Shay Boyl Tryes Selling in Open Car

1912 Better Boy

A boyish-looking fellow may be drawing notice on the streets of this town, but the little Ohio boy, who is making a specialty of selling in an open car, is certainly no boy at heart.

He is the son of an acquaintance of this writer, who lives in the vicinity of the Ohio River. The lad has been doing this for some time, but the recent change in his method of peddling has attracted attention.

He carries a small box of goods, which he displays to passers-by, and when they show an interest, he begins to talk about them. The goods are mostly articles of a light and inexpensive nature, and the boy appears to be quite expert in his line.

He is not afraid to approach adults, and his manner is frank and free, which seems to attract them. The boy is also very courteous, and his treatment of customers is always respectful.

He has been doing this for some time, and the results have been satisfactory. He is not only earning money for himself, but he is also learning a useful trade, which he may find of use in the future.

U.S. Issues Orders For Counter-Attack
Plans Made for Instant Retaliation in Case of Aggression

WASHINGTON—The U. S. military high command has issued an informal order that America’s large range of strategic bombers shall take off and strike back in the event of an enemy attack on this country. There are, however, it is said, no plans for military attacks on non-Nazi countries.

This order is part of the new phase in the growing tension between the U. S. and Germany that is now under way. It is said that the order was issued by the U. S. military high command in consequence of the fact that Germany has not yet ceased to use poison gases against the Allies.
