The Sad Story of the R.U.

WASHINGTON—The rubber union, however, has failed to negotiate a new labor contract, leading to a strike by the workers. The union has been without a contract for the past 12 months, and the workers have been forced to work without benefits and protections.

The reads have pressured the employers to accept a fair contract. This would allow the union to negotiate a fair contract, providing workers with better wages and benefits.

R.R. Pleads Innocent

NEW YORK—A R.R. executive was found guilty of embezzlement in a New York court. The executive had been charged with embezzling funds from the company, but the jury found him not guilty.

The defense argued that the executive was innocent, and the jury agreed. The case has been a significant setback for the R.R., as it has been involved in several recent legal disputes.
