67,000 Workers Out in Phone Strike
18,000 Leave Jobs in State As Settlement Attempts Fail

NEW YORK — A strike of 67,000 telephone workers in 18 states, the largest of its kind, is scheduled for Friday and Saturday and is set to pit the workers against the AT&T long-distance telephone company.

Some states, including Michigan, are expected to see a significant number of workers striking. The strike is expected to affect about 1 million customers in the Northeast.

Finding the Key to Peace

At the evening of The National Conference on International Economics and Economic Development yesterday, President Truman outlined a new plan for the United States to play a major role in the world economy.

He was to say that the nations of the world must cooperate to achieve economic stability and peace. The conference was attended by representatives from all parts of the world, and the discussions were focused on the need for a new international economic order.

The conference was held in the Quadrangle Dining Hall, and the speakers included leaders from various countries. The keynote address was given by President Truman, who emphasized the importance of international cooperation and the need for a new economic order.

The conference ended with a closing address by Secretary of State Stettinius, who reiterated the importance of the new economic order and the role that the United States must play in achieving it.

The conference was a significant event in the history of international economics and economic development, and it marked a new era in the United States' foreign policy.

Steel Shipments Halted As Strike Draws Near

650,000 Set To Walkout At Midnight

NEW YORK (AP) — With a nationwide steel strike only hours away, the government yesterday froze all shipments of civilian steel. The national production authority, citing a possible national emergency, asked that steel production be stopped. The strike, expected to draw thousands of workers, will affect the steel industry nationwide.

The government has asked that all steel producers stop work immediately. The strike is expected to last for at least 24 hours, with the possibility of a longer shutdown.
