U. S. Judge Rules Steel Seizure Illegal

Injunctions Granted To Five Steel Firms

U.S. District Judge David A. Pine yesterday ruled the government's seizure of the steel industry illegal.

In a 19-page decision, Judge Pine found that the government had seized the steel industry without following the procedures outlined in the Temporary National Economic Measures Act. The act requires the government to provide a factual basis for its actions and to offer a hearing to the companies involved.

The government had seized the steel industry last week, citing a national emergency. Judge Pine ruled that the government had not met its burden of proof to justify such a seizure.

Responsibilities

Intermittently, reports come into the college about the activities of the students. Unfortunately, the reports that most often reach us are unfavorable, the good things don't invite people to tell about them. College authorities must remember that there is a stigma attached to these two words, "college student."

They still retain the reputation of rowdy skinheads, firing penants, and hash tubbies. Isn't one place for the discussion of the truth of these things, for where there is a college, there will always be a certain amount of mess, "all around" fun.

But it is to be wished that any amount of fun students want to have would be confined to the campus, or at least an area where residents are used to having "happy, healthy youth" gambolling about.

The point we are making about this is: Whether you do an individual or a group of N.E. students opening the college as a whole. Have your fun in your own little way, but beware of some, little children, and inavoidable in the process.

It is not enough for a college student to do his schoolwork. Nor should it be necessary to ask that college students act responsibly.

It is hard to estimate how many people around here would not be content with a little less of it around. We don't think it's their fault.

But there was no need, ever, to make disturbance of any kind.

For the third time in the last week, a resolution has been introduced in the House of Representatives calling for the impeachment of President Truman.

This time, submitted by Rep. Shafter (Mich.), differs from the two predecessors in that it places the entire blame for the condition of the nation on the administration.

Shafter has requested that the time be set for a probable hearing in the house, and that the president, while it is in session, be required to present the mood of the nation. Since this, of course, was not expected, and his handling of the situation was Shafter told the House that he did not consider the other resolutions, true impeachment resolutions.

In the Shafter resolution is required, he wants to state that he had not heard the country's needs. But what good can the action accomplish, if it has only eight months left in office?

Shafter's resolution can be laid on a shelf for thirty days, without being heard from again. When it has been taken, Shafter can start a demand petition for his resolution to the House, which would not be difficult to obtain.

Shafter's lowest-priority resolution now lies in the background of the House's policy committee, which would be hard to support as many as the Republicans in the House.

Beyond that, Shafter is calling for approval of the measure from the Senate.

Shafter's resolution speaks clearly and not with the backing of the House GOP policy committee, which would mean the support of most of the Republicans in the House. Beyond that, Shafter is calling for approval of the measure from the Senate.

Whether the emotion is concerned in removing Truman from office in another party's way, remains to be seen.

Assuming that Shafter's resolution was adopted until the 30-day period, Shafter can start the same procedure, if it has only eight months left in office.

In cases where Republican resolutions have been taken, these resolutions, had the support of the House and the Senate, would be hard to support. Although the resolution still is not a vote, and was defeated.

Highway Closed for Widening

Grand River Work To Include Repairs

Grand River Ave, from Peoples Church to the west city limits, was closed this week because of construction to widen the highway.

Although the area from Bridge St. to the east city limits is included in the contract, construction has not yet begun on that portion of the project.

The widening and restuffing will last through the summer and probably into the fall, according to George Seeley, city engineer.

Two sections were forced closed last Thursday afternoon when the construction work began. Highways in the Grand Valley and Grand River sections were congested until about 5 o'clock as General Acton, in charge of the crews, and his assistants were forced to close the roadway before the trucks and men could work safely.

Temporary U.S. 11 is being realigned. Ditches, curbs, and sidewalks along the roadway are being widened in Grand River.

Yanki Yest and Sue of Kalamazoo, Mich., who have been awarded the winning contract, Mitchell Bros. of Big Rapids, Williamsen will do the contracting.

July Session Set

Waring Group To Hold 'Workshop'

A Fred Waring Choral workshop is one of three music education programs planned by Michigan State College this spring and summer, Dr. William R. Stroope, professor of music, has announced.

The workshop is planned July 21-23. It will be conducted by Waring, the internationally known American composer-arranger-conductor, who is now on sabbatical leave at the State University of New York at Buffalo.

This program will be open to Mc of high school age, church choirs, and amateur choirs, according to Dr. Stroope. There will be one workshop each for May 21-23, June 10-12, and July 21-23. The three programs will be in two separate sessions.

This workshop is not to be considered a choir contest, Dr. Stroope declared.

The workshop will be at the State University of New York at Buffalo, and will be conducted on its campus, according to the New York Times.
