl H. McDonel, secretary of the state Board of Agriculture.

The college's governing board is in the process of purchasing property through the agency of Edward G. Hacker realty company of Lansing, and expects to own the 10 acres by Nov. 1.

The new purchase will be added to the 22,700 acres now covered by the college campus and farms. It will include all properties on the east side of South Harrison road and the Red Cedar river between Michigan avenue and 179 South Harrison, and all properties on the west side of South Harrison road between Michigan avenue and the river, according to Lloyd H. Geil, head of the department of publications.

Exactly what the property will be used for is not yet certain, although it is expected that it will contribute to some phase of the college building program, which includes plans for dormitories, veterans' housing, and additions to various departments now located in buildings inadequate for future increases in enrollment.

Lecture on Mind Raises Questions

Beginning with the organisms of the lowest species of life and evolving step by step to man, Dr. William J. Durant, philosopher and author, attempted to explain "What is Mind" to an audience of faculty, graduate students and guests last night in Fairchild theater.

"In plants there is no question that there is sensitivity. This proves also that there is a nervous system in plants. They are sensitive to light and smell which is further evidence of their adaptive responses," explained Dr. Durant.

In this way, it evolved that adaptive response is intelligence. An amoeba and the way in which it feeds itself, used as an example by the lecturer, shows why mind creates the body and that desire is the foundation of everything.

Dr. Durant discussed the brain and summarized his points by stating that "Cooperation of the parts as a whole constitutes intelligence. The brain is the meeting of the various nerves of the head."

In conclusion, Dr. Durant expressed his belief that mind and matter are one. "I do not believe that they are two different things," he said.—M.A.M.

PanHel Places Sororities On Honor System

Sororities will take a new step toward maintaining the democratic way of life at MSC when they establish the honor system of deferred rushing this year, according to Mary Slack, president of PanHellenic council.

The new plan of deferred rushing, adopted by college PanHellenic last night, borders on procedures of former years but is more in keeping with today's environment and the needs of a democratic campus, Miss Slack said.

Rushing Rule

Allowing women to be rushed only after they have been on campus one term, exclusive of summer school, and have an all-college one point average, the new system enables potential sorority members to prove themselves capable of supporting college activities and maintaining academic work.

To insure the deferred rushing plan, freshmen and transfers may not enter any sorority house until the formal rushing season. Formal rushing of women who meet PanHellenic's qualifications will begin with the introductory teas on Jan. 6 and will continue until the preference dinners which will be held on Jan. 20. During the teas, eligible women may visit any of the houses. Parties held after the teas are by invitation.

PanHel Suggestions

To eliminate the phrase "dirty rushing" from the records and to assure the success of the new honor system, PanHel makes the following suggestions to college women:

1. Freshman women should avoid being high pressured by sororities.
2. Sororities should avoid situations where they could be accused of high pressuring.
3. Freshman women should not ask sorority members questions about definite sororities.

In passing the new rushing system, PanHellenic placed the entire responsibility for maintaining honorable rushing upon each sorority and each sorority member. Women will now be on their honor to avoid a high pressure attitude toward rushees, and it is hoped that the accusations, criticisms and friction See RUSHING, Page 2

Former Member of MSC Faculty Named Hamilton College President

Lt. David Worchester, in the navy on leave from his position as head of MSC's English department, has been appointed president of Hamilton college in Clinton, N. Y.

According to announcement made by the college's board of directors, Lieutenant Worchester, who is now stationed at Quonset Point, R. I., will assume his duties as head of the school directly upon his discharge from the navy.

The 38-year old naval officer holds a doctoral degree from Harvard and taught English literature both at Harvard and Radcliffe before coming to Michigan State college in 1941. A one-time tutor at Harvard university's Lowell House, he was granted leave from MSC in 1942 to serve for the duration.

Gertrude Lawrence Cancels Appearance On Lecture Series

Gertrude Lawrence, scheduled to lecture on the Michigan State college series next Thursday evening, will not appear, Dean S. E. Crowe, director, announced yesterday. Miss Lawrence has canceled her lecture tour in favor of entertaining American troops abroad.

Attempts to have Major General Clare L. Chennault, founder of the famed Flying Tigers, replace Miss Lawrence were unsuccessful, but another event will be substituted later in the year, Dean Crowe said.

Dorothy Webster, Adrian senior and student teacher at Eastern high, Lansing, sought to encourage a student by telling him that with practice he could become a successful public speaker. To the amusement of his classmates, the boy proceeded to inform his well-meaning teacher that last year he won the State Debating championship.

Chapter three in the duck serial: When Lucretia, the celebrated duck, passed away two days ago, there were those who suspected fowl play. Joe Dead Beye, Grosse Pointe sen-duck ior and campus duck specialist, was especially mournful on losing his web-footed friend. But colleagues Joe Mulholland, Trenton, N. J., sophomore, and Jake Moran, East Lansing junior, were sympathetic. The result: condolence in the form of a giant-sized box of assorted flowers, an orchid included, presented to Joe with a card from the American Audubon society.

Comments On Car Ban Rage

By LARRY GRANGER

Student opinions on the car ban were heard in the Union yesterday. They rage from bitter speeches to mild questions.

Typical of the comments was that of Robert McGargle, Flint freshman. "After a man has served three years in the army he has a right to own a car..."

Bob is a former second lieutenant in the AAF.

Marcee Babcock, Detroit freshman, had this to say, "It's a long talk from Abbot to East Lansing or the auditorium and since East Lansing has a monopoly on California dew it makes it even more undesirable."

Similarly against the ban was Richard Elliot, Elkton sophomore, who says "... why it's unconstitutional for years they teach us democratic principles and with the harsh gesture wipe them out."

Renee Scott, East Lansing senior, commented: "... it doesn't make sense, but anyway what's the reason?"

Mary Valett, Detroit senior, "I agree with it on campus but otherwise it doesn't make sense."

Sam Fortino, Alma senior, had this to say. In his opinion "All of the returning servicemen want cars and should have a right to have them. Pretty soon we will need licenses for our bicycles." One student, who asked to remain anonymous, suggested that the Board of Agriculture's decision seems to be a moral issue, why don't they pass a law for a twenty-four hour day of

Be Kind To Patrons — Please!

Isn't it fun to give a dance? And isn't it even more fun to go to someone else's dance and not shoulder the responsibility? Because isn't it awful trying to get patrons? There just can't be a dance at MSC without patrons.

Consider the faculty for a moment: it isn't much fun to sit in a dark chilly corner all night making polite conversation with complete strangers, being carefully avoided by dancing students. There are a few well-known faculty patrons who can always be counted on as good Joes, who will always be glad to help out, and there are others who flatly refuse—and with good reason.

At least one organization on campus has, this year, made steps to see that patrons enjoy dances. Union Board has established a faculty-student relations committee which will not only sponsor get-togethers, but will see that a good time is had by all.

Included on the better-relations program will be first: when inviting patrons to a dance, the committee will ask faculty members if they have any special friends with whom they would like to "patron;" secondly: to make sure that patrons are not ignored at the dance and to encourage other guests to stop by the patron corner for a chat; and thirdly, to provide a bridge or game table at which patrons may entertain themselves if they please, and to attend to other comforts of faculty guests.

This program cannot be a success, however, without the full cooperation of dance-goers. It is nothing more than common courtesy at any dance, private or public, to give a pleasant good evening to patrons, especially when faculty members go out of their way to make dances possible.

It is a well-known fact that fraternities and sororities go out of their way to make sure their faculty guests have a good time at all functions, and it is not too much to expect that students pay the same respect at all-college affairs . . . then everyone will enjoy them and want to attend more often. —B.H.J.

that have accompanied former rushing rules will end, Miss Slack said.

tion, of women who have already been on campus one term, excluding summer school, and who have an all-college one point started Tuesday.

To the Editor:
As a Massachusetts-Bay Colony American, I would like to pose a few questions to whom-ever they should interest. Reasonable liberty and freedom of action are rights that have only recently been fought for. Spartan Team Shake-up; Breslin to Play Left Half

MSC Coaching Staff Searching For Effective Backfield Group

Juggling was still going on in the State football camp today as head football Coach Charlie Bachman and his staff continued their search for a backfield combination that would have more zip and power than did the one that took to the field last Saturday.

State's triple threat full-back, Jack Breslin, who gained 53 yards against Michigan as compared to the team's 37 yards total net, has been shifted to the left halfback slot where he will take over the duties of the injured Bob Ludwig. Ludwig was injured in the Michigan game and will be out of the football picture for at least three weeks. This means that he will miss the Kentucky, Pittsburgh and Wayne university games.

Coach Bachman said that Breslin performed very well in the Michigan game, but that he needed more blocking in the backfield. This shift of Breslin will make room for Breslin's understudy, Milford Jones of Eaton Rapids, as a blocking back. Glenn Johnson seems to have reached the quarterback slot, due to his size and excellent blocking ability. Steve Contos will replace Fred Aronson at right halfback.

On the strength of a report by State's football scout, Coach Jake Dahlgren, Bachman has been working the team to greater efforts. Dahlgren scouted last week's Kentucky game and he was very much impressed with the efforts of the Wildcat's 225-pound tackle George Serini. Serini was an All-Southern tackle, and was mentioned for All-American honors last year. Dahlgren regards him as one of the best linemen that he has even seen.

Kentucky will have experience of two games under their helmets when they take to the field Saturday, but fans will also find a new Spartan team on the field that will be a far cry from the opening game combination.

INFORMATION

SMOKER FOR VETERANS

American Legion Post No. 402 welcomes all servicemen to a "smoker" at 7 tonight in the Spartan room of the Union. Program for the evening consists of a short meeting, initiation of officers and a movie entitled "Michigan Welcomes Its Veterans" shown by Major Addison D. Algure. A short talk will follow by Don Phillips of the Michigan Adult Education program. This program is open to all servicemen on the campus.

FORMER CO-OP GIRLS

All former women co-op members not living in co-ops this year who wish to take part in co-op activities may do so by sending a letter of petition addressed to the WCL council at Sanford house.

SPARTAN FELLOWSHIP

Spartan Christian Fellowship, local chapter of the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship, will meet with the regional staff secretary tonight at 7:15 in the lounge of the Bethel Manor, 435 M.A.C. All interested students are invited to attend and meet the new secretary, Mr. Steele.

TOWN GIRLS

Town Girls club will hold their first luncheon meeting at 12 noon today in the faculty dining room in the Union.

Home Ec Club Groups Hold First Meetings

Five major groups of the Home Economics club held their first meetings in the Home Economics building Tuesday evening.

Officers and committee members of each group were announced and new junior members were introduced to the groups.

Plans for term activities in each of the professional groups were made and preparations are underway for each group's contribution to the general Home Economics club meeting which will be held Thursday, Oct. 18, in the Music auditorium.

Durant Finds Life Succession of Accidents

By MORTON D. SMERLING

Visiting the campus this week and delivering a series of lectures for the faculty and graduate students is Dr. William (Will) Durant, author of the popular "Story of Philosophy" as well as numerous other works.

Dr. Durant traces the initial stimulus of his life-long interest in books to a girl named Irene who sat ahead of him in grammar school. She had a copy of "Pickwick Papers" that he endeavored to borrow. They later combined their meager finances and together bought "David Copperfield." This "love" at the age of twelve did not last, but his interest in books did.

Education

Born in North Adams, Mass., Nov. 5, 1885, of French-Canadian parents, he was educated in the parochial school system and took his B.A., 1907, and M.A., 1908, at St. Peter's college, Jersey City, N. J.

After a brief sojourn as reporter on the New York Evening Journal where he had what he calls his "crudest impact" with life, Dr. Durant retreated to Seaton Hall, Orange, N. J. and became an instructor of language, librarian, and a seminary student. It was here that he discovered Spinoza and whence he derived his passion for philosophy.

Abandons Seminary

The priesthood was subsequently abandoned, for he left the seminary to teach and lecture. His doctor of philosophy degree was taken at Columbia university in 1917, where he also taught for a term. He then became the director of the Labor Temple school of adult education in New York, retiring from it in 1927. Commencing to give lecture courses in 1914, he has been at it ever since.

He now resides in Los Angeles with his family. Slight in stature, white-headed and mustached, Dr. Durant has made many trips to various parts of the world. He is fluent in Italian and French, as well as English.

Writing Career

His career in authorship began as a writer of the famed Haldeman-Julius "Blue Books," pocket treatises on philosophy, history and literature, which were essentially the lectures he was giving at Seaton Hall college.

In 1932, after the publication of such works as the "Story of Philosophy," "Mansions of Philosophy" and "Program For America" he began to complete his "Story of Civilization." Thus far he has completed three ponderous volumes: "Our Oriental Heritage," "The Life of Greece," and "Caesar and Christ." He is now at work on volume four, "The Age of Faith."

Opinion On Youth

Philosopher, lecturer, historian and world traveler, Dr. Durant believes that the war-time generation of American youth will be more realistic, clearer thinking and better able to cope with world problems than its predecessor.

Concerning reading and study, Dr. Durant commented that "the art of skipping is half the art of reading."

"Knowledge is power, but not wisdom," he said.
