... Hey, Chloe!

Through the dismal swamp and "Since Boyd Longyear, Mason sophomore, fell into a swamp yesterday while pheasant hunting, he has been followed by numerous "city slickers" through the darkness of the Phi Tau house, calling aloud for "Chloe."

... Proof of the Blade

Robert "Moon" Mullens, Dow-grad sophomore, the SAE "hair-ess Lee," has come across with a whisker. To quiet the doubt of observers who thought the lather was a cover-up job, Moon revealed a cut on his nose—further proof that there was too a blade in the razor.

Congress Told About Atomic Possibilities

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17 (AP)—Congress was told today that 40,000,000 Americans could be killed in one overnight atomic raid if there is a false move in international diplomacy.

Dr. H. J. Curtis, one of the men who helped make the atomic bomb, called for a "miracle" in international relations to prevent "war too horrible to contemplate." He said the impelling motives for a miraculous improvement in diplomacy "should be just as strong as those which led us to create the atomic bomb."

Curtis Testifies

Dr. Curtis testified at a joint senate military-commerce subcommittee hearing on behalf of the association of Oak Ridge scientists. The hearings are on a proposed national science foundation to explore the atom and other scientific developments.

"We regret that the atomic age began, of necessity, with atomic destruction," Dr. Curtis said. "Our only consolation is that it helped to achieve a peace which must now be maintained."

International Authority

"We have concluded," he went on, "that the best interests of this country will be served by turning over control of atomic energy to an international authority whose function will be to regulate the development of atomic energy that the atomic bomb will be used only by a world authority if necessary for the enforcement of peace."

Curtis' testimony stressed the fact that an American policy of atomic secrecy would breed the most dangerous sort of world distrust.

American Legion Post Discuss Problems

American Legion Red Cedar Post No. 402 will hold a meeting of all servicemen on campus tonight at 7 in the Spartan room of the Union.

Pres. John A. Hannah will discuss "The Housing Situation for Veterans" and "The College Ban on Automobiles" with the veterans.

A representative of the U. S. Employment office will also speak on "The Labor Problem in Michigan," according to Fred E. East, Jr., vice commander.

Modification of Car Ban Suggested

AWS Explains Rules Set For Recent Exam

At the regular AWS meeting the following announcements were made by Sue Averill, Birmingham senior and president of the women's governing body.

Exams over the AWS handbook, which were given last week, are now in the process of being corrected. All women were required to take this test and those who failed to do so will be contacted by their AWS representative and a date for a make-up test arranged.

Penalty Imposed

A penalty will be given to all women who did not take the test at the original scheduled time

Student council announced last night that it is not advocating a strike now or in the future as a means of modifying the car ban. The matter was turned over to a student-faculty committee by majority vote at last night's meeting, and future action regarding the car ban will be taken from this group.

Every loyal Spartan will leave the matter to this committee and will entirely disregard the anonymous group which is attempting to stir students into regrettable action.

and who do not have a valid excuse. This penalty will be announced later, Miss Averill explained.

Women who failed the first test will not be penalized in any way, but will be required to take the exam again. If they do not receive a passing grade the second time, some penalty will be established.

Permissions

Miss Averill also announced that a woman's East Lansing or Lansing permission in a residence that is not governed by college rules may be taken at any time during the week or on weekends.

Women are to obtain special permission to take care of children if there is any possibility that they may be out after the regular house closing hours. These arrangements may be made with either the housemother or in the counselor of women's office.

Hilton Jones to Address Teachers At First General MEA Meeting

Approximately 3,200 teachers from eight counties in this area will gather on campus today for two-day institute of region three of the Michigan Education association.

Lloyd C. Emmens, dean of the school of science and arts, will welcome the teachers at the opening session in College auditorium at 9:30 this morning.

Guest Speaker

Main speaker at the opening meeting will be Hilton Ira Jones, chemist, psychologist, and author, who will give an address on "Peeps at Things to Come."

Following a business meeting, Eugene B. Elliott, state superintendent of public instruction, will speak on "Education Meets Reconversion."

Section programs on subjects ranging from agriculture and art to visual education and vocational counseling and guidance will meet this afternoon in scattered locations on the campus.

Division Programs

Division programs for elementary, high school, rural and parent-teacher groups will be held tomorrow morning, and will be followed by a general program at 1:30 p.m., featuring talks by Thomas A. Babcock, president of

News in Brief

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17 (AP)—John L. Lewis today asked 216,000 striking soft coal miners to return to work by Monday and end the growing threat to basic reconversion industries.

The sudden call for a halt—at least a temporary one—to stoppages in more than 1,000 mines caught the operators by surprise.

They quickly expressed great satisfaction, promised to cooperate fully in restoring coal production, and pledged there would be no retaliation against the strikers.

DETROIT, Oct. 17 (AP)—It will cost the government approximately half a million dollars to take the strike votes in General Motors and Chrysler corporations and the Ford Motor company, according to the national labor relations board.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17 (AP)—Navy Secretary James V. Forrestal said today the return of scores of warships for Navy day celebrations will not slow down homeward movements of the armed forces.

The letter, made public by the navy, reported that 750,000 men will come home from the Pacific in warships alone in the next 11 months.

Let's Have A Fight Locomotive and YELL!

By MARIAN VANDALL

Autumn hikers exploring the campus may think they have stumbled upon an unannounced football game when they hear cheers and imploring cries of "Come on, now yell. Let's have a fight locomotive, and YELL." floating out over the brick walls of the stadium.

Actually, however, it's MSC's cheerleading squad which devotes five hours a week from 5 to 6 p.m. working on new yells, perfecting old ones, and working the bumps out of their cartwheels.

Women Take to Field

Football audiences little realize that the coach and the band leader aren't the only ones to suffer from lack of maculine material. Last year six men showed up for cheerleading tryouts, and it was then agreed that women students should be allowed a voice on the football field for the first time in the history of the college.

Women Try Out

Tryouts were opened to women, 75 showed up and 14 were chosen to fill the squad's war-depleted ranks.

Good cheerleading involves certain requirements, and the most important of these according to the squad's coaches, Russel Daubert, and Miss Lucille Dailey of the physical education department, is knowing when to cheer and when to be quiet.

Cheerleading Appeal

A good cheerleader also has that certain something that the speech department defines as "audience appeal" and is cooperative, friendly and enthusiastic. From then on, it's hard work that puts out a cheerleader that students can't refuse to yell for.

This year's cheering squad is divided into the first and second strings. The first string squad, consisting of three men and two women, reserves for itself the yells that are tried and true such as the kick-off yell and the Michigan State fight yell.

Try New Yells

The second string experiments on a faltering grandstand with new yells and is also a tryout team to give new leaders an opportunity to gain experience.

Cheerleaders say the most discouraging part of the game is to lead a dead audience. For this reason, squads flip a coin before every game to determine which squad will lead the MSC side of the grandstand during the last half. "That's when they're really warmed up and ready to yell," says the squad.

Hannah Gives Viewpoints On Situation

Student Council to Name Group to Investigate Board of Ag Ruling

At an open meeting of Student council last night, a motion was made and carried to form a committee to investigate and if possible modify the Board of Agriculture ruling of Oct. 1 which banned student driving on the Michigan State college campus.

Following a talk by Pres John A. Hannah explaining why the college administration had finally passed the rule which had been under consideration for many years, Student council Pres. Helen Fisher, Grand Haven senior, threw the meeting open to discussion.

Union board, the American Legion and individual students went on record as saying that they opposed the car ban and wished Student council to take immediate action.

Interruptions

Other individuals, ignoring all parliamentary procedure and refusing to recognize the chair, brought out personal grudges and reasons why the ban was resented.

Miss Fisher, in attempting to bring the meeting to order, tried to explain that the discussion was beside the point, since Student council had already announced that it was opposed to the ban and would attempt to have it modified.

Claiming that the Student council was holding a "railroad meeting," and ignoring Miss Fisher's pleas for order, the dissatisfied students continued to voice their complaints.

Faculty Reasons

Dr. Hannah spoke at the beginning of the meeting upon faculty justifications for the ban. He said that it had its beginning before the war and was brought to a head following V-J Day when problems resulting from student driving again became evident.

He pointed out that all students were notified of the impending ban before college opened so that they would be prepared to leave their cars at home or to attend other institutions.

The first and usual reason for banning cars, he said, was to aid in handling student traffic on and around the campus. It was necessary to apply the ban to East Lansing and vicinity.

Public Supported

He also pointed out that State and other public-supported institutions were justified in their expenditures only if they provided college education to all people of

Need for Thoughtful Action

The time is right for Student council to assume its proper position as our number one student group of constituted authority; to supervise and co-ordinate the activities of all student activities and organizations; and to act as the intermediary in settling differences between students and the faculty, or the state board.

Disturbing problems are arising daily that demand action. If democratic student government is to be activated on this campus, then it is the business of Student council to get into gear and begin doing the job for which it is empowered in an orderly and mature manner.

TO the Editor:
First, I feel that President Hannah deserves a sincere apology from the student body as a whole for the indignities he suffered at the hands of certain erratic members of our student body. Many of us who have been here at State for years, realize that the president's cooperation with the fraternities, sororities, and student body as a whole has been sterling, and we hope that we will continue to have that cooperation in the future.

Many of us, who wanted to present logical arguments, were out-shouted by the representatives of the student body. We want President Hannah to know that they do not represent the entire student body.

Secondly, I would like to know why the authorities feel that moral degeneration is in direct proportion to the number of cars owned by students. Why can some schools have automobiles at a ratio of one car for every three student and still have as high a moral standard as other schools where cars are banned entirely? Are the authorities questioning

MSC to Stress Offensive Tactics Against Tartars

Spartans Work On Tackling, Blocking

Offensive tactics will be stressed when the Spartans meet the Tartars from Wayne university on Macklin field Saturday.

Out for another victory, Coach Charlie Bachman remarked that "our passing offense is clicking nicely, but we've got to get our ground game working or someone is going to come up with a pass defense that will stop us."

Passing Strength

Bachman's contention that State's aerial game overshadows their ground strength is borne out by the statistics of three games already played. The Spartans gained only 160 yards rushing while yielding 573 to their opponents. But MSC took command of the air, having gained 47 yards as compared with 166 for its foes in the passing department.

A movie review of the Michigan State-Pittsburgh game revealed that changes in defensive tactics will have to be made, Assistant Coach John Pingel believes.

Flaws in Tackling

"The pictures showed that the team has greatly improved on defense," Pingel said, "but there still are some flaws in our blocking and tackling. We were in scoring position eight times against Pitt, and made good only twice. With better blocking, knowledge of plays and ball handling, we could have scored an even greater upset of the Tartars."

Team members have been instructed to block higher and tackle lower for more successful results. Much stress is also being put on passes from center.

Professional Golfers To Play Tournaments

CHICAGO, Oct. 17 (AP)—The largest caravan of professional golfers in history will start down Midland's winter trail of gold Nov. 2, and before New Year's day will have picked up $78,665 in war bonds along the way, Fred Corcoran, PGA tournament manager, announced today.

The winter tournament trail starts at Richmond, Va., Nov. 2, and winds up 1945 with the Bing Crosby pro-amateur meet at Del Mar, Calif., Dec. 30.

LETTERS to the EDITOR

the morals of the women of MSC? Are all students to be punished for the misconduct of one percent?

My recommendations are as follows: Allow the Student council to present its logical arguments for revision of the car ban regulation, with the thought in mind that, if they are logical, the regulations be changed to meet with student and faculty approval.

I am not a member of the Student union, or the Student council.

Edward J. Morrison

To the Editor:

As a senior student at Michigan State college I attended the open meeting of the Student council at the Spartan room last evening. Directly following an explanation of the car ban by President Hannah, a member of the audience stated that he considered a statement made by President Hannah as a direct slap in the face of fraternities and sororities.

This remark was very much out of order in that it does not reflect the attitude of the student body, either from the viewpoint of the independents or the members of the various organizations.

I feel that an open apology would be in order. In over three years in residence here I have found that a very friendly feeling exists on this campus and I would like to feel that it will remain that way.

J. M.

To the Editor:

Congratulations on your brilliant and forceful editorial "If Spartans are Careless They Will be Carless." A mature statement of the situation, and one that will merit the consideration of our mature leaders.

CAR BAN

the supporting area at a minimum cost and that student cars often presented a "keeping up with the Joneses" problem. He hopes that the car ban will promote a "democratic spirit in the student body."

The third reason, he said, and the most important, was purely social, and that any bar or other undesirable place was within student reach. He said that those who support institutions such as MSC did not like the idea of students spending their time in such places, and that the college does not want "its dirty linen washed in public."

He admitted that it would have been desirable to discuss the ban with Student council, but since it had been pending for four or five years, and enforced until now to a mild extent, the faculty did not feel such action necessary.

Commends Students

Dr. Hannah commended the student body on its spirit in reaction to the ban, and pointed out that taking action was the first step toward improving Student council and other student organizations, and making them operate effectively as governing groups.

He added that the rule did involve a transportation problem which he hoped could be worked out by Student council with the aid of Tom King, counselor for men; Mrs. Isabelle Gonon, counselor for women, and Dean of Students S. E. Crowe, all of whom were present at the meeting.

President Hannah also pointed out that the literature distributed by reactionary groups on campus was "just foolishness," since no legislative action, such as the pamphlets advocated, would affect the college.

Council Reorganization

At the beginning of the meeting, Miss Fisher pointed out that Student council has already started to reorganize and get back to its pre-war status. She added that meetings are held in the organization rooms of the Union building, and are open to all students who wish to attend.

She went on to say that the council would take immediate action to work out an acceptable solution to the transportation problem which the car ban imposes.

Hannah S. American On MSCS

Speaking at a meeting of the Jean Legion Red 402 in the Spartan Union last night, Hannah predicted that she would be the donor of the campus before long. Concerning the ban, she added little more, but she already said the special Student Union. "Cars are not a good influence," she pointed out. It is his wish that the college could be based on an individual basis, rather than wealth or social dictate.

He conceded that regulations would be a give and take, but would probably consider of such a nature that such suggestions can be worked out, but it is his belief that the ban is large, the ban existing for the whole of the year. In his talk Hannah at length regarding housing conditions concerning the extension of thousands of students that will enroll here next year.

On February 1, the will be available to students, in addition to trailers that the college is on campus. By the Hon-Abbot will be to Men, too, he declared. Representatives of the States Employment also spoke at the time their committee program of getting jobs.
