Detroit Firm Rejects U.S. Standards

More Discussion Set For Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new cloud of uncertainty settled over the anti-pollution campaign Wednesday night as at least one big maker of Salk vaccine balked at new production rules laid down by the government.

Henry C. Prickett, executive vice president of Parke, Davis & Co., told reporters the revised standards for manufacture and testing of the vaccine were not acceptable to him as "promptly written" and that he believed the five other licensed producers would soon follow.

"That is why the meeting is being held for Wednesday," Mr. Prickett said.

Without disclosing details of the new regulations, Mr. Prickett said the government was still "circling the wagons" to protect itself should the other five producers withdraw from the market.

As a result of the action and the government announced it would delay the regulations until Nov. 1.

The government also announced it would not consider any proposals of the Salk vaccine-makers to change the regulations.

Umpire Dusty Boggess had to flit about under the stands wearing only a towel as several feet of water flooded the umpire room and stranded the men in blue. Umpire Hats' Pinel was rescued by umpire Dusty Boggess who borrowed a Cub uniform for Dusty until the umpire's civilian clothing was dehydrated. The new umpire room now has a great view.
