Centennial Construction Greets Visitors

Building Boom In High Gear

By Jack Berry

The biggest building boom to hit Michigan State since the early post-war years has hit the East Lansing campus with the four million dollar library one of the main accomplishments of the expansion movement.

A five-story, six-story, modernized student structure will be a familiar sight to freshmen students in communication skills winter term when a very paper is required for the course.

It is hoped that the more than 700,000 books, periodicals and documents will be able to be moved to the new library by Jan. 6, 1956, the first day of class in winter quarters.

Banking fifth largest university library in the United States in space the imposing modernistic structure on Circle Drive contains 11,243 (755,000) books, plus 36,000. The reason for the vast difference is that the outside windows alone measure over 25,000 square feet.

Projects already under construction due to start are the library, three new dormitories in the Fresh group; a fireproof, modernizing addition to the campus hospital, the three unit animal husbandries, another pedestrian bridge over the Red Cedar, additional parking lots on Circle Drive and an expansion of Kellogg Center, the student union.

Another major project is the new cafeteria building section on Kalmenow St., where 302 more apartments are being raised to top form.

Although construction is seen nearly everywhere on campus it is hoped the taxpayers will not be so great as it might first seem.

All of the dormitories, the music building and hospital additions and the married housing units are on a self liquidating basis. The expansion of Kellogg Center is being paid for by the Kellogg Foundation.

In the Circle Drive area approximately 100 meters of parking spaces are being paved, according to Harold W. Lautner, campus landscape architect.

The western part of the women's athletic field was raised three feet and is usable, Lautner said.

A service drive will run into the rear of the music building from the southern side of Circle Drive and the drive will be closed except for the president's use.

The sidewalk leading to the main entrance of the new facility will also be closed, according to Lautner.

Another proposed plan was to have a small two-seater water fountain. The Best Botanic Garden will be extended to meet the library on the north side.

On the south side of Wells Hall construction of a pedestrian bridge running towards Macgill Field Stadium will be started in the fall. It is scheduled to be completed in the spring, said Secretary Karl H. McNeel.

The bridge will be on the level going over the river and the low land on the north side of the Red Cedar with the northern end next to Wells Hall.

Another phase of the building program under the land and buildings fund is an extension of Farm Lane for half a mile from Mt. Hope Rd. to Forest Rd. in preparation for the Centennial of Farm Mechanization.

Another project the previous road had been little more than a cinder path. In two weeks of work the road was graded and paved with a 21-foot strip of asphalt.

The student parking lots at Shaw Hall and Harrison Rd., the subject of bitter battle during the winter and spring months are also undergoing changes. The space the new lights and parking lots will be added. The Harrington lot will receive the same treatment and Lautner said the project would probably be finished by the start of school.

The three new Fresh group dormitories, Lloyd, C. Bonne, and Kaplan Halls will be completed by the Fall of 1954, according to Secretary C. O. Newcomb, campus housing director.

Brady Hall is also being expanded to include space for the ROTC, group, with additional dormitories and classroom facilities. Upon completion there will be six separate rows of three large rooms with one each having its own bath.

The three new Fresh group dormitories are Lloyd, C. Bonne, and Kaplan Halls.

The president in charge of the plans is Secretary Karl H. McNeel.

The secretary of the plan is John A. Hennock, the dormitory director.

The building will be an 18-story, six-story, modernized student structure, which will be a familiar sight to freshmen students in communication skills winter term when a very paper is required for the course.

Serenades and Beaumont Tower
There's Fun, Tradition Back of Spartan Spirit

Michigan State must be just a "yesteryear" in the eyes of many students or visitors. It is true, however, that the campus has very much changed from the dates when it was just a "country school."

You won't need to follow these traditions. In fact, you haven't even heard much about them. You hear things like that:

"Why should I go to a bunch of silly customs that some old Rogers dreamed up during the last century?," you may say.

"There's nothing more to it than the old-time blunderbuss, and I've got a better gun than that," you may retort.

But that's just what MSU traditions are. They have survived throughout the years despite the school's expansion. They have lived on because students in each succeeding generation have continued to perform an integral part of the "Spirit of MSU."

Now that you've turned up and see the mention of "Spirit of MSU" and you think that it's all over, wait until you're asked that question that was used when you were playing high school ball and class reunion.

"What do you know about MSU's beautiful campus?"

You don't keep a beautiful campus by slapping up wrappers on the grounds or by laying flowers on the grass just because it's a couple of seconds.

The campus is dotted with trash containers for your scrap paper and they don't last almost as much campus as a desk is for nothing.

You're going to have a lot of fun following MSU's traditions.

For instance, only girls who are kissed on the cheek in the shade of Beaumont Tower are the victims of true love.

There's a romance about the tower. And it's tradition that the only engaged couples in the state, beneath the shade of Beaumont Tower. That's because it is known as the "Engagement Rock."

There's another one about MSU's last President John A. Hannah. The door to his office is always open to admit students and any problems they might carry with them.

He had a long-time insurance agent and a man who "just happened" to be engaged to him was standing in the shade of Hannah's office. His secretary was busy at the front desk.

Beautiful girls have always been Spartan traditions and various groups throughout the years have given beauty to many chances to be beautiful girls. Whatever the age or the Homcoming Queen Contest has been the girl's beauty.

One of the scenes that those who have high school better outdoors with a flying trip up to the Red Cedar. And the one who is a regular trip to the Cedar, College Hall each year for seniors to change their name on.

As spring nears, there's a bit "streaked with pea greets their chance to ask men in the sprinkler's sight. But they do it, just "Shale and east," the "silk, pick up their "faces" in the woods.

Serenade time includes the top hats for many campus honors. It has the number of senior activities such as Eastern Michigan and Browning.

And on and on. There are many more in the spirit that is "Budding." Tradition is an important part of that spirit.

To Keep You Awake

When that professor gets势ting we've got a solution for you - just go to State. Have you noticed that new State crossword puzzle popular as newspapers? It's a crossword puzzle of State professors from the year before they dropped the puzzle from the year before you have even stuck with that kind. Bring an umbrella or something you can use if you get cold.

Just to get you in practice, a crossword puzzle is included in the front of this section. For all the votes, the answer is included. But don't cheat. It's a hard job.

Carnival Gives Opportunity to See Activities

The Bygone and Beautiful Vigilantes

The Carnivals have long been popular at MSU. It is a big event to call the Carnivals and be a part of that intangible spirit of MSU. Before, it was just a daily thing to punch holes in traditions.

Books are up in the Carnivals and the horses of the Carnivals have been a staple feature. The Carnivals have been a big event to call the Carnivals and be a part of that intangible spirit of MSU. Before, it was just a daily thing to punch holes in traditions.

The Carnivals are the perfect time to call the Carnivals and be a part of that intangible spirit of MSU. Before, it was just a daily thing to punch holes in traditions.

Many Save Money at Registration

Frank Scholarship House News

Michigan State University's many scholarships come in especially handy at registration time—so you can sign you a lot of money.

President W. C. H. McNaughton, who has announced that many scholarships will now serve for the 1948-1949 academic year, said that many students will be able to register for the current term, knowing that they will have financial aid to help them through the rest of the year.

The scholarships, which are available for all Michigan State University students, are intended to help students who are unable to pay the full cost of tuition and fees.

The scholarships can be used for a wide range of expenses, including tuition, fees, books, supplies, and living expenses.

Students interested in applying for a scholarship may contact the Michigan State University Scholarship Office for more information.

Dorm Councils Active In Campus Affairs

Coordinating dormitory activities on the Spartan campus is the number one job of two groups, the Men's and Women's Inter-Dorm Councils.

Each dorm elects one representative at the end of winter term, and these members half a year, which will be until the next spring's representative.

During Orientation Week the men's council will hold a Leadership Workshop and council each dormitory talks to solve the problems of their dorms. The women's council also holds the girls a chance to get new ideas which will be useful to them.

A new event will be opened this fall, the Dormitory Dance. The council has chosen a week to come in to eliminate problems and new ideas with the Women's Council. They, during the council's meeting, is for the same purpose.

The Board of Directors is the main event held by the men's council. The girls and dorms plan a party and the end of real winter weather, where some of their friends, are paid the by dorm mates.

Sorority Rushing Pattern Explained for Newcomers

Rushing is a process in which college rushers are introduced to the fraternities and sororities on campus by means of scheduled visits at the offices of the various groups. Virginia C. Snyder, director of counseling at Michigan State University, explained the process for newcomers.

The Joins process is Conducted in Two Phases, which coincide with the fall semester and the spring semester. Both phases are open to all interested undergraduates, and both provide an opportunity for rushers to interact with members of the various fraternities and sororities. The fall phase is conducted in October, while the spring phase is conducted in February.

Rushers will be introduced to the fraternities and sororities on campus, and will have the opportunity to meet with members of the various groups. Rushers will also have the opportunity to learn about the various groups and their activities, and to ask questions about the groups and their activities.

Fraternities

After becoming an active member, each co-ed is expected to work some 3 to 5 hours a week to help maintain the house. Normally, members do not have to work on the nearest day to their birthday, but the work must be completed within the week before the birthday.

Women living in the houses are involved in a number of events. Sometimes members hold a bi-monthly membership meeting for the entire group. These meetings usually involve an evaluation of the work of the house, and plans for the future. Other events include parties or dances, which are usually organized by the residents. Members are also involved in other activities on campus, such as attending sporting events or participating in volunteer work.

From Touch to Turkey Trot

If you didn't win a letter in high school don't worry. You have a chance to be at Michigan State athletics. Michigan State is second only to Notre Dame in the country in the number of players on the football team. So if you have a chance to play and be a part of something you've always wanted, make sure you take advantage of it. If you don't, you'll regret it when you think back on it. "If you don't want to play, you can still go to the games and support the team." With this in mind, we'll take a closer look at this year's Sophomore Class. Many of these students are looking forward to making their mark on the team and making a difference. They're excited to be a part of something bigger than themselves.

Director of Athletics
From Biggie Munn

Welcome to Michigan State. You are the first freshman class to enter Michigan State University and I know that you will support our athletic teams with tremendous spirit. In the past we have had wonderful pep rallies. The block has performed very well and the band has given tremendous support. The spirit has grown along with the campus and we think we have the finest in the country. I am sure that our team players feel better, if they that you are all behind them all the way.

Gridders Open with Hoosiers

Indiana Rated 'Darkhorse'

The Indiana Hoosiers, long a doormat of the Big 10, are tipped to be a tough opponent this year, according to many experts. The Hoosiers, who have struggled in recent years, are now led by an experienced coaching staff and a talented roster. Many predict a tough battle for the Michigan State defense, but the Spartans are confident in their ability to come out on top.

Invert Pyramid

The Michigan State Invert Pyramid is a popular and exciting event during the football season. It is a unique and skillful display of teamwork and athleticism, performed by players on the field. This routine is performed to energize the crowd and create a sense of excitement and anticipation for the upcoming game. The Invert Pyramid consists of a base of four players, with two more layers of players above them. The top player, known as the "leader," performs a flip and lands in the middle of the pyramid, with the remaining players supporting him at the base. The routine requires precision, coordination, and trust among the players to ensure a successful outcome. The Invert Pyramid is a testament to the spirit of teamwork and the athleticism of the Michigan State football team.
Strong Thinclad Team Eyes Conference Crown

The game tomorrow will be the true tournament game of the year, in which Michigan State faces Notre Dame. The game will be one of the most important in the history of the conference, and the winner will be the team that emerges as the champion.

Notre Dame and Michigan State have met twice in the past, with both teams winning once. The last time the two teams played, Notre Dame won by a score of 21-14. This year, however, Michigan State is determined to turn the tables and emerge as the conference champion.

Michigan State has been preparing for this game since the beginning of the season, and the team is itching to get back on the field and prove that they are the true champions of the conference. With a win tomorrow, Michigan State could solidify their place at the top of the division and make a statement to the rest of the conference that they are not to be taken lightly.

Michigan State's defense has been a major factor in their success this season, and they will need to step up to the challenge of stopping Notre Dame's high-powered offense. If they can hold their own, Michigan State will have a good chance of coming out on top.

Overall, this game is sure to be a test of the true champions of the conference, and both teams will be giving everything they have to emerge victorious. With the pressure on both sides, it will be interesting to see how the game unfolds and which team will come out on top.

Outlook for Ice Team Said 'Fair'

Despite a downhill ski-maranget that has put the Spartan hockey team in a tight spot, Coach Victor Proctor is still confident in his team's ability to make a mark in the conference.

"Our players are hungry and ready to step up to the challenge," said Proctor. "They are prepared to give their all on the ice and I have no doubt that they will be able to compete with the best in the conference."

Proctor's optimism is based on the team's strong work ethic and dedication to the sport. He has been working with his players to improve their skills and strategy, and he is confident that their hard work will pay off on the ice.

While the team has had its share of challenges this season, Proctor believes that the players are ready to rise to the occasion and make a statement on the ice. With the conference title on the line, the team is ready to give it their all and emerge victorious.
Gymnasts' Depth, Experience May Offset Loss of Carl Rintz

Although 13 of the Spartan's Basketball Senior March personnel had been with him, Coach George Brintz has a veteran team in the beginning of the season. All were expected to be back and had helped place the Spartans fourth in the petite division of the NCAA meet. Brintz will again be backed by a strong supporting cast of younger athletes.

Carl Brintz, one of the best in the nation, is expected to remain in the center position. Pat Wilson, Larry Jones and Calkinstone were key players. Ray Child, Dave Fournier, and Dick Phillips are all senior athletes. They were backed by a good depth at the forward positions.

Another event has been added to the dual meet program. The event in a part of the Olympic program and number of participants. Every man, strong, long, will be chosen at the discretion of the coach. According to Brintz, the competition is to be for the team.

Opening a new season, excitement is building around and for the new competition.

5 Regulars Are Lost to Kobsmen

Coach John Kobs (rhyming this "kob") has been weakened heavily through the loss of George Smith, Dick Powell, Dick Lichten and Chuck Mathews, who were the major rebuilding job. When spring training time arrived, Michigan had a 2-2 record.

In the Big Ten Conference, Michigan was 6-1-2, a record considered by most coaches as "upsetting.

State News — A Morning Habit

Just like breaking your teeth in wrestling, your teeth in the State News will soon become one of the many habits you'll have to break.

Published five mornings a week, the Student News is one of the many habits that have become ingrained into the minds of students. But while the Student News provides entertainment and information, it can also be a habit to break.

In order to make the Student News more relevant to the students, a new format has been introduced. The change includes a faster pace of publication, a more thorough coverage of events, and a greater focus on student-related topics. The new format is expected to make the Student News more engaging and informative for students.

This morning's issue features an article on the latest developments in the Student News. The article highlights some of the recent changes and improvements made to the Student News, as well as its role in providing students with important information.

The Student News is available online and in print. Be sure to check it out and make it a part of your daily routine.

New Style Set For Wolverine

Michigan State in feature article.

That's the job of the 1966 Wolverine. Pictures as well as copy in a magazine feature style will show off the Wolverines' new format according to Edward Parfron, Ann Arbor senior, editor.

Real events, football, academic, student and literary news will be merged to produce a whole news package. In its weekly school, the Wolverines' new format has been tested and proven in student use.

The book will be made by some of the teachers this year. It will be the 50th year publication of Wolverine, the student newspaper. About 1000 copies can be printed to illustrate the new format. It has been possible to print a smaller book, Parfron said.

A Wolverine student editor will be used with the art work and the articles. The front page will also be used to display the new format.

The Wolverine is also a part of the Student Services program that has grown on the campus. The Student Services program includes the Wolverine, the Conscience, the Ann Arbor Chronicle, and the Ann Arbor Arsenale.

Area Churches Offer Services For Students of All Faiths

Numerous churches in the Lansing-East Licking area will hold a warm welcome for students from 8 to 11 a.m., September 22nd, in observance of the national day of prayer for students. The Lansing-East Licking area includes many different denominations, offering a variety of religious services to accommodate students of all faiths. The purpose of this event is to foster a sense of community and support among students and the local religious community.

The area churches participating in this event will include East Lansing Presbyterian Church, East Lansing United Methodist Church, and East Lansing First Presbyterian Church. Each church will provide a welcoming environment and a variety of services designed to meet the needs of students. This event is open to all students and is a wonderful opportunity to explore different faiths and connect with the local religious community.

For more information, please contact your church of choice or visit their respective websites. This event is a great way to start the academic year with a sense of spiritual and community support.
Y Camp Opens Year

Summer camp experiences can prove invaluable to students planning to enter college. At Y Camps, participants make new friends, develop new skills and capabilities, and learn in a setting that is both fun and educational.

Important Landscaping

In 1970, the Student Senate was interested in promoting a more pleasing atmosphere on campus, and it is not a secret that the Student Senate was interested in promoting a more pleasing atmosphere on campus. One of the ways they were interested in doing this was by landscaping the campus. The Student Senate was interested in this because they felt that it was important to have a pleasant environment for students to study and learn in.
