Nineteen new students are being added to the student body at Michigan State, Bess Dohme, director of counseling, announced yesterday. Results of these exams become official parts of the students' record.

There are six of these tests, of which must be taken by transfer students as well as others. A person who cannot take the reading and writing tests, social studies, English, literature, and composition test, may take a special test as well as the two previous. These tests were added because new students have already completed these requirements, and others who have failed to do so must be notified, Dohme said.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18 (AP) — The President's committee on Palestine, under a final decision affecting the U.S. attitude, will hear without first consulting both Jews and Arabs, the President of the United States, Byrnes said today.

He made the pronouncement in a dispatch discussing the problem of Jewish immigration into the Holy Land, shortly after President Truman had gone into that issue at his news conference.

Etiquette Deficiency

It is too bad that we don't have any manners around here.

Time and time again the same thing has happened and still no one seems to catch on that it's not the right thing to do or the decent thing to do or the polite thing to do. But still they do it, and the blame certainly doesn't fall entirely on the student body for the faculty and townspeople are among the guilty.

"The thing" we're talking about is the fact that at concerts presented in College auditorium, approximately one-fourth of the audience gets up and starts to leave before the last encore is played, or in the case of the Presbyterian, concert, sing. There's no excuse for it. Students don't have to leave early to meet hour deadlines; there is an AWS rule that allows students to stay out later. And most certainly the faculty and townspeople do not have to rudely shrug on their coats and beat a hasty get away.

It embarrasses the rest who are ashamed that the audience is so childish. And it certainly doesn't show much good taste.

One More Bond

You've loaned your government the money to send the greatest army in the world overseas. Now help bring the men back. They need tickets home and the bonds you buy in the Victory loan, starting today, can provide them.

Produce, housing, and medical care for millions of men, and transportation home, is an expensive business. Seeing that veterans get an education, loans to start their own businesses, and all the other help that's due them under the G.I. bill of rights will cost millions.

Just as the money you lent (at interest) in the seven American war loans helped pave the way for victory, the money you lend now in the Victory Loan will help secure the fruits of that victory.

Let's reap a big harvest. This is the last time you will be asked to buy extra bonds.

Stardust in your "Bonnet"?

We mean "captured stardust" or Rogers & Gallot dry perfume. Just put some of this powdery perfume between two thin layers of cotton and actually back it in your "bonnet." Many students will think of you as the "lady with the captured stardust."

TWO years before Pearl Harbor the Govern- ment asked Bell Telephone Laboratories to help perfect radar as a military instrument. The Bell System, through the Western Electric Com- pany, its manufacturing branch, became the nation's largest supplier of radar systems.

Bell scientists designed and developed many different types of radars - each for a specific job. One particular type was standard for B-29s in the Pacific for navigation, target location and high altitude bombing. Another directed all Navi- gators over five inches.

This is not surprising, for radar development and production stemmed from the same roots that produced and continue to nourish this country's telephone system.

One of the newest and brightest spots on the year’s Spartan in Ross Reader, a 23-year-old discharged serviceman from Detroit. He’s a sharp-eyed left halfback, tossing for gains and in two games completed 14 of 18 attempts for an amazing percentage of 77.9.

The 6-foot, 190-pounder, a former Debuton high school all-American, is now teamed with fullback Jack Breiding to provide what apparently is a complete offense for the FTA. Reader’s appearance in the K-6,000 game earned him a starting berth at the backfield.
