The figures, exclusive of all students on campus credit enrollment, gave the university an increase of 1,682 from last year at this time. Last year's figure was 16,888.

The reason for the increase was attributed to the fact that the university had a larger student body than last year.

La Prensa to Continue as Pro-Labor

Argentina: The head of Argentina's opposition labor and socialist parties, Eduardo Lonardi, has named his largest labor union, the 1.5 million-member Confederation of Labor of Argentina (CUT), as the labor party of the Peronist revolution.

The new labor party, officially known as the Confederation of Labor of Argentina, will be made up of the CUT and the 400,000-member Unión de Trabajadores delMetal (UTM). The CUT is the largest labor union in Argentina, with about 800,000 members.

The new labor party will be led by Eduardo Lonardi, who was recently released from prison after serving 13 years for his role in the 1976 coup that ended Argentina's democratic government.

The CUT has been a strong supporter of the Peronist revolution, which overthrew Argentina's military government in 1976. The new labor party is expected to play a key role in the Peronist government's efforts to implement economic and social reforms.

The new party is also expected to have a strong influence on the country's labor movement, which has been divided over the past few years. The CUT and the UTM have often been at odds over issues such as wages and working conditions.

The new labor party is expected to be a key player in the upcoming national elections, which are scheduled for 2023. The Peronist government is expected to face strong opposition from the opposition parties, including the Conservative Party and the Radical Party.

In a statement, Eduardo Lonardi said that the new labor party would be committed to the Peronist revolution's goals of social justice and economic development. He said that the CUT and the UTM would work together to advance these goals.

The new labor party is expected to have a strong presence in the country's key economic sectors, including manufacturing, agriculture, and services. It is also expected to have a strong presence in the country's urban areas, where it has a large following among workers.

The new labor party is expected to be a key player in the country's labor movement for years to come, and its success will be a key indicator of the success of the Peronist revolution.
