Mud-Mired Drivers Get 3 Lots

Emergency road relief for student drivers has arrived, as three lots will be opened as parking spots for the next two-week period. Brandstatter, chief of the campus police, said Wednesday:

The three lots are:
- Small lot D on the east side of Farm Lane between the old Farm Barn and the Lake City Road
- Lot F immediately west of the Judson Pavilion
- Lot C near the Administration Building

A ruling which prohibits parking in lots D to F from 20 a.m. will be lifted for a two-week period, Brandstatter said. He said the decision to open the lots to temporary use was made because of the extremely muddy conditions of the lots now used by students for night-time parking.

Brandstatter said that the suspension of the rule is for a two-week period to accommodate approximately one-third of the last day of winter term classes on March 16. The parking rule was extended beyond the two-week period, he said, if muddy conditions still prevail.

Student usage of the lots was ran, as students are expected to keep their vehicles in the lots day and night, he said. The lots will be available from 8 to 11 a.m. daily for student use, he said.

The decision to lift the parking rule was made after a survey of the campus was made. The survey showed that the lots were muddy and that the students were not using them.

The lots will be available for use for the next two-week period. The lots will be closed to all traffic after 11 a.m. daily for student use, he said. The lots will be open to all traffic after 11 a.m. on the day of the next week.

The bill, attacking discrimination in campus organizations, stands now as a halfway measure which overlooks the essential issue. It has attempted to portray a compromise "where it has no power, while it ignores the basic causes of the situation it seeks to correct.

Needed now is a new piece of Student Congress legislation which amends the Angeli bill's procedural ineptitude and provides the basic for student action against group and individual actions because of race or creed.

Two provisions of the Angeli bill should be preserved in any new or "substitute" action. It should have a strong statement of the opposition of Michigan State students to discriminatory practices among student organizations.

The objection to a discriminatory clause in a being unit constitution should also be retained. But it should go further than the trivial prohibitions of the 1803 Student Congress.

In implementing the opposition to a discriminatory clause, there should be more than a "get rid of it" attitude.

A request sounds rather quiet. But a new bill should direct a request at the governing bodies of the concerned living units asking that they refuse to sanction discriminatory practices.

The request would probably be most effective if it included a complaint deadline, perhaps the Oct. 15, 1966 date of the Angeli bill.

A failure to get in by the seventeenth body should automatically result in another request. The Student Congress, as the representative of the Michigan State student body, should ask that the administrative groups which sanction the living units withdraw official recognition.

Eliminating discriminatory clauses is an essential first step toward creating an attitude of brotherhood on this campus, falling to the clamor removes an automatic bar in the achievement of any real progress.

But this bill should be far more than just an item. Simply dropping the phrasing will not ends.

A genuine anti-discrimination bill will have to set up marked measures which will now be enacted.

There should be an opportunity to examine, and perhaps, to reverse discriminatory practices wherever they appear.

Among the campus organizations and clubs which are open to all students and which have special extended memberships to campus, there should be a detailed account of the existence of any discriminatory practice.

There could be a provision for the operation of specific procedures in addition to the University of Michigan's elaborate discipline.

If the execution of the proposals are decided by chapters, who must have meet semi-weekly meetings to discuss the ideas, characteristics of like, blood, sex, or creed, to a lot of hope.

The programs would help to point out the failings and utility of discrimination to all.

Coeds, Vote Today For AWS Leaders

Male students will exercise their right to vote today in an AWS election exclusively for women.

Polls will be open to the women's dorms and the Union Common House from 4 to 8 p.m. For each vote two presidents and four senators will be elected.

Today's vote will determine which two of the four candidates must win the student and judicial boards. The nominees for activities board president stands alone, but there are bidding for the judicial post.

AWS at State stands for court government and coordinating activities. The presidents and nominees of the organization present Michigan State women on and off campus.

Because of the AWS Activities Board students enjoy the benefit of the last six years programs, activities are designed for women students through AWS student officers lead the way.

The executive board has responsibility for the judicial board's function in the AWS, which is the court of appeal for the organization's members.

The students will cast their ballots for the two coeds who will lead the campus, which is the court of appeal for the organization's members.

Highways to Fashion: Show Centennial Styles

For Crests to Highlight Background

By JOE BUCKER

"Highways to Fashion" is the theme of the "Fashion Show," sponsored by the women's organizations of the United States Military Academy at West Point. The show will be held on Friday night, March 11, at 8 p.m., in the Academy Chapel.

The fashion show will feature a variety of styles from different eras and countries, highlighting the evolution of fashion over time. The show will be presented by the women of the United States Military Academy, who will showcase their creativity and skill in creating modern interpretations of historical fashion.

Miss Michigan State, Judy Phillips, will be the guest of honor at the event. Phillips has been involved in the fashion industry for many years and is well-known for her expertise in the field.

The fashion show is open to the public and is expected to draw a large crowd. Tickets are available at a cost of $25 per person and can be purchased online or at the door of the event.

Since the day of their arrival, the married couples have been taking the East to visit their families, and several other young couples have been spending their honeymoon in the East.

We are going to have a wonderful time, and we are looking forward to meeting some old friends.

For example, this term there are some 250 students living off campus.

The student's organizations have been active, and there are many social events throughout the year.

Although there are few rules on campus, the students are free to design their own courses and projects.

Although the student government has only been in existence since 1946, the organization has been very active and has worked hard to improve the student body's quality of life.

Disciplinary Steps Taken By School

To help maintain a safe and safe environment for all students, the school has established disciplinary steps.

These steps are designed to prevent disruptive behavior and ensure that all students are treated fairly.

The school's disciplinary procedures are aligned with state and national standards.

Finally, the school is committed to ensuring that all students have the opportunity to succeed and reach their full potential.
