Food Donations Begin

Rain or Shine, It's Still Cold

Dr. Samuel L. Woody of the College of Agriculture, has been on the road over the past week to various communities to solicit food donations. Officially, he stated any one in need of food could make donations to the campus dining center on the Union.

Despite the rain and cold temperatures, the donations continued to come in. Donors were requested to walk into the Union and leave the donations there for pickup. Several drivers were busy making the pick-ups for the donations center on the Union.

Concourse Clearer

Easier Week For UMOC

Sponsors of the U of M on campus contest are hoping their drive will pick up steam this week after a slow start last Tuesday—Wednesday.

Judging from the competition the last two days, it looks as if the contest is going to be even more competitive this week. Last week was the first time the competition was held on campus.

For the first time this year, both the Alpha Omicron Pi and the Theta Phi Alpha units were making the pitch for their candidates on the Union Concourse, they had to compete with drive registration and recruiting by Navy aviation officers.

It was pointed out that some students probably avoided the drive because they felt the competition was spread out. It would be pruned and eventually reduced to a pint of blood.

Take the ease of the way who thought to avoid the Concourse into the Concourse with a few shots for a friend and ended up promising to appear for a Social Service and signing away a pint of blood books.

This week, however, UMOC will have the Concourse free and clear—or comparatively so, anyway.

It doesn't have to share the stage with anyone and will have a good deal of its normal headquarters at the Alpha Omicron Pi.

Even with the competition, the contest showed encouraging signs of rolling out of the slump Thursday. More than 300 was collected as 56,000 votes were cast.

Alpha Phi Omega, sponsor of the contest, hopes to set a record in collection as has been done for the past two years.

Right now, more than 500 is the bill. But it's going to be quite a battle to surpass last year's $1,400 plus.

Biggest share of the credit for the money collected must go to the needs in the various living units who along have zeroed in on raising money in skills and promotion stunts for their candidates.

And the new and spirit of "UMOCs" eliminating, it should be remembered that all of this effort is for charity.

And even though the spirit of competition seems to circulate in the heart of the contest, it is this charity, and nothing else, that the Alpha Phi Omega men are working for this week, and will have no trouble in collecting the 130° contest a big week.

A Bloody Challenge

To the Editor:

Attention, freshmen, sophomores, juniors, and seniors. The 1951 Junior Class of Michigan State College wishes to challenge the members of the Michigan State Junior Class of 1952 to another bit of good-natured competition.

Our intention in issuing this challenge is to stimulate interest in the junior class in the coming year. It is hoped that all junior classes will break all previous records.

The details will be made available by written notice from the junior class of 1951 to the junior class of 1952 in time for the class of 1951 to plan any semblance of a challenge to the class of 1952.

We hope that the competition between 1951 and 1952 will be friendly and that all classes will have a bit of fun in their efforts to win.

Time Change to Cut Attendance 2 Ways

Michigan State's basketball players will turn television sets March 5 when they meet Michigan at Ann Arbor on the CBS "Big Ten Game of the Week" program.

It will be the second appearance for the Spartans; they whipped Wisconsin, 94-77, early in the season on TV.

But, with the game scheduled for the television program, the game time is changed from 6 p.m. to 3 p.m. today.

The time change will hurt Spartan attendance at the game, with the mid-afternoon tip breaking up the day. In addition, the game will conflict with the finals of the World Indoor Track Championships, being held at Michigan State that weekend.

Attendance at both events will be impossible, with the conflict barring both events.

Appearance on the TV program is an honor, and the Spartan players deserve that honor. But it's too bad that it had to come on the day it did.
