90 Per Cent Effectiveness Speculated

ANN ARBOR (AP) — The most recent field tests on the Salk vaccine were completed last week, and all indications point to the fact that the vaccine will be effective against the paralyzing disease

The 14-month fight to have the people ratify Michigan State's state as a university enters its final phase this morning, when the Senate Judiciary Committee is scheduled to act on the name-change bill. If, as is expected, a majority of the committee's seven members vote to report the bill out, action deciding the fate of State's university designation is likely at any moment.

The Senate committee, getting the bill after a week and overwhelming 10-1 vote of approval in the House, has concluded an intensive and vast examination into the merits of the proposed name change.

And developments since the committee began its study have weakened the claims of name-change opponents.

"It's unconstitutional," was a major contention of the high-level U of M officials who appeared at the Capitol to argue against the change of one word in Michigan State's right-wield title.

But 30 days after hearings, granted at the request of the University of Michigan Board of Regents, the state university, ruled the Legislature has the power to modify State's name.

Said Atty. Gen. Thomas M. Kavanaugh: "There is no constitutional reservation of a name for those institutions by any proper means. The people have recognized this fact by changing the reference to 'agricultural school' in the constitution of 1850 to 'agricultural college' in the constitution of 1856."

"I do not find any constitutional providuction to the change of name proposed." Kavanaugh said the people were attempting to provide for the establishment of college-level instruction in agriculture. But they, he said, intended to restrict the name to school or college.

Only a year ago Kavanaugh's predecessor, who refused to rule a name change in-legal. This time, however, the attorney general was more emphatic in his declaration of the Legislature's power.

In a 30-page answer to the attorney general, U of M law dean, Dean E. E. Stan-son again brought up a second argument of some name-change opponents.

Dean Stanson insisted that the U of M had rights to the exclusive use of the descriptive term "university" at least when it appeared with the state name "Michigan."

This is contrary to usage in dozens of other states, where citizens have authorized the use of the state name and "university" for more than one school.

An opponent really argues, Michigan State is in a unique place. In fact, ranking right among the country's universities, it grants degrees in over 200 fields and undergraduate degrees in over 100 fields.

Only the objections of the University of Michigan now stand in the way of a quiet matriculating facilitation of a name change warranted at least two decades ago.

The fights in the decisive vote coming up, was, like the gridiron battles between the two schools, a hard-fought campaign. With the goal line in sight, let's hope the field doesn't get muddy.

Matthews Enjoy Practice

BY FRED LINDSEY

Coach Matthews, who has been a fortune around here for showing every indication of

coming the leading home-

runner in the 1955 National League pennant race, enquired for the third continu-

ingly, in the spring practice session.

"I feel Mike Isner is much better now than last year。

When Mike Korte retu-

ned from his hip injury, he was better than last year.

But Mike Adams is far

over the average of last year. Mike Adams is a lot more steady than last year, too."

As for the rest of the

bunch, Coach Matthews

has no complaints.

"As a whole, we have

enough players to win the

leagues." he said.

But Coach Matthews

said that the team will

not be the same as last year.

"I think we will have

a better team this year.

We have a lot of good

players who can do a lot of things." he said.

But Coach Matthews

said that he is not sure

how good the team will be.

"I am not sure how

good we'll be. I am not sure how good we'll be.

I am not sure how good

we'll be."

But Coach Matthews

said that he is sure that the team will do its best.

"We will do our best."
