State Eleven Hopes to Stop Lion's Prospects For Orange Bowl Bid

This afternoon the Spartans face the bowl-conscious Penn State Lions in what is hoped will be a bounce-back after last week's defeat by the 57-0 Moshcr. The Lions, however, is one of the strongest teams in the state and its defenses with an impressive record of five wins as against one defeat. The Lions scored four of their victories over Michigan, Ohio State University, and Western Michigan University.

Today's game will be the first time this season the Spartans have met a team with a "T" formation. Penn State uses a six-man defensive line.

The Lions are not exceptionally heavy, averaging a line of 197, and a backfield of 187 and 197.

Local Bands To Play At Half-Time Today

The half-time entertainment of the Penn State game will be provided by the Penn State Band, the Lansing High school band, combined band of the Lansing and the Lansing Section 5 band.

The program will be performed by the combined bands.

Timm Beach's band showed range and vitality as the irrepressible Marlow Arradi. Even though he did not understand the meaning of an enormous role, he was at all times easy, satisfactory, and completely comprehendible to the audience.

Faith Without Works Is Dead

As Washington waits for some sign from Rawls, the future of civilization hangs heavily in the balance. The future of civilization means the future of every individual, every student at Michigan State college. Atomic power, if undeveloped, could wipe it out and bring it to a smokeless eternity.

A few days ago the problem was one of preventing the use of atomic weapons against its leading power, the world into the most ferocious armament race the world has ever seen. It continues today as the proposal of the United States, Britain and Canada that control of atomic energy be placed under the United Nations. Today we find the first step, and a hazardous step, toward solving the problem successfully.

We are too afraid from our hands takes faith, faith in the integrity of the other powers of the world. Also, it will require constant vigilance. The London Times last week called that vigilance the "only certain and every kind of every individual. A false step in this search for security may spell the final catastrophe of the world.

Weekly Letter to Men in the Service

November 12, 1943

DARRENT Johnny,

If I can keep my eyes open long enough to hit the right key, I'll manage a letter to you. If things keep up at this rate, I'll be a host to two years. I could check the hogs using my eyes. But enough of that, I don't want to put you to sleep.

We play Penn State today, rain, shine, or snow, and from that another it will be the battle. But I'm a North through and through and will go even though they are the best damn team in Penn State history. Details are showing up. By the way, this is the last home game so they should make a real effort.

Big news, Big Boy—because of crowded conditions we are going to have two night classes this week. These classes. That sure will be a good one. Nothing like meeting in a dark room no shadow of Dampier after my 9 o'clock, I think.

You'll be sorry to hear that Fred Patton of the music department is in the hospital. He's in Philadelphia, so he's up in New York on Sunday for Tuesday and the finals are slated for the last week in December, so we'll be getting along.

Term play off to a big 7 last night with everyone putting their best damned foot forward. And they are doing it again tonight. My roommate made me wear my formal love, but when I got there I found out that it wasn't a bad idea, after all.

Purpose tomorrow is going to pick a queen for the annual victory parade and competition in running. I was feeling sorry for them having to pick a queen from all those women. My good friend Carrie was going to nominate me but she decided she wouldn't make a good impression when I started to sing.

All for now, have to go and get that beauty sleep on mattresses companies are always talking about.

Love, JDE

Doctor Accuses German Officials

BACHAU, Germany, Nov. 16 (AP) — A German doctor has accused German officials of tortures and murders, of blackmail and of the systematic maiming and skinning human bodies to make war trophies.

Dr. Fritz Ribbeck, representing the Berlin Jewish war crimes defendants in "six hours against 12" Nazi film, said his evidence was based on frequent visits to the concentration camps.

The slight Czechoslovakian prisoner, former Dachau inmate, testified, charged that 20,000 thousand prisoners died of typhus, but prison doctors forbade the inmates from getting an epitaph in German because "those who died in camps were German enemies of humanity."

Naked prisoners were made to lie in the "death pits" for hours in all kinds of weather and examined by doctors so that they could say they were alive. One of the prisoners was called "slave market." He was examined in the nakedness of all kinds of weather and examined by doctors so that they could say they were alive. One of the prisoners was called "slave market."

The doctors were given nothing but salt water and beans to eat and had a fifty-fifty chance of surviving.

Eight thousand Russian prisoners of war were executed in the spring of 1942.

Jack Brelin in action. Brelin plans to graduate at the end of next summer term, which makes this his last appearance before a home crowd.

His line smashes, punting, and general all-around good playing have earned him a great deal of praise as one of the country’s leading backs. Last year he was chosen as one of the east’s representatives in the annual East-West all-star game on New Year’s Day. Although bothered by

All students are required to have their seat reservations and activity books at all football games, according to L. S. F. R. H., assistant athletic de-

A foot injury, Brelin can be counted on to be one of the big guns in State’s play against the Lions today.

Quarterback Johnson

Glenn Johnson will call signals while halfbacks Knapp from Butler and᠈nese Cann will provide additional offensive strength. Garnett, specializing in reverse plays, has been one of the team’s most reliable gainers, in the Spartan upset, while Brelin has been the team’s leading passer. He has built up an impressive percentage of completed passes for a young and inexperienced team.
